Air Canada Machinists Vote Strike

Times News Services

Air Canada machinists across the country have rejected the latest company contract offer and voted in favor of a strike, it was announced in Montreal today.

No strike date was set but the 6,900 machinists can legally walkout Friday.

The federal labor department earlier in the day appointed a mediator in the dispute but one department official said this does not interfere with the machinists' legal right to strike.

The mediator, Winnipeg lawyer Roy Gallagher, earlier served as a conciliator and his report was released to the two parties May 22.

Mediation is scheduled to begin June 1 in Montreal.

Air Canada said it "welcomes announcement of the appointment of a mediator to participate in renewed negotiations."

A spokesman said Air Canada will "maintain service to the limit of its ability" if rotating strikes begin.

In the Commons, Peter Bawden (PC—Calgary South) said Wednesday Air Canada is disregarding legitimate grievances of the machinists.

He asked the Commons to approve a motion saying the airline should do everything possible to settle the dispute immediately. The motion, which required unanimous consent, was rejected.

The machinists have taken strike action in four contract disputes over the last seven years.

Present pay rates for a two-year mechanic are $4.99 an hour, with the top rate set at $5.49 an hour.

The dispute also involves several non-money issues, among them, complaints that the union's members were laid off by Air Canada during the air controllers strike last year.

$100,000 QUESTION: IS GRANT WORTH IT?

Times News Services

VANCOUVER—The government is paying a consulting firm $100,000 to determine whether a $750,000 subsidy is needed.

The Canadian Transportation Commission is paying the sum to Acres Consulting Services of Vancouver to determine if the government should continue or eliminate the subsidy—in effect since 1909 — to Northland Navigation for its Vancouver to Stewart run.

Study director Wayne McNeal said the commission will review the subsidy before it becomes due again March 31, 1974. The study is to be completed by Nov. 30.

SKYLAB POWER FAILS

Times News Services

HOUSTON — Ground controllers told Skylab's three astronauts today to conserve electricity as a result of a new power failure.

Renewed studies of earth's resources were cancelled for the day.

Minutes after being awakened, space station commander Charles Conrad asked Houston if electrical specialists working through the night had found any way to overcome the new power shortage.

"Afraid not," replied Robert Crippen.

"We're still looking at it. There is some concern that we may have to eliminate some activity, but we still haven't fully evaluated that."

Conrad urged ground controllers to give serious consideration to the space walk.

The batteries went dead Wednesday.

Feed Cost May Hit Poultry

Meat and poultry prices will rise sharply in the next month because of what B.C. feed producers term a national crisis in stock feed costs.

"The situation is beyond our control," B.C. Feed Manufacturers Association chairman Bill Ritchie said Wednesday at a conference in Langley.

Not only are basic prices rising quickly, he said, but some major sources of world supply have dried up or are dwindling.

Feed suppliers in Victoria, however, said today they didn't foresee any "crisis" in the next month.

"Canadians are going to have to get used to paying more for food, so I'd call it 'national adjustment' not crisis," he said.

He said he could see no relief in feed price increases until the fall soybean crop is harvested, but added that future prices probably won't equal increases experienced in the last year.

Charlie Borden of Borden Mercantile Ltd. said his feed costs have gone up 50 per cent in the last year but he doesn't think that price rise will be matched in the next year.

"I don't really think it's as bad as some people think," Borden said. "The price may go up in the next month but not drastically.

"I've sold feed as far ahead as August with firm costs. Perhaps if I was buying on a day-to-day basis my prices would be more affected," he said.

Both Borden and Biggs said Canadians have always had extremely low food costs but now a combination of factors is pushing those prices up to levels experienced by other countries.

Two main factors are pushing feed costs up, Biggs said: The growing affluence of other countries in the world and adverse weather conditions.

Countries such as Japan, he said, are demanding more and more protein food and thus buying up stock feed.

Feed suppliers have faced adverse conditions in the last year as well.

Something To Cluck About

"It takes 21 days to grow for a chick in the egg," writes Russell, Grade 1 student at Tolmie Elementary School.

"Most chicks live for one or two years. When the chicks hatch they are tired."

Russell and his Grade 1 and 2 classmates have been watching chicken eggs hatch in an incubator in their classroom, and writing about what they have learned.

First chicks emerged from their shells Wednesday.

"First do not yell or the chick will die," writes Chris, in Grade 2. "And don't touch it.

Lucia, in Grade 1, writes: "The mother hen keeps the egg warm so the chick won't get dead."

"A incubator is for chicks to grow in," writes Petra, in Grade 2. "Some people were born in a incubator."

The incubator and the eggs were loaned to the class by Mrs. Daisy Steggles of 57 Cadillac. After a few days in the classroom, the chicks will return to the Steggles' and be tucked under a broody hen.

Next project, said Mrs. Steggles, is to find some frog eggs and show the children how they become tadpoles.

Ad Lib Summit Starts

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Evidence of the underlying discord in French-U.S. relations was seen as President Nixon and President Georges Pompidou began two days of summit talks today. (See also Page 28.)

French officials reported there was not even advance agreement on what topic the two officials would discuss first.

Pompidou wanted to emphasize international monetary problems while Nixon's heart was set on laying down broad new principles and goals for the Atlantic community.

The two were reported today to have discussed problems confronting the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler, while predicting successful meetings, said there are no plans to issue the communique that usually ends such conferences.

The French fear that the United States might use their contribution to the defence of Western Europe as a club to get economic concessions.

Four hours were set aside for formal talks today, with the American and French delegations getting together again in the evening at a dinner given by the Icelandic government.

Some Icelanders were raising discordant notes for the visitors. Several leftist groups planned demonstrations against the continuance of American military operations in Indochina, French nuclear tests in the South Pacific and British fishing in the offshore waters claimed by Iceland.

Ransom Up Every Hour

ORANJESTAD, Aruba (UPI) — Two long-haired masked hijackers, reportedly upping their ransom demands by $50,000 an hour, today held a crippled Colombian airliner with 53 passengers and crew members aboard on this Dutch island while awaiting repairs.

They originally demanded the release of 47 "political prisoners" and payment to them of $200,000 by threatening to blow up the plane and passengers.

The demand was rejected by the Colombian government.

After the hijack the four-engine Electra belonging to the Colombian "Sam" airline landed at Oranjestad for refuelling. The hijackers released 34 passengers and ordered the pilot to fly to Lima.

Airport authorities said the pilot, Capt. Jorge Lucena, and his co-pilot were suffering from exhaustion.

The political affiliation, if any, of the hijackers is not known.

The prisoners whose release they demanded were mainly members of the Castroite Army of National Liberation.

Colombian president Misael Pastrana Borrero and his national security council met for four hours Wednesday night in Bogota after which it was announced the hijackers' demands were rejected because to accept them would mean a "breakdown of juridical order" in the country.

Major Upset At Irish Polls

DUBLIN (AP) — Ireland's voters produced a major upset today and elected Erskine Childers, 68, a Protestant with an English background, to succeed the old revolutionary Eamon de Valera as the republic's next president.

Gold Again Breaks Record

LONDON (UPI) — Gold reached another all-time peak price of $114.75 an ounce in London today.

The metal closed at the record level, up 75 cents per ounce from its close Wednesday.

ICCS Suspends All Meetings

Times News Services

SAIGON — The International Commission of Control and Supervision has come to a complete standstill today following its inability to resolve a deadlock over reports of alleged North Vietnamese infiltration of South Vietnam.

The ICCS suspended all regular meetings of the chiefs of delegations, which means no reports of investigations of truce violations can be formally completed.

Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin said he would assume the commission rotating chairmanship in June but will call no further meetings unless the deadlock over reports can be resolved.

ICCS field teams can still carry out investigations of truce violations which are requested by either the Viet Cong or the South Vietnamese at regional levels. But the results of these will not be forwarded to the two-party Joint Military Commission until the ICCS ambassadors begin meeting again.

Meanwhile, a cutback of 40 per cent has been ordered in B-52 bombing raids over Cambodia, informed U.S. military sources said Wednesday. The order took effect a few days ago.

The huge jets had been averaging about 50 to 60 flights a day over the past three months.

Defence department sources say the reduction in B-52 operations is linked primarily to an attempt to cut down on the mounting costs of the U.S. air operations in Indochina. But they concede privately that there is also an increasing morale problem among B-52 bomber crews at bases on Guam and in Thailand who talk of being "mercenaries" caught up in a war "not in my country's national interest."

Military sources declined to speculate on whether the cutback may be a signal of interest in a negotiated cease-fire in Cambodia at a time when the White House is involved in a new round of discussions with the Communists both in Southeast Asia and in Paris.

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Domestic air travel turned into chaos today as air controllers started a wage protest.

Kingsview as Good as Dead

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

NORTH COWICHAN — The mammoth Kingsview housing project proposed for 505 acres on secluded Maple Bay Road is as good as dead — at least until the municipal elections at the end of this year.

Responding to overwhelming opposition from citizens, North Cowichan council voted unanimously Wednesday to table a decision on a land-use contract sought by Kingsview Properties Ltd.

"There's no way we can approve this land-use contract," stated Mayor Gerry Smith.

Victoria lawyer Ian Stewart, who represented the scheme's opponents at a marathon four-part public hearing earlier this year, predicted that Wednesday's decision by council meant that the subdivision was dead until December.

He told reporters if North Cowichan council planned to approve an altered land-use contract the proceedings could easily be stalled until the municipal elections.

"They (council) approved this land-use contract last year," Stewart said. "To be fair, all they are trying to do now is drop it gracefully."

Mayor Gerry Smith told a crowded council chamber he did not think the matter could be brought back before council for "at least two months."

Aldermen stated that they would like to see development more firmly controlled by the municipality.

North Cowichan administrator Van Decastayen said today he thought the mayor and council would now consider what amendments could be made to the land use contract under discussion.

But a municipal affairs department spokesman said there is a limit to the changes that can be made to a land-use contract that has already been submitted to public hearing.

The Municipal Act states that changes shall not be made which "alter the substance" of the document, the spokesman said.

"In other words, if what the council passes is a different deal altogether from what went to public hearing they'll have to have a new public hearing."

The spokesman said that if the changes made to the contract were more restrictive on the developer it would "count in council's favor."

Decastayen said he thought council could still decide against the land use contract, even after agreed changes, "because it still needs a two-thirds majority."

He said that since planned changes would be more re-

Ferries Seaborne . . . On the Wings of Song

Passengers on B.C. Government Ferry runs this summer will be listening to the strains of various singers, strolling troubadors, accordionists and other musical groups, transportation minister Robert Strachan announced today.

Starting June 25, the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen and Nanaimo-Horseshoe Bay runs will be equipped with musical entertainment for about eight hours a day. About eight groups are to be hired, Strachan said.

The music program follows a successful trial run on the ferries featuring performances by Victoria's George McDowell and The Lads. Other groups are still being auditioned with final selections to be made by June 25.

The program, which will run 11 weeks, is to cost the government between $30,000 and $40,000, Strachan said. The musicians, all from B.C. and all union groups, will be paid wages equivalent to union scale, he said.

At each of the four main ferry terminals, pipers will play bagpipes for eight hours a day, he added.

Strachan said there has been "widespread public approval" of the trial run, with "many phone calls and many comments complimentary."

Flood Control Seen Vital

Preservation of Colquitz River as a flood-control waterway is a vital feature of Saanich's Roy Road housing development, Mayor Hugh Curtis said today.

At a closed meeting of council's housing committee Tuesday, the concept of a lake proposed in connection with the scheme received little attention at the time, said Curtis.

"We are concerned more with preservation of the stream bed," he said, noting about a mile of the Colquitz flows through the Roy Road land.

Municipal planner Tom Loney said it might be possible to design a "water feature" for the project to cover more than 100 acres.

"The lake is like an accessory on an automobile — you can have it or not," the mayor said.

It is Neate's contention that the Panama Flats area of Colquitz basin is best suited for cultivation and grazing cattle, and noted the popularity of preserving agricultural land.

Curtis said the meeting had been held behind closed doors because additional land acquisition was discussed. More than 60 acres have now been added to the project, which is designed to provide under government financing building lots to individuals in the lower-to-middle income range.

A preliminary plan locates various housing types, school and services. Discussions are about to take place between Saanich and Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. technical staff.

No Powder Marks On Shooting Victim

An RCMP firearms expert told B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday there were no gunpowder marks on clothing worn by the victim of an Esquimalt shooting Jan. 23.

Charlie Scarr, 27, of 532 Dallas, was shot in the stomach after an argument at the home of John Howard McGee, 27, of 819 Condor. McGee was charged with attempted murder.

Robert Skolrood, the gun expert, testified that powder marks did not appear on targets more than 18 inches away and there were none on a shirt worn by Scarr at the time of the shooting.

Evidence given earlier in the trial showed that Scarr was standing between four and seven feet from McGee when the shot was fired.

Tests done by Skolrood showed a bullet taken from Scarr's body matched a .38 calibre revolver owned by McGee.

In response to a question by defence counsel Cecil Branson, Skolrood agreed that powder marks could be brushed or scraped off in a struggle.

Esquimalt police Const. Norman Simmons said he arrived at McGee's home and found Scarr lying on the boulevard, "moaning."

strictive the substance of the contract would not be changed.

"I don't think council is planning to have meetings with anyone, including the developers," he said. "If the company doesn't want to accept the contract as amended then they'll have to withdraw."

Kingsview proposes to develop the 505 acres with 1,330 single family houses, plus an area of apartments, a small shopping district, playgrounds, parks and greenbelts. The project has been termed a "satellite town" between Duncan and Maple Bay.

The company paid $277,000 for the land, and claims to have spent $400,000 clearing and planning it, although it is admitted that lumber from the site has been sold.

In December the company and council entered into a land-use contract (authorized by council). In January, a small group of Maple Bay residents expressed concern about many aspects of the development.

More ratepayers from adjoining areas joined the protest and the same month council asked the company, which includes Vancouver magnate Graham Dawson as one of its major financiers, to halt further development.

In February, residents went to court. The B.C. Supreme Court quashed a bylaw which would have authorized council to sign a land-use contract.

The residents' objections deal mainly with the project's threat to thhe rural atmosphere of the area.

A public hearing on the issue began March 8 and lasted 17 hours in four stormy sessions.

temporarily through the B.C. herring industry.

Shortages of soybean meal, largely due to crop failures in the U.S., have increased the price to local manufacturers to $435 a ton, up from $129 a ton last year.

At the Langley conference Ritchie told fellow feed manufacturers B.C. producers pay premiums of from $12 to $25 a ton for Prairie grain because they must buy through the Canadian Wheat Board while Prairie feed men are free to shop around for their supplies.

Alberta wheat has gone from $51 to $89 a ton this year, rapeseed meal from $65 to $180, and meat meal from $118 to $283.

"It isn't our intention to cause alarm, but we want the facts understood by the public," Ritchie said.

"It is an unhealthy situation and it could be disastrous if the necessary price increases cannot be absorbed along the line. And unless there is some dramatic change soon, the crisis will get worse," he said.

"I don't think the provincial government can do anything about it," provincial livestock commissioner J. A. Pelter said today.

He said agriculture in North America has been operating at peak efficiency and with many factors pushing costs up "the only way to deal with it is push prices up."

Echoing Victoria's feed suppliers, Pelter said more countries are competing for the protein foods and stock feed North Americans have always enjoyed, and Canadians will have to accept the inevitability of permanent higher food costs.

In Ottawa, IGA president Harold Knifton predicted food prices should not increase at the same levels as last year and "may soften a bit" in the next six months.

Speaking to reporters after a session in the Commons food price committee, Knifton said food costs seem to be stabilizing after rising 12.9 per cent in the last 12 months. (See also Page 15.)

But despite the increase, he told the committee, food costs are not out-of-line. Wage increases, world and domestic food shortages, inadequate supplies of fresh produce and beef and a rising demand contributed to the rise in costs.

Knifton, and his vice-president M. H. Coulson, of the Toronto-based company, were the first of the big food retailers to appear before the committee.

HOT DOG COMPLAINT NETS DEATH

MONTREAL (UPI) — A young man was stabbed to death early today in a snack bar when he complained his hot dogs were cold.

Police said Denis Deslongchamps, 26, went to Frank's Snack Bar about 1 a.m. to complain that several hot dogs delivered to his home arrived cold. Deslongchamps received a fatal knife wound in the chest in an ensuing argument.

Police are holding three people who were in the restaurant at the time pending a conorner's inquest.

Nixon 'Ordered Meeting'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon personally ordered a White House meeting at which his chief aides instructed the Central Intelligence Agency to intervene in an FBI investigation of the "laundering" of Watergate money through a Mexican bank.

This was the testimony of John Ehrlichman, formerly Nixon's chief adviser on domestic affairs, during a closed hearing Wednesday of the Senate appropriations subcommittee on intelligence operations.

At the time the president was specifically aware that the FBI investigation centred on the channelling of $100,000 of Republican campaign funds through Mexico which were ultimately used to finance operations of his re-election committee, including the Watergate break-in.

So said Appropriations Committee chairman John McClellan and two fellow senators in recapitulating Ehrlichman's two-and-a-half hours of testimony.

Ehrlichman said afterward, however, that he did not know whether the president was aware of the nature of the $100,000 transaction.

Wednesday's session also produced the disclosure by McClellan that CIA director Richard Helms had told former acting FBI director Patrick Gray on June 22, 1972, that the CIA was not implicated in the Watergate scandal and that the FBI investigation in Mexico would not imperil any of its operations.

This is of major significance since top CIA officials have testified that the president's former chief-of-staff, H. R. Haldeman, instructed them at a White House meeting the following day to advise the FBI that agency operations in Mexico would be endangered by the inquiry.

The new testimony also produced a series of contradictions between Ehrlichman and top CIA officials on the role of the White House in dealing with the agency on Watergate-related matters.

Ehrlichman said he had no recollection of making the phone call in July, 1971, which resulted in the CIA's giving technical assistance to Watergate conspirators E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy which was used in the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in early September, 1971.

Former CIA deputy director Gen. Robert Cushman had previously sworn that it was Ehrlichman who ordered the assistance to Hunt.

And it was Helms' testimony that the assistance was grudgingly provided by the agency because of White House insistence.

Meanwhile, it was revealed in New York that the FBI is investigating the possibility Liddy and Hunt, or their associates, broke into the national headquarters of the NAACP'S legal defence fund in Manhattan the same weekend they burglarized the Beverly Hills office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

At that time—Labor Day weekend—lawyers of the fund were involved in several sensitive cases including defence of Black Panther leader Bobby Seale on an aspect of the Chicago Conspiracy trial, and Earl Caldwell, a New York Times reporter who had resisted subpoenas from a San Francisco grand jury investigating the Panthers.

When fund officials returned to their offices on Sept. 7 after the holiday weekend, they said, they found several desks pried open. A file cabinet with a combination lock that contained minutes of board meetings and other materials also had been forced open.

Electronic wizardry has entered another aspect of the case with the report that the senate Watergate committee is setting up a computer system to help untangle the mind-boggling complexity of the affair.

BAR OWNERS TO PAY $1 MILLION

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The owners of a bar have agreed to pay $1.1 million to a man injured in an automobile accident allegedly caused by one of the bar's patrons.

The settlement was approved Wednesday by Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh on the basis of a 1971 state Supreme Court decision which held that bartenders and bar owners are responsible for injuries caused by obviously intoxicated persons they continue to serve.

Attorney Bruce Walkup brought the suit on behalf of Howard Bennett, 62, a former history professor, and his wife Elizabeth. Bennett sustained brain damage in the 1968 crash and has been hospitalized since.

Sea Mine Feared At Zeballos

A helicopter from CFB Comox was searching the west coast of Vancouver Island today, looking for a floating object that could be a sea mine.

The search was ordered after an unidentified man, believed to be an American, reported seeing something in Esperanza Inlet near Zeballos that could have been a mine.

Sgt. L. S. Forbes is leading the explosive, ordinance and demolition team that will deal with the unidentified object when it is spotted.

An armed forces spokesman said today that it could not be confirmed that the object is a mine.

Another spokesman at the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre in CFB Esquimalt said the object could be a buoy that has broken away from its moorings.

THANK-YOU NOTE TO A KILLER

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — Accused mass murderer Edmund Kemper, 24, has received a "thank you" note from President Nixon for volunteer work in the 1972 campaign.

Kemper, after his arraignment in superior court on eight counts of murder, startled newsmen Wednesday when he showed them the form letter on White House stationery. The letter expressed "deep appreciation" for his work and was signed with the president's mimeographed signature.

The note had been forwarded from Kemper's former residence in nearby Aptos to the county jail. He is accused of killing his mother, her best friend and six college co-eds and has served time in a mental institution for slaying his grandparents.

Sheriff Shackled As Family Slain

GARDEN, Mich. (UPI) — The wife and two small sons of a sheriff's deputy died in a fire here today. Three blocks away firemen discovered the deputy, Dennis Murphy, handcuffed to a tractor.

In the area where Murphy was found, a message written in red crayon or lipstick on a large board read I will kill you, Murphy, first your wife and kids.

Authorities in this community of 380 said they had no motive and no suspects.

"The entire area has been cordoned off and state police crime lab experts have been flown in to help us in the investigation," said a spokesman for the Delta County Sheriff's department.

Authorities said Murphy was handcuffed to a tractor behind the town hall.

County prosecutor Tony Marcintewcz said Murphy, who was treated for cuts and bruises at a nearby hospital and released, said someone came to his house, told his wife there was a bad accident and said Murphy should go to the town hall.

Murphy told authorities someone grabbed him from behind when he got out of his car at the hall.

"They grabbed my shirt, threw it over my head and pinned it," he said.

Zambia Cites Sabotage Fear

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Zambia told the United Nations Wednesday that a lone army sentry, fearing that a mission of sabotage against a vital waterworks was underway, shot and killed two Canadians and wounded an American May 15 at the Victoria Falls power station while they were swimming in Zambian waters.

The Zambian government issued a lengthy communique on the incident and planned to circulate it to all members of the UN. It was released by Paul J. F. Lusaka, permanent Zambian delegate to the UN who also is high commissioner to Canada.

The communique said the white-minority Rhodesian government must bear direct responsibility for the deaths of the innocent Canadians because it allowed them to enter a high-tension area.

"The Rhodesian authorities were not only negligent but also showed a reckless indifference to the safety of these innocent persons," the communique said.

Earlier in Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp tabled in the Commons a letter from Zambian Foreign Minister E. H. K. Mudenda blaming Rhodesia for the incident.

But Sharp said Ottawa still wants "an explanation that seems to accord with the facts."

Sharp said a report from A. M. Leith, Canadian deputy high commissioner in Zambia, "doesn't accord with the public statements made by the Zambian authorities."

Mudenda's letter was dated May 28, two days before the communique was issued at the UN.

The communique went into extensive detail backgrounding the various incidents that have led to a near-war between Zambia and Rhodesia, with their common border closed since last Jan. 9.

It was against this backdrop of growing tension in the region, especially on the Zambezi River, that 19-year-old Christine Sinclair of Guelph, Ont., and Marjan Drijber, also 19, of Rockwood, Ont., were killed.

The communique gave this version of the shootings:

At 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 15, an officer of the Zambian army noticed four persons — the wife of the wounded American later fled — who, for all practical purposes, looked like men.

The sentry observed that they were moving at the edge of the water, deep in the Fourth Gorge, where the power station is located.

"They were moving in a single file on the Rhodesian side but towards the bend opposite the power station. The sentry noticed that these four persons were wearing swimming costumes with what appeared to be bandoleers or waterproof gear for protecting explosives.

"The movement of these people and their intense interest in the scenery on the Zambian banks appeared very suspicious."

After reaching the bend one of the persons remained behind while three of them proceeded round it and reached a rock. On reaching the rock where the current appeared to have been slow, the three got into the water and began to swim towards the "silent pool" which is on the Zambian side of the Zambesi.

"As one of them remained behind, the sentry immediately felt that there could have been another group giving cover to the four and therefore had to take the necessary precautions.

From their actions it became evident to him that they were on a mission to attack the power station, which is one of the most vital installations in Zambia and the only one in that area."

In the circumstances "the sentry felt compelled to act swiftly," the report said, adding that he fired on the swimmers in Zambian waters.

"One of them immediately disappeared under the current while the other two struggled against the current towards the Rhodesian banks."

An hour later, the guardsmen noticed only one person was lying on the rock, the other one had disappeared. No further action was taken by them during that day.

The following day they noticed that the body on the rock had disappeared.

A Bomb That Went Phooph

The long-awaited confrontation of Finance Minister Turner and the opposition took place Tuesday, and the explosion that had been predicted on introduction of the controversial bill to reduce corporate taxes did not go boom. Mr. Turner apparently was assured of undisputed tenure of his portfolio, the Liberal government apparently escaped the show-down vote that had been expected to turn it out of office, and Mr. Stanfield apparently lost a chance to marshal a majority vote against the administration that could have precipitated an election and possibly put him in power.

The great struggle — it seems no one really wanted it to take place after all — was avoided by Mr. Turner's neat compromise solution which really conceded nothing. The NDP had long vowed to oppose the measure which would ease the tax burden on corporations and allow a two-year accelerated write-off on machinery and equipment. The Conservatives insisted that the measure should be operative for only one year. Mr. Turner had argued that one year was too short a period to provide any benefit or opportunity for planning by corporations. It appeared that all three immovable posts would fall together.

Mr. Turner, however, proposed Tuesday that, while the bill would not be restricted to one year, a resolution of 60 members next April could bring about a debate on it, and a majority vote then could force the government to amend the measure.

This appeared to Mr. Stanfield to meet his requirements — he claimed, in fact, that Mr. Turner had come round to his way of thinking. Mr. Lewis remains opposed. Mr. Turner appears headed for an easy passage of his bill. And parliamentary observers are assessing the likelihood of Mr. Stanfield waging a tough battle and voting to remove the corporate tax reduction next year. They find the odds short. Mr. Stanfield, in fact, has been in a dilemma, since many corporate Conservative supporters would take a dim view of a move to kill the tax reduction, now or next April.

In the wider view, this little drama played out in the Commons and behind the scenes as well — one, indeed, which had the cabinet split for weeks while strategy was debated — leaves the Liberals with a slightly stronger standing in Parliament, although still with only a two-seat majority. The Conservatives appear to have lost a little stature through the interchange, since in the public eyes they may have given up more than the government after adopting so determined a stand. And the NDP continues as the minority power, still holding the threat of possible governmental defeat in its hands, but perhaps secretly a little nonplussed to find that in a major showdown it hardly counted at all.

A Slightly Tighter Noose

On the basis of second reading of the bill to continue Canada's conditional ban on capital punishment, a majority of Canadians are apparently still opposed to the death penalty. But the division may be less clear than the 138 to 114 vote suggests. Some members have explained that they voted yes on second reading to bring the bill back into committee for study and possible amendment. And a baker's dozen did not vote at all.

This week in parliament 77 more stood up to be counted than recorded their stands when the five-year test period was inaugurated in 1967. Of the 77 total, 44 members were against extension, 33 for.

If this is indicative of sentiment across the nation — and a multiplicity of qualifications must be made to that assumption — there is a harder attitude toward the criminal than formerly.

A number of members want more severe penalties applied for various types of murder — and they want assurance that perpetrators of such crimes will not be liberated at an early date through what is considered too lenient a penal policy. The call for a definite 25-year sentence upon conviction, with no parole before the end of the term, illustrates their attitude.

Recognition by the government of this sentiment is indicated in Solicitor-General Warren Allmand's statement that further consideration is being given to tightening up parole — a development which he appears to believe would win a majority for total abolition of the death penalty.

He may be correct.

Abolitionists may find it wise to wait until the climate is a little more favorable for the vote to eliminate capital punishment entirely.

No death sentences have been carried out in the last decade in Canada and Prime Minister Trudeau has repeatedly noted that capital punishment for killers of policemen and prison guards does not remove the prerogative of clemency. Any sentence can be amended — as a large number have been — by the decision of the cabinet.

After Tito

While speculation is stirred in foreign quarters over a possible successor to President Tito, when he departs, the issue seems irrelevant to the man himself and to many of the political leaders of Yugoslavia. The question, to them, is premature.

Tito is only 81 and remains remarkably vigorous. Since no one in Yugoslavia seems to expect anyone to match his stature, the impression grows that no individual will be selected to take his place — that a joint leadership will ensue.

Strengthening that assumption, in the eyes of some informed observers, is the reported absence of any ambition for personal rule on the part of Edvard Kardelj, Tito's closest, constant and most influential aide since the war.

In the country itself, however, there appears to be less talk of an heir apparent — and an easier assumption of a collective succession — than in the outside world.

JAMES H. GRAY

Why the Prairies Voted 'No'

CALGARY — In the warm-up brainstorming preliminary to the July conference here between Prime Minister Trudeau and the western premiers over western economic development the phrase "forging a power bloc" is being well worked over. The theory being embroidered is that the western premiers are putting together a "power bloc" which will enable the west to match the political muscle Ontario and Quebec have in Ottawa.

All this points up the naivete of the current crop of brain-stormers. The theory presupposes (a) unanimity of purpose and (b) access to the seat of power. Neither is present.

Ontario and Quebec exercise their political muscle on the throttle of power because they have elected members who dominate the cabinet. They have a secondary access to influence because their elected back-benchers dominate the Liberal party caucus. The prairie people are notorious for turning in scorn from opportunities to do either.

Unanimous Questions

The western provinces have agreed that they will only talk to Mr. Trudeau about questions on which they have reached unanimity. So far they are reported to have agreed on freight rates, the need for secondary industry and the general problem of outmoded and inadequate transportation facilities on the prairies. All are vital to the future prosperity of the west but they had very little to do directly with the result of the October Liberal disaster.

The conference is the outgrowth of the shattering impact on the prime minister of that election result. He was so shaken by the total rejection of his government west of the Lakehead that he called the palaver to listen to the west to find out why we had reacted so angrily toward his free-spending administration.

The first flaw in the structure of the conference is that he will be listening to a covey of provincial premiers, not to the million of electors who spurned his advances. Mr. Trudeau might well grant all their demands in spades and still take his lumps at the next election.

Realistically, the beginning of understanding for Mr. Trudeau will be when he recognizes that there is no "western Canada." There are four provinces, utterly different from each other physically, climatically, economically and psychologically. And within each category are groups united only in mutual antagonism. The coarse grain producers and the cattle producers are an example. The pro Wheat Boarders and the anti Wheat Boarders are another.

The provincial governments themselves are frequently at loggerheads. Premier Peter Lougheed's two-price natural gas system is anathema to Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba. Manitoba and British Columbia have been locked in battle over eggs, of all things.

B.C. is an expensive place in which to raise chicken feed which makes egg-raising a high-cost business. The province has an egg marketing board to keep prices high enough to satisfy the chicken farmers. Manitoba raises chicken feed more cheaply than anybody. Its farmers have been flooding their cheap eggs into B.C. where the marketing board has been seizing them. This despite NDP administrations in both provinces.

PIERRE TRUDEAU
. . . nothing personal

Each might ask the other: Is that any way for one NDP government to behave toward lodge brothers? The answer might be a resounding "no" but as Comrade Stalin once noted in another context, the logic of things is more potent than ideological theory.

There is a saying in the west that only fools or newcomers ever hazard a guess about what the weather will be like tomorrow. The same could be applied to people who try to explain why prairie people vote the way they do. The only certainty is that they get out of step with the rest of the country at the slightest provocation and have been out of step most of the time for the last 50 years. It was just 52 years ago that they rose in anger and sent 39 neophyte "progressives" to fill 39 of the area's 45 seats in Parliament.

Alberta, from that moment forward, has seldom sent more than a corporal's guard to the government benches, regardless of what party was in power. In Manitoba and Saskatchewan the return of allegiance to the Grits or Tories was never more than half-hearted until John Diefenbaker rode onto the scene. Indeed, a sound thesis can be developed that the prairie voters have developed a mania for cutting themselves off from the seats of political power for the last half century.

There was nothing personal in the rejection of Mr. Trudeau. In the five elections preceding last October the best Liberals did was in 1968 when they managed 11 members out of 48 seats. Previously they had elected nobody in 1958, two in 1962; three in 1963 and one in 1965. The prairies got into step in the Diefenbaker years, and have continued to "follow John" long after his eviction from power and party leadership.

They have done so despite the fact that all the "issues" still troubling the prairies were already long in the tooth. The Conservatives did nothing about freight rates. They did nothing to break the prairies out in a rash of secondary industry. They did nothing to decentralize the Ottawa administration.

Many Reasons

The prairies, Mr. Trudeau can be reassured, were not disenchanted with him in October because even at the height of Trudeaumania their enchantment with him was as thin and as ephemeral as Lake Winnipeg fish flies. Nor did what happened to him have much to do with "issues."

The rebuff was an amalgam of a thousand factors, only a few of which were issue-orientated, as the pundits say. There was, of course, the merry-go-round wheat policy. There was that incredible charade — the Prices and Income Commission. There was the policy of creating unemployment to fight inflation. There was the unemployment insurance mess. There was the Benson mudpie of so-called taxation reform.

But what bugged the prairie voters is what has always bugged them: being ignored. Being ignored while Ottawa worried itself sick over Ontario problems like the autopac; over Quebec problems like separatism. Being ignored while being inflicted by financial policies devised by the mandarin mafia; being ignored by the heavy-handed and incredibly clumsy bilingual program. Being ignored by Air-Canada, by the CBC, by the Transport Commission and the Canada Council.

Not Ready for a New Charter

PARIS — Henry A. Kissinger's latest Paris visit for the old familiar reason of still more Vietnam talks had an interesting by-product. He discovered that although Europeans were far less alarmist than the vast majority of Americans about the international implications of Watergate, Europe nevertheless really didn't think too much of his Easter Monday speech urging a "new Atlantic Charter."

Since Kissinger was geographically limited to France on this journey, naturally these impressions were conveyed to him in French political accents. But French diplomacy, it may be assumed, has been actively sounding out the views of its Common Market partners on these subjects.

Watergate Secondary

Although in terms of current events Watergate, of course, is the obsessive interest of the United States nowadays, in terms of history, developing Western relationships may transcend it in importance. Certainly, with the exception of so-called Paris intellectuals and a limited segment of the media, the flaming American political scandal has stirred relatively restrained interest here and no alarm.

The government view in this capital is that Watergate hasn't had the slightest effect on U.S.-French relationships. Preparations continued calmly for the Nixon-Pompidou meeting in Iceland. France feels that the American government is continuing to function as usual and to deal with enormous questions.

For France, this alone is what counts. Moreover, although it plays no part in the assessment, there is a certain sympathy for President Nixon in ruling circles. He has always been regarded as pro-French and pro-Gaullist with excellent personal ties to President Pompidou.

This being said, it is evident that France — and here it feels that similar views are shared elsewhere in Western Europe — was unhappy with both the method and the message of the Kissinger speech last month. This attitude has in no sense been kept from Kissinger himself.

There is no conjecturing here (as in some American quarters) that the speech was linked to Watergate as an attempt to divert public attention from that growing scandal. But there is a feeling that it was produced in a surprisingly maladroit way.

There had been no advance consultation between Washington and its allies,

PRESIDENT POMPIDOU

nor even the faintest advance intimation that an important message of particular concern to Europe was forthcoming. Consequently, this inspired a suspicion that the ideas outlined by Kissinger had been prepared, put on paper, and carried about for weeks before being suddenly sprung upon the world. This was and is resented, as much as Kissinger is admired on this side of the ocean.

Many Europeans were thus startled by the abruptness, if not brutality, of approach. And, beyond this, there is a widespread sentiment that the timing of the actual message was as awkward as the means of conveying it. West Europe feels there is no point in now starting a grand new negotiation which must ultimately affect the political shape of things to come and which involves questions of defence, trade and monetary policy.

From the European viewpoint, as it has apparently been explained to Kissinger in courteous but direct terms, it is useless to embark on any of these subjects until a settlement — or at least a temporary solution — is first agreed upon for the continuing monetary crisis. After all, it is argued, until everyone knows what respective currencies are really worth, it is impossible even to calculate costs for military arrangements or commercial exchanges.

There isn't the slightest doubt that this will be stressed by President Pompidou. From a European standpoint, it is the primordial point facing all countries with free currencies. It is therefore the cardinal topic of every contemporary summit except those involving Brezhnev, whose ruble is seen as subject only to arbitrary and artificial controls.

Currency Talks

Willy Brandt discussed the matter at length with Nixon. Prime Minister Heath has just been discussing it at length with Pompidou. And the latter has every intention of again discussing it at length with his American peer.

To sum up, the curious aspect of the wholly unexpected scandal which is steadily undermining Nixon's position in the United States is that it has had no serious repercussion on relations between the United States and European governments, nor on current events that were supposed to inaugurate Nixon's "European year." What has had a far more serious effect, to date, is the steady decline in the American economic and monetary position to which this region is willynilly tied.

Editorial Correspondence

End of Canada?

Most people in B.C. were thrilled when one of the first acts of the Barrett government was to restore the Trans-Canada signs on our main highway and thus indicate symbolically an intention to rejoin the rest of the country. Hence it is all the more incomprehensible that Premier Barrett should permit the attempt now being made to keep Manitoba eggs out of British Columbia. What would we think if another province banned the importation of Okanagan apples or other produce?

If our national government had any guts it would stop this nonsense in short order for it is in clear violation of our Constitution, Article 121 of which, reads "All Articles of Growth, Produce, or Manufacture in any one of the Provinces shall, from and after the Union, be admitted free to each of the other Provinces."

It does not take much imagination to see that if this Article is allowed to fall into disuse, it is the end of Canada as we have known it, and we become, not the Union provided for in our Constitution, but a loose federation of competing states with no central authority worthy of the name.—F. L. P. Anderson, 1900 Mayfair Drive.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of May 31, 1913:

Plans for the new town hall were submitted to Esquimalt council today by architect Thomas D. Sedger. The building will be situated on the south side of Esquimalt Road, between Fraser Street and Admiral's Road. The plans call for a stone foundation and a frame structure of two and a half storeys with a basement. The cost is estimated between $12,000 and $15,000. The first door on the right of the front entrance will lead to the city clerk's office. Behind it, extending to the rear of the building, will be the general office and vault. The police station will be in the back left-hand corner, with the lockup in the basement. Council chamber will occupy the entire front portion of the second floor.

Pathetic Games Played by Fans

By JACK CAVANAUGH
Reuter

NEW YORK — Waving a small American flag, a heavy-set man about 40 leaned over the railing at Madison Square Garden and threw the contents of his paper beer container to the floor below.

His aim was bad, however, and the beer missed its target: members of the Soviet Unions' national basketball team.

Meanwhile, as the Russian players, spared a shower of beer, ran onto the court for their warm-up drill, the Garden reverberated with boos.

It was a strange way to "welcome" a visiting national sports team. But it was only the beginning — the beginning of the most chauvinistic display of bad "sporting" manners ever displayed in Madison Square Gardens, the world's best-known sports arena.

As the game progressed — and the booing and catcalls grew in intensity — it made more than a few people wonder if the six-game series between the national teams of the United States and the Soviet Union was really worthwhile, while.

Certainly the series — marked by rough, and at times dirty play — was devoid of good sportsmanship on the part of some of the players, the coaches and, particularly the spectators viewing the games in Los Angeles, San Diego, Albuquerque, Indianapolis, New York and Baltimore.

Not that all of the fans were guilty of ultra-nationalistic behavior. A distinct minority cheered good shots, clever psswork and adriot defence by the Russians. But they were usually drowned out by the majority, which booed every Soviet basket and cheered hysterically whenever the U.S. scored, a Russian committed a foul or a Soviet player threw the ball way.

Had the U.S. not been beaten by the U.S.S.R. in the highly-controversial basketball final at Munich last summer, the crowds, more than likely, would not have been as vitriolic and bloodthirsty. After all, the Russians had made a similar tour in 1971, winning seven of eight games, without encountering such fierce antipathy.

Since the U.S. won the New York game (in overtime), most of the 15,000 fans viewed the result as a glorious victory — one to be savored for months to come.

"Damn it, we got even with them Reds, didn't we," exulted Dennis Buttaculli of Jersey City.

"You're damned right, I wanted revenge for Munich," screamed Joe Quinn of the Bronx, "and we got it."

Their comments typified the crowd's reaction.

Throughout the game — as had been the case to a lesser degree at other stops on the tour — cries of "dirty rotten Commies" and "lousy Reds," and worse were directed at the Russian players. Similar epithets were hurled at the two officials (who were from Finland and Argentina) by flag-waving fans.

It could have been worse, but it wasn't, because, for the first time in memory, security men searched bags and briefcases as spectators entered the Garden, turning away anyone with bottles, eggs and other potential missiles.

More than just a few observers thought it strange — if not indeed peculiar — that the American hosts did not arrange for more contact — off the court, that is — between the U.S. and Soviet players. As it was, apart from an informal get-together after the final game in Baltimore, the squads did not mingle at all.

PHILADELPHIA — A new work by Rockne Krebs has been on view over the streets of this city. It is not just beautiful, it is important. For Krebs, who works with lasers, has found a way of making monumental urban sculpture viable again.

How sad it is to see the aging statues sprinkled through this city. They once seemed large as life, or larger, but they seem so no longer. Not just in Philadelphia, but in a hundred other cities, the once-proud statues on the street look as if they've died.

It is he city that has killed them. The Statue of Liberty survives, protected by her ocean, and the Washington Monument is defended by a sea of grass, but where the city pushes in the monuments seem lost. Encased within our cars, obedient to the traffic lights, we move too fast to see them. Our cities are too big, too busy, all sculpture seems too small.

Krebs' work is huge. It extends for more than a mile, from the Philadelphia Museum of Art to city hall. It succeeds because it is not made of steel, or of bronze or plastic. It is made of light.

Krebs has placed two glowing lines of emerald light above the tree-fringed Benjamin Franklin Parkway that connect those two formal, monumental buildings. Those light lines are not made of the sort of light we're used to, but of laser beams, far brighter, more coherent, then anything we see in the natural world at night.

Though weightless and insubstantial, they manage to wholly dominate their visual competition. For the solidity of the city, its blocks and blocks of buildings, its tall, imposing towers, its cars, its sights, its trees, all vanish every night in darkness. We only see those buildings because of their illuminated rooms. Those trees are only silhouettes, those cars just moving tail lights and head lights. Krebs has built his sculpture of the substance of the city. "The city at night is light," he says.

The Philadelphia Museum of Art is a sprawling Grecian temple placed upon a hill. Two Argonion two-watt lasers have been installed between the fluted columns of its eastern entrance. The beams of light that they emit are not aimed directly down the parkway. They are first bounced about by mirrors, two mounted on twin flagpoles, two on the facade, so that they describe within the air a geometrical configuration, a horizontal glow of light that hovers weightlessly above the museum's fountained terrace. The beams have been reflected twice before they begin their journey to the tower of city hall.

In rain, each tiny droplet that passes through those beams becomes a tiny mirror; at other times each speck of floating dust they touch becomes a tiny emerald. Though it comes from the museum, Krebs' structure does not announce itself in any way as art.

Nor does it need to be protected by the implications of that word. On the evening it was first installed, Krebs and David Katzive, the museum official who commissioned it, drove together underneath the beams, down the formal parkway, to see those two green spots of light caressing city hall. An elderly man, a stranger, was standing there at city hall gazing in astonishment at the lights that came from the museum. When Krebs and Katzive then returned to the museum, they met the man again, staring at the light above him, climbing the museum steps. "It's like walking into heaven," the stranger said.

Philadelphia is a city of wide avenues, a city planned on purpose. Krebs' piece, called "Sky Bridge Green," may seem to have no precedent, but in many ways it celebrates the same linear geometrics, the same respect for monumental urban order that guided Maj. Pierre l'Enfant when he planned the diagonal avenues and formal spaces of Washington D.C., where Krebs lives.

Both the lines of light of Rockne Krebs and the avenues laid out by Pierre l'Enfant bring order to the chaos of the city. With those floating lines of green above them, all those traffic lights and tail lights and illuminated signs, that jumble of small lights on that Philadelphia street somehow becomes a set of visual references and rhymes.

"Sky Bridge Green" is not the first enormous outdoor work of art that has been installed in Philadelphia by a Washington artist. As they leave the Philadelphia museum, those laser beams pass over "Franklin's Footpath," a painting of multicolored stripes by Gene Davis that is 414 feet long and 8 lanes of traffic wide "Franklin's Footpath," which has been painted on the street at the foot of the museum's hill, was also commissioned by David Katzive.

Krebs' work, though vast, was not expensive. It was made with rented lasers. The artist took no fee. His piece was paid for by the Greater Philadelphia Cultural Alliance, an organization of museums, orchestras, dance groups, zoos and scientific institutions, whose May-long festival is a sort of unofficial dry run for the city's bicentennial celebration.

Nixon's Sandbagged Oval Office Gets Optimist in John Connally

By WILLIAM SHAWCROSS
The New Statesman

WASHINGTON — In his "The President must accept the responsibility but I won't take the blame" speech, Richard Nixon pointed out that important matters were being ignored because of Watergate. True. One of them is what he is doing to the Cambodians.

America is now bombing Cambodia more heavily and carelessly than ever. Some spokesmen maintain that the bombing is "for peace" but the secretary of defence admits that a ceasefire would be disastrous, if, as it almost certainly would, it restored a neutralist or leftist government in Phnom Penh and thus allowed the North Vietnamese the same rights of passage through Cambodia as they had under Sihanouk.

Cambodians are being destroyed by both sides — by the Americans simply in order to save the tatters of "honor" in Nixon's "peace" in Vietnam.

But it hardly makes the news at all. We are all mesmerised by the muddy waters swirling ever higher and ever closer to the sandbagged doors of the Oval office behind which sits a President who claims that it was only in March he learned how serious the Watergate affair was. How deep and how rough and how dirty the final flooding will be everyone wonders, but no one really knows.

John Connally thinks it won't be very deep or very rough or very long lasting and he may be right. John Connally is a very brilliant politician. That was why he chose last week, one of the president's loneliest ever, to announce his long-awaited switch from the Democrats to the Republicans.

"One of the few known cases of a rat actually joining a sinking ship," said a Democrat Congressman. But his boarding can only boost the morale of both captain and skeleton crew — and for that John Connally expects suitable reward.

Repeating his ritual denial of presidential ambitions the Conservative Texan remarked coyly: "We all serve in different ways, John Milton said they also serve who only stand and wait. Hopefully that's the role I can play." But everyone knows he doesn't expect to wait beyond 1976.

Bob Haldeman and Robert Vesco both wanted to see Richard Nixon re-elected last year, but they had little else in common. They represent two completely different kinds of political corruption. The one had a straightforward thirst for executive power (for his employer before himself), the other for financial gain.

John Connally, on the other hand, appears to combine the two tastes in equal and apparently unslakeable proportions.

He has great charisma, this large and handsome Texan, and Nixon himself is said to be quite spellbound by him. His presence, his humor, his articulateness, his unbounded self-confidence, his overpowering charm — all are characteristics which the President admires, covets and lacks.

But they do have some similarities. Like Nixon, Connally is a poor boy made very good by dint of hard work. Both of them are supremely political animals devoted to self and other "traditional American virtues."

Unlike Connally, Nixon has never shown an inordinate craving for money, but he had always demonstrated great regard for those who do, and Big John is no exception.

In Texas the way both to political power and to money is through oil. Connally worked his way through law school and came first to politics in the late Forties by attaching himself to Lyndon Baines Johnson. In the early Fifties he came to money by catching the fancy of oil tycoon Sid Richardson.

He was already earning around $40,000 a year from Richardson's affairs alone when the millionaire died in 1959, and Connally netted at least another $500,000 executing his will. Today he is said to charge at least $50,000 of any firm that wants his name simply to engrave on its stationery.

His oil and LBJ connections helped make him Secretary of the Navy under Kennedy, but after less than a year he returned to Texas to run, successfully for governor. He was wounded by one of the bullets that killed the President in Dallas the following year and easily won re-election in 1964 and 1966.

All the time he amassed more money, extended his holding to cover 7,000 acres and 14,000 head of cattle and moved further to the Right.

In 1968 he commented on Martin Luther King's assassination: "However much some people might feel that Dr. King contributed to the chaos and confusion in this country, he did not deserve this fate."

His position in the 1968 election was at best ambiguous. He disliked Humphrey and in mid-October he met at the Sheraton Dallas Hotel to discuss with a number of Southern Democrats and Republicans how best to help Nixon win. He agreed to allow his name to be used in soliciting funds and endorsements but said that he would have to pay "lip service" to Humphrey, the leader of his own party.

When, in the last days of the election, Humphrey crept up the polls, Connally's lips began to move rather faster than his friends had expected. Anxious not to destroy his credit with a possible Democrat Administration, he appeared at several rallies with Humphrey. This was said to have cost him the immediate cabinet job which Nixon had reportedly promised him in return for his neutrality, but he had to wait only two years before Nixon made him Secretary of the Treasury.

The appointment was partly to neutralize, if not win, Texas's 26 electoral votes in 1972, partly a component of Nixon's grand strategy to create a new Republican majority by seducing away from the Democrats organized labour and the Southern wing of the party whose philosophy is so nearly Republican anyway, and partly because Connally is without doubt a formidable politician.

"I'll support any side of any argument the President wants" he grinned after taking office, and he did. In February 1971 he promised that wage controls would never be introduced without a specific mandate from Congress. When, that August, they nevertheless were, he explained, in a manner worthy of Ron Ziegler: "What was reality six months ago is not reality today. What is reality today will not be reality tomorrow. It will be history."

The Processing of Kids

RUSSELL BAKER

We started school back in the Middle Eisenhower Period, toddlers' paws in ours, crossing at the marked intersection under the stern benignity of good Officer Riley, who was doomed a dozen years later to become bad pig cop to a lot of those kids — we always called them kids then — to whom he taught survival. The nineteen-sixties were lurking out there, though we didn't suspect it, of course, never guessed at the future of hair, grass, Beatles, cop hate, Vietnam, televised state murders waiting out there in the future to shame us and shape the people our toddlers were going to become.

We didn't suspect then that they were going to become people. That was something else we had to learn, and the learning was hard, because — well, they were kids. In the Middle Eisenhower Period kids were really the point of life.

We were all young then, if I recall correctly. "Young marrieds" we were called, and we had "kids," and we enjoyed "togetherness," just as young marrieds and kids. Pregnancies were as common-place as Volkswagens are now.

And you went to cookouts with other young marrieds, a lot of them pregnant, and burned beefsteak, drank martinis and talked about the kids.

So we were primed for school. Slim, young, unwrinkled about the eyes, unfallen about the waist, undisillusioned about the nature of happiness, we gave our kids to schools at the ages of 5 and 6, with achievement-minded parents pushing 4-year-olds to start cutting the mustard in nursery school, get a jump on admission into Vassar, Yale, Radcliffe.

I think — this has been a long time ago, remember, but I think we expected school only to process those kids — that is, swell them a bit in size and add social poise without really changing them from kids, the point of our lives, into something alarming, as school did. They were fated to become people, alas, and they did it without our even noticing for the longest while.

Later, when the famous sixties began to get brutal, we discovered it with shock or sadness mostly, I suppose. "Look what they've done to our kids!" we must have screamed silently. "They've turned them into ordinary, disagreeable, impossible people just like everybody else!"

We were so distracted by what had happened to the kids that we failed to notice that we young marrieds had also become something else. A lot of us probably took longer to discover that than to learn that our kids had been led away by pipers. Electric guitarists, to update the myth.

★ ★ ★

We had lost track of time's pace in that struggle to get the kids safely through school, securely honor-rolled, safely S.A.T.'ed. Firmly admitted into Harvard for a secure future which would recapitulate our own eternal young-marriedhood.

School had subtly aged us. It worked silently, like carbon monoxide in a closed garage, taking the life out of us without giving us the slightest reason for suspicion. It is hard to explain the process.

We met Dick, Jane, Sally and Spot with tolerant amusement at first, but those who had three or four kids — and who didn't in those days? — must have begun to age quickly on second and third meeting, particularly since the oldest kid by that time would have moved on to "new math."

We discovered too late that American education had decayed since our own experience of it. Teaching of mathematics seemed to be left entirely to parents. Teaching of Latin had ceased entirely, so that the teaching of English, which had never been very good anyhow, had become almost impossible.

As those dear toy kids, the point of our lives, moved ahead into uncharted depths of pedagogical incompetence, we with dreams of our eternal kids going on to the great expense-account colleges in order to become tremendous college-trained kids worthy of us young marrieds — we sensed it all slipping away. The schools couldn't even teach them to spell, much less parse a sentence, frame a paragraph, distinguish Hector from Achilles.

We gritted our teeth, cursed those teachers, drove those kids, and aged. Meanwhile, back at the schoolhouse, the sophomore class spent afternoons sappy on marijuana in the French class.

By the late nineteen-sixties, when the first wave of the kids was finishing high school, we young marrieds knew all right — boy, did we know! — that the kids had turned into people. Now, this week at our house, the last of the people who used to be our kids is finishing high school, and most of us who will sit there in the heat for the last commencement speech know the rest of the truth.

We young marrieds have become somebody else, too. We feel it in the knees when we start to stand after sitting too long, which, like the wheezing and lower martini capacity, is discouraging. The better side of the coin compensates for that. Whoever we are now, most of us have probably learned that it is better to have people than kids, that people, in fact, are much easier to live with, once you grow up and quit screaming at them for not being kids anymore.

Freeze Exemption Method Bared

The provincial government has instructed the province's municipalities on how to go about dealing with preservation of agricultural land and appeals to exempt specific areas from the existing province-wide farmland freeze.

A letter sent by the environment and land use committee of the cabinet to each regional district in the province specifies the procedure by which municipalities and regional districts are to handle appeals.

Until recently, appeals have been on a lot-by-lot basis. The letter asks that blanket appeals be made for specific areas, with background information supplied to justify the request for exemption from the land freeze.

The letter, signed by Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich, Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer, Resources Minister Bob Williams and Land Commission Chairman William Lane, says many appeals for exemption have been approved, some rejected outright and others denied pending establishment of agricultural reserves as specified under the Land Commission Act.

The committee requests maps from those municipalities which decide to appeal, showing existing farmland areas, developed areas and those areas for which exemption is requested.

The letter says processing of these appeals should avoid "any artificial shortages of land or inflated prices for housing."

Maps to be supplied by the department of agriculture will assist the municipalities and regional districts in developing their appeals.

The cabinet committee is also setting up meetings with municipal representatives through June and July at which time draft boundaries drawn up for the proposed agricultural reserves will be discussed. The first meetings will be held on Vancouver Island during the week of June 11.

"The broad allocation of land and resources is a critical concern throughout the province," the letter says.

OPEN HOUSE AT DOCKYARD

The dockyard of CFB Esquimalt will be open to the public June 9 from noon to 5 p.m. to mark Armed Forces Day.

Visitors will tour the destroyer-escort HMCS St. Croix, inspect the submarine HMCS Rainbow, see HMCS Gatineau in the drydock and visit one of the major ship repair buildings on the base.

Children will be treated to Jack Stay transfer rides and time on a Toonerville trolley.

TIME ON A Toonerville trolley.

Sky divers will jump, trailing smoke, and land near the Canadian Forces Warrant Officers' School.

Other highlights will be a fire tug display, harbor tours in YFP (Yard Ferry Personnel boats), military bands and marching units.

Military police will be on hand to direct visitors to the parking area opposite Yarrows on Esquimalt Road and a shuttle bus service will take them from there to the main gate.

This year's Armed Forces Day is being co-ordinated by Cmdr. Albert Fassie and will give people a chance to see one of the largest military bases in Canada.

The base was originally opened as a Royal Navy establishment in 1865.

It now employs 4,950 servicemen and 3,000 civilians with a gross payroll, supply and equipment budget of about $70 million a year.

Ads First—Pay Later BBB Tells Business

Paying for advertisements in publications before they are printed and circulated is not good business practice, the manager of Victoria's Better Business Bureau said Tuesday.

Bill Tindall was asked to comment on reports a man is soliciting local firms to place ads in a biography of western pioneers which is supposed to be published next year.

Tindall said several companies have inquired about such solicitations. Apparently there is a clause in the ad contracts which says publication will be next year unless prevented by unforeseen circumstances.

"We're suggesting there be no payment (for the ads) before there is proof of publication and circulation."

Tindall said there is also a similar type of promotion from Edmonton involving a child safety guide under way locally as there has been for several years.

Firms are being asked to advertise in the guide but the BBB manager said he has yet to see a copy of the publication.

Ottawa Paying Half on Welfare

The federal government has agreed to pay 50 per cent of the cost of B.C.'s new welfare rates and guaranteed income supplement plan which go into effect Friday, Human Resources Minister Norman Levi said Wednesday.

At the same time, Levi said the province will pay more money for rental accommodation for welfare recipients who are not able to pay the total rentals themselves.

Levi unveiled the new rates in April during the legislative session. They provide monthly increases in the basic welfare rate of $38 for individuals and up to $104 for some families.

Under the terms of the Canada Assistance Plan, Levi said, the federal government will pay 50 per cent of the costs of the new rates. The senior government will also go half way on the costs of the guaranteed income supplement, which is intended to help the "working poor" of the province by bringing their monthly incomes to the same level as that of welfare recipients.

Costs of the total package are not known. Levi said B.C.'s 35 per cent share of the increased welfare rates alone will run to about $10 million or $11 million. The remaining 15 per cent share for the increased rates is paid by the municipalities.

How many families and individuals will apply for the income supplement program is not known and so costs to each level of government cannot be computed at this time.

But Levi's announcement that Ottawa will pick up its 50 per cent share of each phase of the new welfare program will result in a saving to the province which the government could not count on previously. Levi said the federal position was made clear after a series of meetings held in Victoria recently with representatives of the federal government.

The guaranteed income supplement plan will work in this way:

An individual or family which is making less money than would be available to them through welfare payments will be able to make application to their local welfare office.

A standard means test will determine their financial status. If they are ruled eligible, the individual or family will receive from the government the difference between what they receive from employment and what they would receive from welfare payments.

An example is a husband and wife with four children. On welfare, the family would receive $445. But if the father makes the minimum wage and is able to bring home only $317 per month, he may apply to the government for the difference, which in this case would be $128.

Basic welfare rates under the new system will be as follows, with the old rates in brackets: one person, $140 ($102); family of two, $250 ($169); family of three, $300 ($212); family of four, $350 ($255); family of five, $400 ($298); family of six, $445 ($341); family of seven, $485 ($384).

The increased assistance for rentals comes about through an increase in the percentage the provincial government will pay of additional rental costs for welfare recipients.

Included in the basic welfare payments is an amount supposedly used for accommodation. This amount for housing varies from $120 per month for families of two to $180 per month for families of seven.

If a family is only able to find accommodation at a rental cost above that allowed for in its welfare payment, the extra cost is referred to as an "overage." Under the new system, the provincial government will pay 75 per cent of that overage, where it had been proposed previously that the government would pay only 50 per cent.

To take the family of six as an example again, its basic welfare payment of $445 per month contains an allowance of $170 per month for rental accommodation. The family is able to find accommodation at a cost of $210, however, making an additional cost of $40 per month.

Under thie new plan, the provincial government will pay 75 per cent of that additional cost, or $30. Previously, it would have paid $20. The rest of the additional cost is borne by the family and must come out of money which would normally go to other expenditures such as food or clothing.

An additional benefit to the working poor which Levi said he wanted to make available was provision for earning exemptions of $50 or $100 per month, for those people who work as well as collect welfare payments. However, federal government agreement was not achieved on this provision and it will be shelved until it is approved, Levi said.

The exemption for earnings allows recipients of welfare to earn $50 per month on their own and still receive the full basic welfare payment on top of it. The earning exemption for families is $100.

Levi wanted to extend this privilege to the working poor, making the level to which they would be supplemented somewhat higher than it is based on straight welfare payments, but Ottawa disagreed.

Levi also said Wednesday that the municipalities which are required to pay 15 per cent of the cost of the straight welfare payments, will not be required to pay any part of the cost of the new income supplement plan.

And Levi said discussions with the municipalities on how to offset their welfare costs will continue, with the basic idea being that the municipalities provide such "core services" as information centres in lieu of welfare payments.

Levi said there will be a review done of the new system in December, before he goes to Ottawa again for a meeting of provincial welfare ministers. He said he is hopeful of further extending the level of Ottawa's participation that time.

The minister also said the new rates of welfare payments will be the highest in Canada.

Divorce Eased

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Two persons who agree that their marriage has gone sour soon will be able to obtain a divorce in Connecticut without a long court battle. Under a new law effective Oct. 1, a state Superior Court judge may dissolve the marriage of two persons who agree in writing to a settlement. No hearing will be needed in such cases.

Spanner-in-Works Court-Martial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — For the first time since the Second World War, a U.S. serviceman is being court-martialed for "sabotage in time of war."

A navy judge ordered fireman Patrick Chenoweth, 21, to stand trial on charges of dropping a paint scraper and two 12-inch bolts into the reduction gears of the carrier USS Ranger's No. 4 engine last summer.

The bolts snapped off the teeth of the huge gears, causing $800,000 damage that took three and one-half months to repair and prevented the Ranger's scheduled return to Vietnamese waters.

Warranties Probe Urged

By ROB BULL
Times Quebec Bureau

QUEBEC — Alex Macdonald, attorney-general of British Columbia, told an interprovincial conference today that governments will have to become concerned with product warranties and guarantees, as well as product quality.

"One of the best kept secrets in the western world," he said at the conference on corporate and consumer affairs, "is the nutritional value of breakfast cereals.

"How many Canadian husbands have suffered on ladders on what appears to be some kind of built-in failure of light bulbs to last?"

Macdonald suggested that governments may need to become involved in the testing of certain common products, publishing the results of these tests so the public is aware of the quality of their purchases.

He caused a stir earlier Wednesday when he appeared at the national assembly in the kilt. But he was more soberly dressed in a business suit for the opening of the conference.

He said B.C. has passed legislation preventing the implied warranties contained in the sales of goods from being disclaimed.

"The second step is to ensure that manufacturers' warranties say what they mean and mean what they say. We have to get away from gilt-edged pieces of paper that mean little.

"Manufacturers tend to hide behind the musty old commonlaw rules about privacy of contract.

"We need to abolish the doctrine as it applies to consumer warranties.

"At the moment, in Canada, there are procedural difficulties standing in the way of consumers bringing suit against a manufacturer. The consumer must sue the retailer who in turn may join in the action the party who is next in the contractual chain.

Macdonald also criticized the growing spread of personal information available to companies on individuals through employment applications and credit reports.

"There's such a multipleicity of this sort of activity in Canada," he said, "that we don't need a Watergate here. Most of the information is already freely available.

"Because this information could be misused, we want to see certain standards set.

"We live in a credit economy. To prevent, or to at least lessen the number of overcommitted debtors, credit granters need to be able to determine the credit worthiness of their customers.

"Complaints which we are receiving, however, indicate that voluntary guidelines set by the credit information bureaus may be good as far as they go but they may not go far enough.

DULL, DOUR THAT'S ME: STANFIELD

TORONTO (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield Wednesday sketched a verbal portrait of himself and then explained his party's stance in Parliament.

He started by indicating to a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner that he intends to remain national leader of the party for some time to come.

The party leader, for the "next decade or so," will be "this dour, unexciting, stubborn fellow, Stanfield," he said.

"And, I guess I ought to add to that description of myself the accusation that I am also power-hungry, which makes me not only dull, but dangerous."

Perhaps it was by clever propaganda that he had been given the image of the power-seeking, office-hungry politician clamoring for an election, he added. However, it was Prime Minister Trudeau who had been saying that unless the opposition supplied the government with a majority, there would be an election.

To have promised the government unconditional support would have created more friends, especially among Liberals, said Stanfield.

"But to have done so would have been to betray the trust of the Canadian people who support us," he added.

"And, quite frankly, it would make practising law in Halifax a lot more attractive to me than playing that kind of politics in Ottawa."

Stanfield said he is power-hungry to the same extent that business people are profit-hungry. They were out to make profits, within the law, and he was out to gain office, within constitutional and democratic means.

However, desire for power would not take precedence over principle.

"We will never . . . vote against principle for the sake of expediency, either to defeat this government or to keep it in office."

In spite of many temptations and provocations, the Conservatives have provided constructive, effective and principled opposition in Parliament, he said.

Sharp Backs U.S. Plan For Mideast

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp vouched government support Wednesday for a U.S. proposal aimed at starting peace talks between Israel and her Arab neighbors.

But he minimized Canada's ability to influence success in the negotiations and acknowledged the continuing deadlock in Middle East relations.

He told the annual dinner of the Canada-Israel Committee the government stands ready, "provided it were evident that Canada could play a useful role," to consider a request for assistance "after the parties agreed on a potentially durable settlement and demonstrated their determination to make it work."

First goal would be reopening the Suez Canal and Israeli withdrawal from some of the occupied land near the canal.

"Canada considers that a partial and interim settlement of this nature could be a useful step toward a comprehensive settlement . . ," Sharp said.

Although both Israel and Egypt have accepted the principle of proximity talks, he noted, terms and timing have never been settled.

Claude Wagner, Conservative Party critic said that "it may be that we expect more from Israel in the quest for peace" than from the Arab states.

Token Knuckle Rap Costs CBC $1,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons' broadcasting committee rapped the CBC lightly on the knuckles Wednesday when it voted to cut the public corporation's 1973-74 operating budget by a token $1,000. (See also Page 27).

Quebec MP Harold Herbert (L—Vaudreuil), sponsor of the motion, described the cut as a symbolic attempt to register general dissatisfaction with the CBC, "particularly with regard to the handling of separatist French programming in the province of Quebec."

The motion was intended to indicate the power of the taxpayers' elected representatives over the life of the CBC.

Outside the committee, Herbert said the cut was primarily aimed at the corporation's French-language news and commentary.

"The majority of Quebecers feel that there is far too much attention paid to the separatist element in Radio Canada news broadcasts," he said.

He argued that the CBC is supported by taxpayers and has no right to present a one-sided view of news events—a minority view that most viewers do not share.

The motion carried by a narrow margin, with one New Democrat and five Liberals supporting it and three Conservatives and two Liberals voting against it.

Gilles Marceau, parliamentary secretary to Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner, the minister responsible for the CBC, said he feared approval of the $1,000 cut would be interpreted as a vote of non-confidence in the CBC's board of directors and corporation president Laurent Picard. Herbert said the motion was an attempt to express support for Picard's efforts to reorganize many elements of the corporation.

Jean-Robert Roy (L—Timmins) supported the idea but said he would later press tht committee to ask the government for power to study CBC operations in depth.

Bill Jarvis (PC—Perth-Wilmot) proposed an amendment which would cut the operation budget by an additional $134,000—the amount of money the CBC had to pay out of the public kitty to the American government for income tax owing by a number of CBC employees working in the U.S. The committee defeated his amendment.

We're Bugged, Says Sharp

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Canadian government has evidence of listening devices being directed against some of its missions abroad, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the commons Wednesday.

He said it would not be in the national interest to go into detail on this evidence or how or where the government obtained it.

The minister was asked if the government had ever become aware of third parties listening to telephone conversations to or from any buildings occupied by Canadian foreign missions.

He replied in a written answer: "No. Due to the ease with which telephone conversations can be monitored, members of the Canadian foreign service exercise caution and deiscipline in the use of the telephone."

In the Commons, Sharp also said he has received no information that would back up the allegation made in Washington that a secret plan made in the White House included a proposal to break into the Canadian embassy in Washington.

The report from Washington was that while no such plan was put into operation, its aim had been to determine what aid, if any, the Canadian government was providing to American draft dodgers.

Sharp said if the Americans wanted to know about Canada's policy toward draft dogers, they had only to ask.

"I hope they do better than we do when they ask," retorted G. W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River).

Gas Answer in Two Weeks

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government should know within two weeks if gasoline exports to the United States are threatening supplies enough to warrant restrictions, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday.

"If we find the outward flow continuing to increase . . . I think we're going to have to move in with controls," he told reporters after being pressed again in the Commons to set export limits.

He has said repeatedly the government sees no need at present for controls. But the tone of his remarks appeared to change Wednesday when he admitted making an error in export figures he quoted Monday.

Restrictions on crude oil exports were imposed by the government in February.

Macdonald said Monday gasoline exports had dropped to 10,000 barrels a day in April from about 12,000 in March.

However, he said Wednesday, he has been given additional information by the National Energy Board that shows the April rate was actually 17,000 barrels a day, 5,000 higher than March.

T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) said in the Commons that 4.1 million gallons were exported in April from Ontario alone, 11 times the amount the province exported for all of 1972.

The former NDP leader said supplies have dwindled to the point where some of the largest independent gasoline retailers in the country are holding back expansion plans or closing their service stations.

Macdonald said independent dealers rely for the most part on cheap foreign supplies that have begun to dry up. Their situation did not indicate the extent of supplies available from Canadian refineries.

Douglas said a real problem exists now because exports are climbing at an astonishing rate and imports have been cut to a virtual standstill by heavy world demand. Asked whether the National Energy Board has intervened informally to ensure Canadian supplies, Macdonald said this has been done in a number of cases.

He did not elaborate, but said later Canadian refineries have been told domestic needs must be met first. He said independent dealers, who sell at rates below regular retailers, are faced more with a price-squeeze situation than a supply situation.

In Washington, a high ranking state department official explaining increasing U.S. dependence on Arabian oil, said Wendesday the U.S. had erred in counting on vast new supplies from the Canadian Arctic.

James E. Aikins, director of the office of fuels and energy, said "We had assumed the Canadian Arctic would be exceedingly productive—we appear to have been wrong."

Earlier, an influential energy expert described the U.S. government's handling of the Alaska pipeline controversy as "one of the 10 great blunders" of recent times and said the U.S. should have "sat down with the government of Canada to negotiate a pipeline through that country."

David Freeman, head of a massive energy policy study being financed by the Ford Foundation, described the proposed supertanker-pipeline route to move Alaska's north slope oil south to the U.S. mainland as "environmentally hazardous."

The U.S. should "set up an energy corridor down through Canada which could also open up Canada's northern oil potential," he said.

Elsewhere in Washington, the U.S. federal power commission approved an increase in the price of natural gas at the well-head that its chairman says could cost U.S. consumers from Texas to New England $61 million a year.

Meanwhile, the American Automobile Association is suggesting to its members that they fly, then rent cars when they reach their destinations, if they must travel this summer.

The AAA said today it expects gasoline to be in critically short supply in some states, particularly in the southeast.

Frozen Green 'Bomb' Human Waste From Plane

BUFFALO (AP)—A large block of frozen green substance that crashed through the roof of a home in nearby Alden Tuesday has been tentatively identified as human waste from an airplane's toilet.

Richard Reinnagel, a scientist at Calspan Corp., said Wednesday; "Our conclusions are not ironclad as more tests are scheduled, but our preliminary findings indicate beyond a reasonable doubt that the material we analysed is from a latrine."

He said after the substance thawed, it was found to contain 1,800 parts per million of organic carbon and suspended solids, "highly indicative of human waste."

Esther Kochanowicz told deputies Tuesday that "something" tore a hole in the roof of her house, struck her favorite chair and then shattered into little pieces throughout the family room.

Reinnagel said the green color of the material was indicative of a disinfectant often used in airline toilets.

He said he has asked airlines for samples of their disinfectant.

Condominium Plan Needs City Approval

VANCOUVER (CP) — The planned conversion of an eight-storey apartment in the South Granville area to condominiums must have approval of city council before it can go ahead, Ald. Mike Harcourt said Wednesday.

He said owners of the 154-suite building, including former Social Credit MLA Herb Capozzi, will have to come before council under a new policy adopted Tuesday requiring council approval of apartment conversion schemes.

He asked persons who would suffer hardship under the scheme to make their condition known to city council at a meeting June 12. Many of the apartment's residents are senior citizens who have expressed financial difficulty purchasing their suites.

The Sun said Wednesday senior citizens were being asked to pay up to $50,000 to buy suites in the apartment that some of them had rented for more than 20 years. The alternative was a 15-per-cent rent increase.

SON EYES SEAT HELD BY WAC

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill Bennett, son of Social Credit leader W. A. C. Bennett, said Wednesday he is thinking of seeking the Social Credit nominatioo for South Okanagan mination for South Okanagan the seat.

He said in an interview that he will make a decision only after the seat becomes vacant. His father said last week that he will resign as South Okanagan MLA prior to the Socred leadership convention scheduled for November, but would not indicate how soon.

The younger Bennett, who is 41, would not say if he intends to also run for the Socred leadership in November. But he did say he is phasing out his business activities in favor of taking a more direct interest in public life.

Vestgron

Vestgron Mines Ltd. reports it has spent $19.5 million up to the end of last year to bring its Black Angel lead-zinc mine in Greenland into production.

The company said it will seek permission from shareholders at its annual meeting in Vancouver June 12 to sell a $10.3 million single-income debenture to Cominco Ltd., which owns 61.5 per cent of Vestgron.

The proceeds would be used to repay a $10 million advance from Cominco. Other financing for the mine has come from the Orion Banking Group of London.

Copperfields

Copperfields Mining Corp. reports a loss between extraordinary items of $124,240 in the six-month period ended March 31, compared to a profit of $262,948 for the same period the previous year.

However, net loss was cut to $2,507 after extraordinary gains, including profits from 2 million shares the company owns in Teck Corp. Ltd. Final profit figures after extraordinary items in the previous year were $492,134.

N. B. Keevil, president of the company, said earnings and asset value of the company's Teck shares were up sharply, but did not offset losses caused by the shutdown of a company mine at Temagimi, Ont., and increased exploration expenses.

WCI

WCI Canada Ltd., formerly Kelvinator of Canada, reports net earnings for the six months ended March 31 of $2,919,381 or $1.85 a share, up from $1,759,783 and $1.12 a year ago.

Net sales for the six-month period were $29,956,937 compared with $24,747,583 a year ago.

Union Gas

Union Gas Ltd. of Chatham, Ont., reports a proposed $33-million capital expenditure program in the current fiscal year ending March 31, 1974, will enable the company to expand natural gas sales 10 per cent over last year.

The natural gas distributor for 250 southwestern Ontario communities recently sold a $20-million, 20-year, 8.25-per-cent sinking fund debenture issue to cover a portion of this year's capital spending program, the company said in its annual report. Capital outlay last year was $32.6 million.

The company has applied to the Ontario Energy Board for a rate increase, citing higher costs and operating expenses.

Berg Hires Lawyer Over VSE Firing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Barbara Berg said Wednesday she has asked her lawyers to look into her dismissal Tuesday as vice-president of operations for the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

Mrs. Berg, who was ousted in a major management reshuffle at the exchange, said she was discharged after refusing to resign.

She said the president of the exchange, Cyril White, told her Monday to either "resign immediately and accept an offer he then made to me" or be discharged.

"No explanation for such action was given to me and I do not know of any reason or cause for such action," she said. "I took legal advice immediately and delcined to resign.

"I was thereupon discharged by Mr. White and asked to leave at the end of that day, which I did.

"The matter now is in the hands of my solicitors."

In announcing a reshuffling of the exchange's management setup Tuesday, White said Mrs. Berg's position had become "redundant" and announced she had resigned.

Economy, Inflation Both Rising: Report

Despite shock waves created by the announcement in Washington Tuesday that the U.S. economy is showing first signs of levelling off, the outlook for Canada remains strong, according to an investment study released today.

Canadian government and industrial fiscal policies continue to be expansionary.

Everything will be up during 1973, especially inflation, according to a review by Richardson Securities of Canada.

"The inflation rate under the impact of rapidly rising food prices (especially meat prices) has accelerated during the first quarter of 1973 and is causing considerable concern among Canadians.

"Non-food prices have not risen as rapidly but there are disturbing signs of a stronger uptrend in the non-food sector as well."

Elsewhere, the outlook for the remainder of the year is:

Consumer spending — A strong gain of 10.5 per cent over the levels of the previous year.

Government spending—Increasing at a rate of 12 per cent.

Exports—Considerably stronger than in 1972 but partly offset by a higher rate of imports.

Business investment—Some uncertainty until corporate tax cuts are confirmed. However a gain of 10 to 12 per cent expected with most of the activity in the last half of the year.

Residential construction—A modest increase of 7 to 8 per cent anticipated in dollar value. Most of this will be the result of higher prices.

Total gross national product—A growth rate of 11 per cent is the latest forecast with six per cent of this being net gain and five per cent due to inflation.

"If prices continue to rise, the demand for a price and wage control system is likely to become stronger in Canada even though it is unlikely to be a very effective or complete solution to the problem of inflation.

"In the present political environment, however, the imposition of a control system would be purely a political decision that would not give much weight to the timing or effectiveness arguments against controls.

"There is a relatively high probability that a control system will be imposed before the end of the year. This would probably have a temporary beneficial impact on the inflation rate but is unlikely to avoid the necessity of other policy corrections during 1974."

Gold Price Re-Opens Old Mines

TORONTO (CP) — The continuing high price of gold has influenced two mining companies to resume drilling on old gold properties.

Flint Rock Mines Ltd. said today it will resume operations on its property at Bay Lake near Timmins, Ont., and will review its Shabu Lake property in northwest Ontario.

Zenmac Metal Mines Ltd. will act as operator for a group of companies launching a diamond drilling program on a gold prospect in Montbray Township, Que.

Zenmac holds a 20-per-cent interest in the project with equal interests held by Flint Rock, Zahavy Mines Ltd., Kallio Iron Mines Ltd. and Alchib Development Ltd. Zahavy also is a partner in the Flint Rock operation.

A Tragic Day In Indy Rain

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) —The 57th Indianapolis 500-mile race ended Wednesday as it began; in tragedy and in the rain.

Gordon Johncock was awarded the victory Wednesday, two weeks after Art Pollard was killed in a crash during practice, two days after David Salt Walther was burned badly in an aborted start of the race, and two hours after driver Swede Savage was critically injured and a crew member killed.

The triumph by the small and dapper Johncock was witnessed by an estimated 20,000 spectators surrounded by more than 200,000 empty seats at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"I have been running races for 18 years, a lot of them very frustrating, but this has made it all worth it," said Johncock.

A record crowd of more than 300,000 swarmed into the Speedway Monday when rain washed out the race about 20 minutes after the multiple-car crash in which Walther was seriously injured.

About 175,000 showed up Tuesday, only to watch the rain come again. And gloom and dampness also were the order of the day Wednesday. But, after a five-hour, 10 minute wait, the race got started.

Johncock averaged 159.014 miles an hour for the shortest race in the event's long history. The race was over in two hours, five minutes and 27.66 seconds.

The shortest previous Indy was in 1950 when Johnny Parsons was given the victory after 138 laps, also because of rain.

The 36-year-old Johncock is expected to get more than $200,000 in prize money from the third straight Indy purse of more than $1 million.

Johncock beat Billy Vukovich, whose father was a two-time winner of the classic, by one minute, 25 seconds, while third place went unofficially to Roger McCluskey. Mel Kenyon placed fourth and Gary Betenhausen was fifth.

Armondo Teran, a 22-year-old bachelor from Culver City, Calif., died about one hour after he was struck by a fire truck driving the wrong way on the pit road while it hurried toward Savage's accident. He was flung about 100 feet by the impact.

Three-time winner A. J. Foyt Jr. lost out with two cars, breaking something in his own No. 14 Coyote, then hopping into team-mate George Snider's No. 84 and running into more mechanical trouble.

Defending champ Mark Donohue, 1970 and 1971 champ Al Unser, 1969 champ Mario Andretti and Bobby Unser, who won in 1968, all met the same fate.

DeBusschere to Jump After One More Year

NEW YORK (AP) — "I want to go out on top, I don't want to be embarrassed" is how Dave DeBusschere summed up the reasons behind his signing a 10-year, $75,000 contract to be vice-president and general manager of New York Nets of the American Basketball Association, effective with the 1974-75 season.

DeBusschere, an 11-year veteran of the rival National Basketball Association, will play one more season on a two-year contract with the NBA's New York Knicks before trading his player's uniform in for an executive's suit.

DeBusschere, an 11-year veteran of the rival National League, said there would be no possible conflict of interest because he will not be working with the Nets until next year.

Football: Time Out For Better Hang Time

Sure, it's something new to go with those other delightful hybrid terms — square-outs curl-ins, red dog, button hooks and clothesline. What other sport deals in such unique phraseology?

Hang time, eh? That's what Ray Guy had the best of during the U.S. college football season and exactly why Oakland Raiders made him their No. 1 pick in the college draft.

In this era of computerized results, the simple stop watch told the story scouts wanted to hear most. Guy could keep a football in the air longer than any other graduating college kicker. That's what "hang-time" is all about.

If it's all part of the newest trend in football — defence, the simple fact is that the longer the ball remains in the air from the time it is kicked, the better chance the defenders have of getting to the punt receiver at or about the very same time the football does.

Thus no runback. This, of course, is more applicable to the U.S. game than the Canadian variety because there is unlimited blocking in the U.S. and none in Canada on punt returns. So time and altitude are everything.

The Timing Is Everything

Guy, for his part, can keep the football in the air for an average of 4.7 seconds. He can also kick for an average 46 yards (from the line of scrimmage) on punts. From here on, it's elementary.

It take the average punter just over two seconds to get the ball off after the snap. This gives the linemen, those specialists who can run 40 yards in under five seconds, a head start, which they need. Now if the kicker can do his part, the receiver will be standing in a crowd when the ball gets there. Thus a fair catch. Again, no runback.

It's also dull, but dullness can win football games. To wit, the new philosophy already in evidence in U.S. pro ranks: If you can't score a touchdown, try and come away with something. Like three points. That's where the latest breed of soccer-type field goal experts come into the picture; and now the punter who can help put them in focus more often.

If a kicker can keep a team hemmed in its own end and the defence can stop that other club's attack, then sooner or later, it will pay off; if not in a TD, in a field goal.

It's a three-point game that is developing because of a new sophisticiation in defence, and if the trend continues and the field-goal kickers get any more proficient, it wouldn't be surprising to see a game played entirely between the 35-yard lines.

Why not, if a team has a kicker who can boot them through the uprights from 50 yards?

Zuger Can Hang 'Em Up

Which brings up the argument that there should be special values placed on field goals for the distance kicked. Certainly a 45-yard try is more difficult than a kick from the 12. It may come to this eventually, but until it does, watch for this other new emphasis on kicking.

The best in pro football, last year's records show, was Jerrel Wilson of the Kansas City Chiefs. He had a hang-time of 4.7 seconds and a season's average of 465.2 yards from scrimmage. But if that's the ultimate, it will be interesting to see how Joe Zuger fares in his new role with Detroit.

Long-time quarterback of the Hamilton Tiger Cats, Zuger's arm went dead two years ago, and he was summarily cast off by the Ti-Cats.

But his kicking leg wasn't dead, and Detroit wanted that. The Lions couldn't get him last year beacuse of a rule which prohibits players who attend camp in one country from playing for a team in the other that same season.

But now they've got him and Zuger will take with him an average of 48.6 yards from scrimmage over the last three years with the Ti-Cats.

That's better than most and reason enough to suggest his hang-up, if any, won't be hang time.

Powless Destroys Rocks

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

Not long ago, at the dawn of this Western Lacrosse Association season, Victoria Shamrocks' coach Ed Kowalyk made a boast.

"Who's going to check Gaylord Powless?" Kowalyk was asked at a pre-season press conference.

"We've got plenty of players who can check Gaylord Powless," was the coach's confident reply. "We can handle him."

Perhaps 'can' is the key word in Kowalyk's remarks. Perhaps the Shamrocks can handle a player like Powless — if they go about it the right way.

But they certainly didn't at Memorial Arena Wednesday night and Powless, considered by many as the best lacrosse player in Canada, ran riot in steering Coquitlam Adanacs to a 15-11 victory.

Running stylishly through the Shamrock defence and taking all the time he needed, Powless drilled in four goals and chalked up four assists.

It was no coincidence that Powless' first game in Victoria ended a 12-game jinx for WLA clubs on the road this season.

"Oh sure, Powless had a good game," Kowalyk conceded. "But our guys didn't go after him properly. It's no good just going after his waving stick. They've got to body-check him and they didn't."

For the Adanacs, it meant first place in the WLA as they snapped a tie with Vancouver Burrards. But they should never have had the two points.

Apart from Powless, penalties destroyed the Shamrocks.

Lots of hustle, some fine shooting and then some stout defence nabled Shamrocks to grab and preserve a 5-2 lead until the end of the first period.

When Ivan Thompson scored the 6-2 goal only 10 seconds into the second period, eveything seemed to be going along fine for the Shamrocks.

But then suddenly the pendulum swung the other way and the rot set in.

The turning point seemed to come when Mike Beaulac received a five-minute penalty for high-sticking and Jack Kastelein was sent to the box to serve a silly penalty for slashing when the other player had already cleared the ball.

That was all Adanacs needed. After playing-coach Bill Bradley had scored, Jim Rickbiel got the first of his three goals. Soon it was 6-6.

Although the clubs battled it out at 7-7, then at 8-8 at the end of the second period and at 9-9 early in the third, Shamrocks' spirit was broken. And, when Adanacs went ahead for the first time in the game 10-9 at 3:33 of the third period, they went in front to stay.

Thawed-Out Macs Win

But once thawed out, they stormed to a 17-14 win over Coquitlam J-Hawks before 475 fans at Coquitlam Sports Centre.

The win extended an unbeaten streak to five for McDonalds and snapped a tie with J-Hawks, leaving them alone at the top of the Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League.

Until the thid period, things didn't go too well Wednesday for McDonalds.

The Victoria squad was delayed in Victoria by a late plane departure and then a bus, supposed to have been arranged by the Coquitlam club, failed to meet the plane.

Finally, after hiring six taxis and rushing to Coquitlam, McDonalds arrived and the game, already held up for an hour, got under way.

But there wasn't time for goalkeeper John Hamilton to have a warmup and he, like his teammates, was slow to get going.

J-Hawks grabbed a 7-3 lead in the first period and held a 13-10 advantage by the end of the second.

However, Hamilton came right in the third period, making several fine saves and allowing only one more goal. He finished with 48 stops.

His teammates also put things together as they hammered in seven goals in the final period to snatch victory.

Norm Baker led McDonalds with four goals and three assists. Glen Neuman, Jerry Kustaski and Danny Green scored three goals each and the other Victoria scorers were Kim Browning, Jim Lynch, Lorry Gloeckner and Jeevan Dillon.

Dave Blanchard scored three times for Coquitlam while Harry Powless, Jim Alward, Gilles Bezeau, Ric Bossley and Paul Joseph scored two goals each. Dan Tickner was the other scorer.

Cedar Hill in Front

Cedar Hill tripped visiting Glen Meadows 8-1 Wednesday to take a five-point lead in the Victoria District Inter-Club Golf League competition for the Willie Park Driver.

Defending-champion Gorge Vale halved with host Victoria to remain in second spot while Uplands topped host Royal Colwood 5½-3½ in the other encounter.

Gordie Rands posted the most decisive Cedar Hill victory by downing veteran professional Al Zimmerman 6 and 5. Rands was four-under-par at the finish.

The veteran used a five-iron into a strong headwind while recording the ace but Bob Hunt of Uplands still managed to come up a 2 and 1 winner. The four-ball match, with Painter partnering assistant-professional Scott Keenlyside and Hunt doubling up with Dave McCall, was halved.

Wild Brawl Steals Show

By The Canadian Press

A battle between the American League division leaders was expected to be one of the highlights in major league baseball Wednesday.

But a brawl involving California Angels and Boston Red Sox took the spotlight away from Detroit Tigers—leading the East Division—and Chicago White Sox, holding first place in the West Division.

In Boston, Luis Tiant fired a five-hitter and Dwight Evans slugged a seventh-inning homer as the Red Sox nipped the Angels 2-1. The homer, which broke a 1-1 tie and beat Clyde Wright, came moments after both dugouts emptied in a near free-for-all.

In the fifth inning of the Boston game, California's Alan Gallagher bumped Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk and two innings later the two bumped chest to chest near the on deck circle. That meeting prompted both dugouts and bullpens to empty onto the field.

Boston's Rico Petrocelli and Jeff Torborg of the Angels threw punches at each other but order was quickly restored and no one was ejected from the game.

Tiant threw one ball behind Gallagher's head in the top of the seventh. When Clyde Wright's first pitch in the bottom of the seventh sailed over Danny Cater's head, plate umpire Larry McCoy summoned managers Eddie Kasko of the Red Sox and Bobby Winkles of the Angels to the mound for a conference to cool things off.

Montreal Expos and San Diego Padres split a doubleheader. The Expos won the first game 4-2 but lost the nightcap 3-2.

Blazers Trade All-Star Centre

Times News Services

Andre Lacroix was riding an emotional see-saw Wednesday.

First came the news that the World Hockey Association's scoring champion had been traded to New York Golden Blades in a major five-player deal. A few hours later, he learned that he had been named to the WHA's first all-league team.

Lacroix, who scored 124 points for Philadelphia Blazers last year, was picked for the centre spot on the all-star team by a panel of writers and broadcasters. Joining him on the first team forward line were right wing Danny Lawson, also of Philadelphia, and playing coach Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets, chosen at left wing.

Hull was the lone unanimous selection.

Lacroix was traded by the Blazers, who have moved to Vancouver, to New York along with linemate Don Herriman.

The Blazers received centre Ron Ward and goaltender Peter Donnelly. The New York club also got the rights to negotiate with goaltender Bernie Parent who walked out on the Philadelphia club during the playoffs.

J. C. Tremblay of Quebec Les Nordiques and Paul Shmyr of Cleveland Crusaders were picked as the defencemen on the team along with goalie Gerry Cheevers of Cleveland.

The third team had Ottawa (Toronto) Nats' Wayne Carleton at left wing, centre Chris Bordeleau of Winnipeg, right wing Norm Beaudin, also of Winnipeg, New England defencemen Rick Ley and Ted Green, and goalie Al Smith, also of New England.

ALSO IN HOCKEY, Toronto Maple Leafs have acquired defenceman Willie Brossart from Philadelphia Flyers for an undisclosed amount of cash . . . Brossart has spent most of his pro career in the American League . . . In Boston, Phil Esposito has been ordered to make a monthly $870 support payment to his estranged wife, Linda, and two daughters . . .

Meanwhile, the Bruins announced defenceman Don Awrey has signed a multi-year contract with the club. Terms were not disclosed . . . Mike Walton is the only Bruin regular unsigned . . . Racquet Annual Reminder That Big Firms Do Forget

THE TENNIS SCENE

By Max Low

Dunlop has remembered and forgotten Tony Simnett.

The giant, London-based British sporting goods company remembers when Simnett was a junior tennis star in England.

But the firm has forgotten that Simnett stepped out of the big-time game 14 years ago and, regular as clockwork, a complimentary Dunlop Maxply racquet arrives for him each year.

Now 37 and "too fat" at 178 pounds, Simnett has stepped back into the game with considerable success already on Vancouver Island and is grateful for his supply of racquets.

Without the strength of youth, Simnett now finds the racquets have too large a grip and at the moment he is having one whittled down.

"I don't like to say anything to them about size," Simnett says with a cheeky smile, "in case they knock me off the list."

He was first put on Dunlop's "racquet list" when, as Nottinghamshire junior champion and the fifth-ranked junior in England, he was named to Britain's Junior Davis Cup squad to tour Australia.

TONY SIMNETT
. . . they remember

Among pairs they met were Mal Anderson and Ashley Cooper, both of whom went on to become international stars.

Simnett and Becker also played the famous "tennis twins" Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall in senior competition—they were a year older and out of junior tennis—but "didn't do very well."

Wilson, Knight, Becker and Pickard all went on to play for Britain in the Davis Cup and Simnett was the only one of the group who didn't. But he did play in some big tournaments in England including Wimbledon.

Never county singles champion—he was ranked No. 2 to Jeff Robinson—Simnett combined with stylist John McKnight to win the Nottinghamshire men's doubles crown three times.

Simnett has played against many famous players, including New Zealand champion Lew Gerrard and Pierre Darmon of France, then singles champion of Europe.

But one of his biggest thrills was meeting defending champion Jaroslav Drobny on the No. 1 Court at Wimbledon in 1953.

"I was just 17 at the time and it was a tremendous thrill to play someone like that," Simnett says distantly. "Of course, Drobny won easily, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 and didn't seem to be pushing himself."

At the age of 23, Simnett gave up tennis to concentrate on something he was to become much better at—table tennis.

Ranked in the top three in Britain after winning the country men's singles title when only 15, Simnett came to Canada and won the Calgary City and Calgary Open titles both four times.

He moved to Vancouver in 1964, won the B.C. Open and was Canadian men's singles table tennis champion in 1964, '65, '66. He played for Canada in the Americas Cup team matches in Detroit.

Altogether, including doubles, Simnett won nine Canadian championships.

Now, with competition lacking on the Island, Simnett has switched back from table tennis to tennis.

Recently appointed city editor of the Times, Simnett moved with his wife and son from Campbell River and has joined the Oak Bay Tennis Club.

He and clubmate Ivor Goodmanson won the men's doubles title in the recent Victoria area Festival of Sports tournament and last weekend added the Vancouver Island doubles crown in Nanaimo.

Simnett also reached the final of the men's singles in the Island championships before rain halted the tourney. That final will be played at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Oak Bay club.

Although Simnett certainly has a wealth of tennis background and experience to call on for this match, he won't be able to use age as an excuse if he fails to win.

BILL THOMPSON LEADS SENIORS GOLF EVENT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bill Thompson of Victoria Golf Club fired a par 72 Wednesday to take the first-round lead in the British Columbia Golf Association senior amateur championship at Beach Grove.

Thompson took a three-stroke lead over Vancouver Quilchena's Ed Hill and Dr. George Bigelow of Victoria over the 6400-yard course in the tournament for players over 55 years.

Defending champion Ernie Brown of Vancouver McCleery was in a group of five at 76. Henry Mitchell of Vancouver Langara, Ted Barbour of West Vancouver Gleneagles, Fraser McRae of Quilchena and Vince Goodfellow of McCleery were tied with Brown.

The second and third rounds of the 54-hole tournament will be played today and Friday.

Rough Return For Jackson

Two players who have stepped down from Victoria Bates in the Northwest International Fastball League received different receptions in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's League this week.

Brian Grexon, who started out with Bates this season, helped Seaboard Construction post a 6-1 win over Mike's Sport Shop on Tuesday but Barry Jackson, who pitched for the same club last season, hurled in a losing cause Wednesday night at Central Park.

Jackson, in his first start, relieved Six Mile House starter Wade Burns in the sixth inning and allowed four of the nine hits by Sooke Merchants, who went on to post a 9-5 victory.

In the other game, Royal Oak Sporting Goods mounted a 10-hit barrage en route to a 13-1 triumph over Labatts at Heywood Avenue Park.

Farmers Follow Glen's Example

Glen Wallis cracked a three-run homer in the first inning at Lambrick Park Wednesday night.

That got things going nicely and Wallis and his Farmer Construction teammates kept them rolling to romp to a 13-3 Victoria Senior Baseball League victory over Gorge Hotel.

Wallis had three hits in four trips to the plate, scored two runs and batted in four.

Winning pitcher George Brice scattered eight hits and also had two hits in three times at bat. He is now 3-0 on the mound.

It was the first loss of the season for the Hotelmen and lifted Farmer Construction to within half-a-game of the league leaders.

Seattle Carries Win Streak to 15

SEATTLE — Pay'N Pak of Seattle downed Shelton Mets 3-0 and 4-1 in a Northwest International Fastball League doubleheader here Wednesday.

It was the 15th victory in a row for the Pay 'N Paks and moved them seven-and-a-half games ahead of second-place Victoria Bate Construction.

In the first game, Dick Christenson struck out 14 Shelton batters in hurling a five-hitter and in the second game, Butch Batt sparked a four-run rally in the third inning by Seattle when he smacked a two-run triple.

In Victoria Wednesday night, Bates downed Century Inn of the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League 9-0 in an exhibition game at Royal Athletic Park.

Westminster Rolls To Provincial Final

VANCOUVER (CP) — New Westminster Blues blanked Portuguese Club of Vancouver, 5-0, Wednesday night in the Provincial Cup soccer semi-final.

After 44 minutes of defensive play, two quick goals were counted in a minute, one by Ike MacKay and the other on a penalty kick by John Connor.

Hunters Go a-Hunting

Saanich E. J. Hunter of the Inter-City Junior "B" Lacrosse League carries an enviable record into a tournament starting Friday in Vancouver to determine a provincial representative to the Canada Games in August.

Saanich, unbeaten with four wins and a tie in league play this season, won the league, playoff, Vancouver Island and B.C. titles last year.

Both the Island and B.C. crowns were taken in three straight games over Nanaimo and Vancouver Bluebirds, respectively.

Other teams in the three-day tourney are Burnaby, Prince George and North Shore Indians.

Among the outstanding players on the Saanich squad is forward Kevin Alexander, who scored four hat tricks during the five games he was allowed to play for Victoria Shamrocks in the Western Association last season and added 21 goals during the five games he was taken up to Victoria McDonalds in the Pacific Junior "A" League. During the 15-game "B" league schedule, Alexander managed to punch in 84 goals and add 37 assists.

Other players who make Saanich heavy favorites to take the Games berth, are goalie Dennis McLean, who plays forward for Calgary Centennials during the Western Canada Hockey League season; Bob Cool, an excellent two-way forward; Dave Lowden and Rob Moss, outstanding on defence; and forward Mike Wilson, who starred during the playoffs against Vancouver last season.

Kevin Alexander led scoring with five goals while Cool played a strong role in the victory with seven assists.

Danes Face Indonesia After Routing Canada

JAKARTA (CP) — Denmark pushed aside Canada, 9-0, Wednesday and qualified to meet defending champions Indonesia in the finals of the Thomas Cup badminton tournament.

The great rivals of Europe and Asia will meet this weekend to battle for the cup, played for every three years and regarded as the symbol of world badminton supremacy.

Canada, which ousted India, 5-4, to advance to the semi-finals, was never in the picture. The Canadians dropped the first four games Tuesday and five straight Wednesday.

Jamie Paulson of Toronto, Canada's No. 1 player, raised Canada's hope in Wednesday's opening match, taking the first game, 15-9, from Elo Hansen. However, he faded badly, allowing the Dane to take the next two games, 15-3, 15-6. Svend Pri had to battle in the first set against Bruce Rollick of Vancouver, finally winning it, 17-14. He breezed in the second, 15-6.

Fleming Delfs then made it 7-0 with a 15-6, 15-7 win over Wayne McDonnell of Vancouver.

In the first doubles set, Paul Peterson and Tom Bacher won the first game, 15-7, but Paulson and Yves Pare of Montreal came from behind to win the second, 18-15. The Canadians collapsed in the third, losing 15-8.

The Thailand-born Canadian pair, Chanarong Ratanaseangsuang and Raphi Kanchansraphi, who now play out of Calgary, were given a good chance of winning the final set. They went down, 15-10, 15-5, to Pri and Henning Borth, captain of the Danish team.

Food Chain Masquerading—MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MPs charged today that IGA Canada Ltd., masquerades as a group of independent grocery stores in order to take advantage of using nonorganized labor.

Yet despite the fact that it can use cheaper labor, IGA food prices are the same as in any of the big supermarket chains, James McGrath (PC — St. John's East) told the special Commons food price committee.

President Harold Knifton and vice-president M. H. Coulson of the Toronto-based company, the first of the country's big food retailers to appear before the committee, denied the suggestion.

Charges that IGA poses as a group of independent stores when it is in essence, like any other chain, would be "vehemently denied" by the 746 retailers who own IGA stores in Canada, Mr. Knifton said.

Earlier, he told Ron Atkey (PC—Toronto St. Paul's) that IGA was effectively owned by three wholesale companies—M. Loeb Ltd. of Ottawa, Oshawa Group Ltd. of Toronto, and H. Y. Louis Co. Ltd. of Vancouver.

Loeb and Oshawa, Mr. Knifton said, each own between 43 and 45 per cent of IGA and H. Y. Louis owns about 10 or 11 per cent. Seven other companies wholesale selling to the stores were subsidiaries of these three.

He said he would guess that about 50 per cent of the 746 stores were tied through various financing arrangements with the wholesalers who provide stores with capital to go into business at interest rates less than they could get from other sources.

Stores and wholesalers could end their relationships by giving 30 days notice.

Mr. Atkey asked how relevant the 30-day cut-off clause was if about half the stores had loans from wholesalers. Mr. Knifton replied that "from the practical point of view" the stores did not have that much freedom.

Mr. Knifton admitted that, since IGA labor was not unionized, it was "somewhat cheaper" than other stores had to pay. In many cases, a retailer would have his wife and children working for him.

He described a typical IGA store as having about 4,000 to 6,000 square feet of space, as costing about $120,000 to equip and stock and with an average of $14,500 in sales a week.

Gross profit in a typical store amounted to about 17.2 per cent or $2,494 a week. Total expenses in the same period would be about $2,247, leaving a profit of $247 before taxes.

IGA itself worked to break even. Average yearly profits of about $20,000 to $30,000 were split up and given back to retailers as a rebate.

RESIDENT NURSE NEED SEEN

The legislature's social welfare and education committee was asked Wednesday for financial assistance to provide a resident nurse for the 300 permanent residents of Mayne Island.

The committee, holding hearings in Victoria on the subject of home care, received the request from Kay Carpenter, president of the Mayne Island Community Association.

Carpenter said the Island, which has as many as 3,000 residents during the summer months, is largely dependent on volunteer services in the health field.

A weekly medical clinic is conducted by doctors from nearby Salt Spring Island, she said, and a public health nurse visits the island once a month.

Carpenter said that of the 300 residents on the isalnd, 165 are retired persons.

"We need a resident nurse who is proprly qualified to direct the islanders' volunteer efforts and carry out orders of visiting doctors for emergency cases and the home care program," she said.

Foes Wrong on Car Rates, No Hike, Strachan Insists

Transportation Minister Robert Strachan today blasted Liberal Leader David Anderson and Conservative leader Derril Warren for saying the NDP government will break its campaign promise of providing car insurance at lower rates than those now offered.

Strachan repeated earlier statements that the monopoly government insurance scheme which comes into effect next March 1 will result in no increased premiums for drivers. People will be paying less for their insurance than they are now, he said.

"I can't help it if David Anderson and Derril Warren are a little hard of understanding," the minister said. "I don't pretend to be able to explain to people like that if they don't want to listen."

"No one will pay more, and it will cost less," he said of the new insurance plan.

"Why waste time with the kind of nonsense that David Anderson and Derril Warren have been spouting? It's talking absolute nonsense. You know it, I know it and the people know it."

Car insurance under the new system will be divided into two separate premiums for each car owner and driver to pay. One premium will be on the motor vehicle itself. The other premium, which appears to act more as an assessment than a premium, will be on each individual driver and will be payable on the driver's birthday.

Asked if the total amount of the two separate premiums will still be less than what individual drivers are paying now, Strachan said: "Yes, yes, yes."

David Lane Rites Today

A memorial service was to be held today in Vancouver's Shaughnessy Heights United Church for David E. Lane, former vice-president of B.C. Forest Products.

Lane, 73, died Saturday of a heart attack. He had planned to retire in a month.

Born in Alberta, Lane joined Hammond Cedar Lumber Co., one of the companies taken over by B.C. Forest Products, in 1926. In 1946 he joined the management of B.C. Forest Products and later headed up its plywood and lumber operations.

He is survived by his wife, Evelyn, a son, Fraser, a daughter, Karen, and three grandchildren. His mother, Mrs. Annie Lane, also survives.

No Cheers From MPs

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A suggestion to send congratulations to Princess Anne on her engagement was brushed aside in the Commons Wednesday.

A motion by Tory MP Tom Cossitt, who hails from the United Empire Loyalist region of Eastern Ontario failed to win the unanimous support of the House needed for a special debate.

A scattered chorus of "nos" was heard when the motion was put to the Commons but it could not be determined from which members they came.

Cossitt said he would put the motion before the House again today.

Olympia Eyes Legal Drinks At 19

OLYMPIA (AP) — A referendum on the Washington state bill lowering the legal drinking age to 19 will appear on the November ballot if it gets enough signatures, Attorney-General Slade Gorton said today.

Tippling age in the state is now 21.

Backers of the measure have until next Wednesday to submit the required number of signatures. Otherwise the bill will go into effect just after Wednesday midnight. About 40,000 signatures have been collected so far. To bring the measure to a vote 57,000 signatures are needed.

HIGH GRIT HOPES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Liberal leader I. H. Asper said Wednesday his party has a realistic chance of winning at least 25 seats in the June 28 general election.

He said latest public opinion samplings indicate that about half the potential Liberal gains are in seats held by the Conservatives and half are from the NDP, including about four cabinet ministers.

Manitobans feel the present government has not done a good job of running the province and has shown itself to be poor managers of the economy, he added.

'Conspiracy' Raked By Union

EDMONTON (CP) — The provincial government and the management of the Royal Alexandra hospital "conspired" to delay a strike vote by the hospital's 1,000 employees, a spokesman for the Canadian Union of Public Employees said Wednesday.

Ian Downie, CUPE representative for Local 41, said the union asked a week ago for a strike vote, and it was "obvious" the hospital and the Alberta government delayed before allowing the vote.

"They did this so that hospital management could spread rumors about layoffs and contracting out jobs so the strike vote will be low," he said.

In a union-conducted vote earlier, 93 per cent of the workers approved strike action to support contract demands. The government vote —required by law—will be held June 3-4.

Probe Bid Rejected

EDMONTON (CP) — An application to force a government inquiry into an alleged $5 million stock manipulation swindle involving seven Alberta insurance companies, was dismissed Wednesday.

Paul Steffanson, chairman of a steering committee of shareholders in the seven companies, made the application before Mr. Justice M. E. Manning who rejected it because of a lack of evidence.

The order would have forced attorney-general Merv Leitch to conduct an inquiry into the matters surrounding the seven companies.

Manning said the way Steffanson's application was worded; it had no essential meaning. It would be like directing somebody to behave himself, or to refrain from committing any sins next week, he said.

Sask. Alarmed By VD Boost

REGINA (CP) — Provincial health authorities are alarmed at the high incidence of venereal disease in Saskatchewan and health minister Walter Smishek said the reported number of cases may only be the "tip of the iceberg."

The number of notified cases of syphilis and gonorrhea in 1972 show a 38-per-cent increase over 1970. Figures for the first three months of the current year show a further 30-per-cent increase over the comparable period last year.

'Indian Magna Carta'

JASPER (CP) — The spirit of a separate bill of rights for Indians should be incorporated in the clauses of a heavily-amended Indian Act, federal and provincial native leaders said Wednesday. "The Indian people may be looking at an Indian Magna Carta," Harold Cardinal, Indian Association of Alberta president, said at a news conference after two days of closed meetings at which the native leaders laid the groundwork for government-invited revisions to current legislation.

$364,000 Grant

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government will provide $364,000 for development of a major forensic unit at Alberta Hospital in Edmonton and a small unit in Calgary. The Edmonton hospital was chosen because it is close to a university, has specialized medical facilities and transport links with the Yukon and Northwest Territories, for which Alberta provides forensic services.

The March of the 'Hairstylists

It no longer describes the hair tradesman's role, according to local spokesmen.

The in-word is "hairstylist," and to make their point progressive barbers have formed the Men's Hairstyling Council of the Barbers' Association of B.C.

Their first hairstyling eliminations on a province-wide basis will be held at the Airport Inn, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Sunday.

Victoria member Zeke Almeida said a major purpose of the competition—likened to the local, national and international contests for women's hairdressers — is to promote the image of styling for men. men.

"The word 'barber' will die and they will all become 'stylists,' which is the right word. 'Barber' means shaving," Almeida said.

Ron Nicholls, another of the 12-15 Victoria stylists expected to attend the event, said a purpose of the council is to train the older, more conventional barbers in hairstyling techniques they may have missed.

"Older barbers may be archaic in their ways. They're losing out and now realize they have to take some retraining," Nicholls said.

Almeida said the neat, groomed look is preferred by many today, even though hair is worn comparatively long.

But in order to get the kind of styling desired, some men had found it necessary to patronize women's hairdressing salons, said Nicholls.

By coincidence, there appears to be a similarity in the price of men's and women's stylings, ranging from $3 up to $20, depending on whether the client wishes a wash and the use of setting compounds.

One of the local promoters of men's styling, Lyle Smith will be absent from the Vancouver event due to illness. Last year he was winner of a Vancouver-Victoria styling competition, and he is a styling council representative and instructor-examiner for the barbers' association.

The trend gets ever-further from the social role of "barbarini", who for 600 years served up shaves, haircuts, blood-letting and minor surgery in most of Europe.

But the conventional guy may, for a while at least, still get a shave and haircut in Victoria for as little as $2.75.

Fadeout Tonight For CCT

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Community Television, a project supported through the Local Initiative Program, has failed to receive an extension grant and will stop production after tonight's show.

Project co-ordinator Jev Tothill said he was disappointed to learn an extension had not been granted.

Fifteen people were employed by the project, learning valuable skills while producing television shows, he said.

CCT has been broadcasting throughout the valley on Channel 3 since January 1972.

BIG EXPANSION AT HARBOR PARK

NANAIMO — An expansion to the Harbor Park shopping centre in downtown Nanaimo was announced Wednesday by John McLernon, director of Marathon Realty Ltd., a CPR subsidiary.

Cost of the project will range between $6 and $7 million, he said.

The program calls for the construction of two major department stores and at least 30 additional smaller stores and parking for an additional 850 cars, he said.

B.C. Lobster Expert Muzzled

The biologist involved in the West Coast lobster experiment has been muzzled because Fisheries Minister Jack Davis was "confused" on the state of the project.

The Vancouver Province today reports Dr. Ray Ghelardi as saying senior officers at the Nanaimo fisheries research station ordered him in a memo not to discuss the $470,000 project he headed.

The directive came after he had announced the first phase of the project had been a success. This was later disclaimed by a senior Ottawa fisheries official, who told a Commons committee the project had failed.

Now, both the director and assistant director of the Nanaimo station agree that Ghelardi's first-phase experiments were a succcess and that adult lobsters can survive and breed on the West Coast. But the fisheries branch has not allowed the second phase to go forward, which would have determined if a permanent lobster population could be established on the West Coast.

The memo, from Dr. Keith Ketchen, assistant director of the station, read: "In order to protect the minister from unwarranted badgering in the House, I must insist on behalf of the director that any further communication about the lobster project with the press, members of Parliament or the general public be conducted through the office of the director."

Dr. Wally Johnson, director of the station, said Wednesday he authorized the memo, but insisted Davis was not involved. However, Ketchen explained the directive followed a complaint from Davis that he had been asked questions in the Commons and had become confused about the state of the project.

Ketchen said he was at a loss why Davis was confused, since a memo explaining the up-to-date state of the project had been forwarded to the minister before Ghelardi had released the details.

Johnson said the memo was an attempt to have Ghelardi, 52, "inform management what he had discussed so they would be informed if asked questions about the project." The wording, he said, "was too strong and unfortunate."

Ketchen said "the bald facts of the matter are that Ghelardi has never come through with reports that have stufficient detail. We have asked him for three years for detailed reports that would be of major use if someone else is to continue the program in the future."

However, Ghelardi said: "I have given them plenty of detailed reports with information from which they can make decisions about the future of the project. There has been nothing left out. It's just that I have not given them a packaged scientific report in the form they want for publication. I have never placed a high priority on the publication of the work I have done since I have been more interested in practical success of the project."

Ghelardi said he released the information about the success of the lobster experiments because "I felt the taxpayers have a right to know what is going on and happening to their money."

Ghelardi, who is leaving the station Friday to return to California, said the taxpayers are entitled to some explicit answers to questions such as: Who authorized the lobster project in the first place; what was the basis for the priority that was assigned to it at the inception and subsequently; why was it continued for seven years at a cost of $470,000; who decided to end the project, and why?

Mitchell Re-Elected

Bob Mitchell of Lansdowne Junior Secondary School was re-elected president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association at its annual meeting Wednesday night.

Mitchell was re-elected along with vice-president Jim Ross of Mount View Senior Secondary. Both will be serving a second one-year term of office.

Other officers elected to lead the 1,300-member body were Mauvis De Girolamo of South Park Elementary (second vice-president); Allan Jones of Macaulay (recording secretary); and Wayne Ericksen of Mount View (treasurer).

Three geographical representatives to the B.C. Teachers' Federation were also elected: Syd Landhelt of Richmond Elementary; Jeanne Moutray of James Bay Elementary; and Leo Strathold of Margaret Jenkins.

City School Buses

EDMONTON (CP) — Increased support for providing school bus service in urban areas under the School Foundation Program Fund has been announced by Education Minister Lou Hyndman. The measure will provide an alternative to providing new school construction, Hyndman said.

Show Up or Else!

GABRIOLA ISLAND — Jim Kavanagh, chairman of the Gabriola Island Advisory Planning Commission, said Wednesday if members fail to show up for the June 11 meeting he will ask for some resignations.

He said only one of five commissioners showed up at a meeting held earlier this week.

"If members fail to show up at the next meeting, I will recommend to the regional district that specific persons be named to replace them," he said.

Kavanagh sent letters to all commissioners this week to inform them that a change of attitude is needed.

Nader Group Asks N-Plant Shutdown To Safeguard 'Millions of Lives'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader and a United States environmentalists' group asked a federal court today to shut down 20 large nuclear power plants in 12 states, saying they threaten the lives of millions of Americans.

In a suit against the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), Nader and the Friends of the Earth (FOE), which claims 20,000 members, said the AEC has violated the atomic energy act and its own power-plant safety regulations.

Specifically, they charged the commission with "illegality . . . in . . . continuing to permit the operation of certain nuclear power plants without requiring adequate protection for the health and safety of the public by way of effective and required safeguards against the consequences of an 'uncontrolled loss-of-coolant accent. . . ."

The type of accident referred to could cause a nuclear reactor core to melt, possibly releasing lethal radiation.

In a statement distributed after the suit was filed in the U.S. district court for the District of Columbia, David Brower of San Francisco, president of the FOE, said:

"Overwhelming scientific evidence has shown that the lives of millions of people are being threatened by the operation of these plants. Each of these plants contains a quantity of radioactive material equivalent to the fallout from several thousand Hiroshima-size nuclear weapons.

"Yet the safety systems necessary to prevent release of this radioactive material into the environment are crude and untested."

Some of the AEC's own scientists have made cautionary statements about the emergency core-cooling systems, but the AEC contends that its existing safety criteria regarding such systems is sufficient.

The suit constitutes the most forceful action yet in a long campaign by environmentalists to challenge the safety of so-called "emergency core-cooling systems" used in U.S. nuclear power plants.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 30-year-old Victoria man was sentenced Wednesday to two years in prison after he pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing $3,100 from the Meat Market Steak House on March 25.

Kenneth F. Barrick, 2797 Cedar Hill, was employed by the firm when the theft occurred.

He said, however, that the amount was $2,600.

Defence counsel Robin Dalziel told provincial court Barrick had offered no reason for taking the money and although Barrick was in debt he did not use it to pay off creditors, but rather to finance "a frivolous trip to the U.S."

A 29-year-old Victoria woman who forged 20 cheques totalling $779 was remanded in custody to June 8 for sentence.

Gloria A. Cairns, of no fixed address, took a cheque book from her father and forged the cheques during a 2½-week spending spree in May.

Judge William Ostler ordered a pre-sentence report. She forged the cheques to support a drug habit and said she wanted to get even with her father.

Two Victoria youths pleaded guilty to a Tuesday afternoon theft of $119 from the till of Gill Grocery, 2501 Dowler Place, managed by Machhattar Singh Gill.

Duncan C. Crow, 18, of 240 Newbury, and Gary E. Lang, 21, of 117 Superior, were remanded to June 7 for pre-sentence report.

The two youths entered the store about 2 p.m. and scooped the money from the cash register, and ran up Bay Street. They were arrested near the Crystal Pool, dividing the money just 15 minutes after the theft.

A 19-year-old youth was sentenced to a term of five months definite and six months indefinite for possession of 11 caps of heroin and possession of stolen goods valued at $11.50.

When David M. Henderson was arrested on the heroin charge Dec. 1 at 651 Pine there were a number of needle marks on his arms.

On the second charge court learned Henderson was stopped by police March 27 at Quadra and Queens with three tapestries stolen from the Wooden Shoe, 2576 Quadra.

Henderson had an earlier heroin possession conviction, and Judge Ostler said the sentence will run concurrent with the four months definite and six moths indefinte term he is serving.

He added he wanted to be sure Henderson was given "sufficient time to benefit" from a rehabilitation program.

★ ★ ★

A 19-year-old Victoria youth was fined $250 and given one years' probation for possession of marijuana. It was a second offence for Stuart I. Tripplet, 19, of 2839 Ronald.

★ ★ ★

A Duncan logger, Ian W. C. Duncan, 20, was fined $75 for possession of hashish May 29 in Colwood.

★ ★ ★

Five charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency by giving minors beer were read against Dennis Pennock, 81, of 2550 Belmont.

Frederick Taylor was fined a total of $1,000 for two charges of impaired driving on the same night.

Court was told the 46-year-old man of 425 Quebec Street, was stopped by police May 29 on Government Street at 7:30 p.m., and a breathalizer test showed a blood alcohol count of .21.

He was stopped later the same evening on Belleville and a test showed a reading of .21.

He told Judge Ostler he had a coffee in between both incidents, to which Ostler replied coffee would only make him "a wide awake drunk," not a sober one.

Taylor was fined $400 on the first charge and $600 on the second and his licence was suspended.

An 18-year-old Victoria youth was sentenced to a total of five months definite and five months indeterminate for purse snatchings after he pleaded guilty to two-counts of theft under $200.

Judge Ostler recommended that Steven Mark Berry, 508 Pendray, spend his term in a forestry camp.

Prosecutor Gordon Macdonald said the "most disturbing" aspects of the case were indications that Berry felt there was nothing wrong with the incidents because the women had lost only small amounts of money.

Province Doles Out Job Funds

The departments of highways, recreation and conservation and health get the lion's share of summer job money allocated by the provincial government this year, cabinet orders revealed today.

Of the 200 million allocated for summer employment, highways is to get $9 million, recreation and conservation $4 million and health $3.5 million.

Other departments to get money include human resources ($1 million), agriculture ($500,000) and education ($500,000).

INSURANCE 'SHELL GAME'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Opposition spokesmen accused the NDP government Wednesday of breaking an election campaign promise to bring cheaper car insurance to motorists in British Columbia.

The response followed a government announcement motorists will pay no more for insurance under the new scheme than they are now.

Transport and Communications Minister Robert Strachan disclosed the government insurance scheme to be introduced next March will be split in two—a basic insurance policy plus a premium of $8 to $16 per year on each driver's licence.

"Splitting up the costs and shifting them around like this is the old shell game," Anderson said. "It's designed to give the impression that the government's holding the line on costs."

Conservative leader Derril Warren said the government insurance plan appeared headed for severe difficulties in both expense of setting up and the administration of the system, which would be reflected in higher rates.

'MM Well-Meaning But Amateurs': Grit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opposition party officials said Wednesday British Columbia's new Majority Movement is an organization that will never get off the ground.

The new movement, which has sent out flyers to all households in the province, is aimed at creating a non-socialist coalition to defeat the NDP. The movement says it will back a private enterprise candidate in every riding in the next election, and hopes Social Crediters, Liberals and Conservatives will merge behind its banner.

Social Credit president George Driediger said it is impossible to amalgamate three political philosophies into one "and say this is what we are going to be to defeat the socialists." He said it has never worked before and won't work in future.

Liberal leader David Anderson said the Majority Movement is "just one of these well-meaning, ineffectual amateur outfits which makes the job of professionals that much more difficult."

He said political competition among the three private enterprise parties will "eventually sort itself out and the NDP will be defeated."

Conservative leader Derril Warren said the initials of the Majority Movement could stand for "mammoth mistake.' He said he believes the organization to be the product of "frustrated businessmen who are genuinely concerned about the future of B.C. and who are searching for a way to express their position."

B.C.-Alta. Education Studied

British Columbia and Alberta plan to co-operate on a study of advanced education programs and facilities in northeastern B.C. and northwestern Alberta, Education Minister Eileen Dailly announced Wednesday.

She made the announcement jointly with Alberta's minister of advanced edcation, Jim Foster. The study will focus on organization, governing, co-ordination and financing of advanced education institutions in the two provinces.

Existing facilities in B.C. are Cariboo College at Kamloops, the college of New Caledonia at Prince George and vocational schools at Dawson Creek and Terrace.

CD Unit Formed

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A civil defence committee has been formed at Penny, the tiny community 50 miles east of here that mounted a protest this spring against alleged dangers from passing Canadian National Railway trains.

Residents of Penny and other communities along the rail line expressed concern about emergency measures after the derailment of a freight train near Loos. A chlorine tank car was damaged in the derailment.

Based on Logic

KAMLOOPS (CP) — City council's environmental and planning committee said in a report algae in the Thompson River system is caused by flooding and precipitation in the area which carry fertilizer from nearby farmlands into the water where algae feed.

But council admitted the report is based on logic, not science. A full report on the river system will be made within two weeks.

Bennett Talking

SALMON ARM (CP) — Opposition leader Bennett Wednesday forecast an NDP defeat and Social Credit win within 39 months. Bennett, speaking at a Social Credit meeting, said the only place the NDP has a majority is in the B.C. legislature.

'Information'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Counsel for four persons accused of picketing Carter Pontiac Buick Ltd. said in British Columbia Supreme Court Wednesday they were only giving public information about lack of safety in Firenzas.

The firm has applied for an injunction to halt William Grosvenor, Hendrika Peeters, Phyllis Watson and Stanley Watson from parading in front of its Burnaby premises. The hearing continues.

LESS GAS MORE OFTEN

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Automobile Association has urged motorists driving to the United States to fill their gas tanks more often, but with less amounts, to ensure they will not be hampered by gas rationing.

RCMP Missed Brink's Money

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A getaway car used by three men involved in the theft of $700,000 from the Brink's Canada Ltd. office here was given a routine check by RCMP as it left the city en route to Toronto, with the money stashed in plastic garbage bags in the trunk.

A lawyer for one of the three men who pleaded guilty Wednesday to charges in connection with the theft said police noticed the bags during the check.

An officer asked what they contained and was told "garbage," lawyer David Wright said. One of the men then asked him if he wanted to look, but the officer said no and waved them on.

The comments came as Leslie James Dominey, 32, and Melvin Edward Downs, 37, both former employees of Brink's, pleaded guilty to theft of the money while Ernest William Barker, 41, pleaded guilty to possession of stolen money.

A fourth person involved, Katherine Jeanette Craig, 21, appeared in court in Toronto and was sentenced to one year in jail on a charge of possessing stolen money.

John Barry, lawyer for Dominey, said his client was shaking as the RCMP checked the car.

He said Dominey at that point hoped they couldn't stand the pressure on them.

But it wasn't until a week later in Toronto that the two men surrendered to police after they had become the objects of an international manhunt.

Crown prosecutor James McNamee told the court Barker and Craig were arrested after police learned of their part in the theft from Dominey and Downs.

All but $4,125 of the stolen money was recovered.

McNamee told the court the Brink's vault was locked by Downs on the evening of Friday, April 21, and set to reopen five hours later, at midnight, when Dominey and Downs returned to stuff the money into garbage bags.

SET LOCK AGAIN

He said the two then set the time lock on the vault so that it would not open until 4 p.m. Monday.

Most of the money was placed in three garbage bags although sums of $2,000 and $400, respectively, were placed in the Dominey and Downs cars which were abandoned in the city for their families.

By Truck, Barge, Ancient House Heads Slowly Up-Island

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

With real estate prices soaring, you might say John Gentry got a deal. He bought a house in North Saanich for $110.10.

What sort of house do you get for $110.10?

Gentry's house has 13 rooms, including seven bedrooms. Besides kitchen, living room, dining room, bathroom and utility room, it has a conservatory. All told, there is 4,800 square feet of floor space.

What's the catch?

The biggest is a bill for about $11,000 to move it. Moving it is one of the terms of sale.

There are others. The house, built in 1919, has no insulation. And there's no distribution system to carry the heat from an old furnace, converted from coal to oil.

Gentry, 29, is a mill worker at Harmac near Nanaimo who lives at Lantzville. That's where the house is headed, most of the way by barge.

He and his wife like antiques, he said Wednesday. So the biggest one in their collection got under way today, with the help of a small army from B.C. Hydro and B.C. Tel.

A lot of wires had to be lifted or dropped along the way. A couple of telephone poles were sawed down and some residents had their power shut off for a short spell.

A New Westminster house moving firm anticipates it will take all day to move the house from the East Saanich Road along Amity Drive, across the Pat Bay Highway and north on Lochside to the barge near the Anacortes ferry dock.

The movers' bill will be $6,000, said Gentry. The bills from B.C. Tel and B.C. Hydro are expected to be about $2,500 each.

The house — green roof, brown shake siding, pillared porch and big plate glass windows—served until recent years as residence for the superintendent of the federal experimental farm near Sidney.

It cost $4,500 to build better than half a century ago and was big enough to house visiting dignitaries from Ottawa in the days when travel wasn't so rapid.

But none of the staff wanted to rent it the past few years so the research station, Agriculture Canada, as it's now called, decided to get rid of it through Crown Assets Disposal.

Station director Harry Anderson said today that had there been no bids to buy or demolish it, the house would possibly have gone up in flames. The local fire brigade wanted to burn it as a training exercise.

Anderson said there was quite a bit of interst in the house when word got around it was up for auction. About half a dozen people were shown through and one man said he would have it sawed in half to move it.

Gentry said he doesn't know how many people submitted written bids in February.

The house will be relocated on a lot he owns about a quarter-mile from Pebble Beach, where the barge will land it.

Diversion Costs Doubled

Greater Victoria Water Board decided today to go ahead with the Council Creek diversion into Sooke Lake Reservoir despite latest cost estimates showing the price has more than doubled since the preliminary estimate.

Water district commissioner Ron Upward said construction of a dam, pipelines and ditches to divert 1.5 billion gallons of water a year was estimated at about $100,000 based on a preliminary estimate of $73,000 by an engineering firm in 1971.

While preliminary estimates are not made on final designs, they usually serve "as a rough guide" but in this case the whole job now is expected to cost $220,000.

Upward said it was found when detailed design was done that there was some rock and the job was more difficult than anticipated.

He said, and the board agreed, that the project should still go ahead, but it will be in stages through to 1974 or 1975.

The Sooke Lake Reservoir has a capacity to serve 250,000 people so by 1978 or 1980 the diversion would be needed anyway, he said, and it would be cheaper now.

He also said that with the water board committed to release 1.5 billion gallons of water each year for Goldstream salmon, an alternative replenishment source is necessary.

Upward told the board that the district has expropriated 11.54 acres, cleared the land and called tenders for the first section of the Council Creek diversion — about 1,200 feet of pipe and 800 feet of ditch.

The remaining phases are mostly ditch work which the district can do with its own earth moving equipment.

He also pointed out that, with the work being done in phases, it will be after 1975 before the diversion can be used. Shortly after then, 15,000 people in Central and North Saanich could be added to the water district system.

Firm Fined For Fouling Inner Harbor

"There's no doubt there was a considerable mess in the harbor. We plead guilty to that."

And with that admission Smith Cedar Products, for the second time in three years, was fined in provincial court under the Fisheries Act.

The company paid $750 on the April 17 charge that sawdust was loaded improperly on a barge and sawdust chips were found in four harbor locations causing a hazard to marine life.

Defence counsel Bob Hutchison said the company then was installing a new chute which involved overloading the barge and awaiting the right tide.

"There's no doubt of the mess," he said.

But he explained, since the first $500 fine, the company has tried three different chutes in an attempt to comply with the act. The third one has reduced the problem.

Signal Fire Saves Men After Fishboat Sinks

Two unidentified Ruxton Island men were rescued 10½ hours after they started a signal fire on a log boom when their 22-foot converted fishboat hit a deadhead near Valdez Island and began sinking.

Their rescuer, Frederick Strafdine, who lives on Gabriola Island, near Nanaimo, about half a mile away from the incident, told the story today.

The two men were returning from Silva Bay, where they had been shopping.

Their boat hit the deadhead and began sinking at about 10 p.m. Tuesday.

The men and their two dogs clambered aboard the log boom, salvaging only their fishing gear from the stricken craft.

The signal fire was seen at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday by Strafdine, who picked the men and dogs up in his log salvage boat, the Lori C II.

The coast guard cutter Racer was despatched to the scene and put out the flames.

Another log boom, being towed in the area, by a tug headed for Nanaimo, was in difficulty Wednesday.

It broke up in high winds and it is expected to be two days before the logs are collected. Boat operators are warned to keep a lookout.

Another 5,000 logs under tow in Burrard Inlet on the mainland were also scattered.

About 100,000 cubic feet of logs are believed to have been lost in the Nanaimo mishap.

The B.C. Forest Service has banned salvage by licensed beachcombers until the logs are retrieved by their owners.

GELLING

Chief Quits In C. Saanich

The chief of Central Saanich's six-man municipal police force resigned today, one month after he was stabbed in the course of duty and one day after a constable the police commission had fired was reinstated with full back pay.

Gelling, police chief for 15 months, tendered his resignation in a letter to council received last Monday. He was not available for comment.

Central Saanich Mayor Archie Galbraith told reporters he thought Gelling might have retired in connection with his serious injuries received in the stabbing incident April 30 and the reinstatement of the officer, James Earl.

Special meetings of the police commission and municipal council were set for this afternoon.

Constable Earl was dismissed Jan. 10. The case went before the B.C. Labor Relations Board last week for a two-day hearing and Wednesday morning it was revealed Earl had been reinstated with an unconfirmed backpay cheque of $3,600.

Gelling's letter was received by council two days before Earl's reinstatement was announced.

George Burton, 57, of 1450 Mount Newton Cross Road this morning in provincial court was remanded to June 18 on the charge of attempted capital murder of Gelling by knife-stabbing.

The charge was laid following a traffic incident in which Burton received two bullet wounds and two other policemen were stabbed.

Noise Onslaught Must End: Brief

Governments are doing nothing to reduce noise pollution, says a brief submitted Wednesday to the legislative committee on social welfare and education by the Citizens Association to Save the Environment (CASE).

"We feel human environments must be protected from the increasing onslaughts of noise," it says. "Such protection is also a function of health care but it has to be developed and enforced by the three government levels, municipal, provincial and federal."

The brief says municipalities and regional districts have devoted little attention to the adequate planning and development of living areas in relation to existing noise problems or to situations which are likely to become problems.

As an example, it points out new suburban areas are being built with high population densities along roads which are, or being planned, to become major traffic routes.

"To leave sound attenuating buffer zones of trees and other vegetation between noise sources and living areas is foreign to the mentality of most municipalities which, of course, cannot derive taxes from such zones," it states.

The brief asked the government to introduce noise pollution legislation to cover vehicle noise, public performance permissible sound levels, industrial noise and community noise.

Spray Saves Trees From Budworms

The city has sprayed about 4,000 trees to prevent defoliation by budworms, coddling moths and aphis, Al Smith, superintendent of parks, said today.

"The infestation is bad this year but we took action in time to prevent serious damage," he said.

"You either have to spray or put up with trees which have been stripped of their leaves."

Frank Andrews, Saanich assistant park administrator, and Art Eardley, Oak Bay assistant works superintendent, said they have sprayed when they have received complaints or where damage from pets was noticeable.

Smith said a chemical known as Diazanon is used to control the pests.

"If used with care, it is relatively harmless," he said. "It breaks down quickly."

However, Smith warned residents to carefully follow instructions when using Diazanon.

"It is a very potent poison if not handled properly," he said.

HALL

It's Time Buses Given Priority

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Public transportation is at last coming into its own, says H. R. Halls who retires today as B.C. Hydro transportation manager for the Victoria area.

Halls, who is completing 43 years with Hydro and the B.C. Electric, said that during most of that time public transportion had to take second place to the motor car.

The exception was during the Second World War when gasoline was rationed.

"Then the whole community relied upon public transportation. It met the challenge.

"Now it is faced with a new challenge because of fuel shortages, pollution problems and concern about the environment. I am confident it will meet that challenge, too."

Halls said he is gratified by recent provincial government statements rapid transit services would be given priority over cars in urban areas.

After so many leans years, the dramatic changes proposed are exciting for anyone who has spent a lifetime in the public transportation business.

★ ★ ★

"I seem to be retiring just when things are getting interesting.

"But I have thoroughly enjoyed my years with the company."

Born in Victoria. Halls joined the B.C. Electric on May 13, 1930, in Jordan River.

He returned to Victoria on May 1, 1931, to become a light and power representative with the company.

In 1939 he became a salesman for merchandising and moved up to transportation assistant in 1943.

On November 1, 1945, he became Victoria traffic superintendent and exactly one year later became transportation manager. Halls said he plans to ease into retirement.

"I'm a yachtsman and now I will be able to devote more of my time to that. And I will be able to spend more time with my family."

Island Man Off to Zambia

Lawrence Bomford, 28, of Cobble Hill, will do an economic evaluation of agricultural redistribution and settlements schemes in Zambia under the Canadian International Development Agency.

He was one of 11 Canadians awarded CIDA scholarships. Maximum annual value of the awards is $8,000, with the exact amount of each scholarship based on such factors as the scope and nature of the study program.

Bomford has a B.A. in economics.

New Minister, Curtis Talk Road Extension

A change of ministers has not affected negotiations concerning the Blanshard Street extension, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today.

New Highways Minister Graham Lea was "very cooperative and I see no difficulties arising out of the change," said Curtis after a Wednesday meeting.

Discussions of the controversial highway connection were launched between Saanich and former highways minister Robert Strachan early in the year.

Saanich seeks a solution to the traffic bottleneck posed with Douglas Street congestion and the lack of Blanshard access to Pat Bay or Trans-Canada highways.

GREEN DYE coloring the water in the Centennial Square fountain greeted passers-by this morning, and put municipal employee Donald Stewart to work washing it away. The prank has been played before and is rather a nuisance, said city deputy engineer William Jorgensen. All kinds of broken bottles were found thrown in the fountain. (Irving Strickland photo.)

Variety's the Spice of Mealtime, Too

By MARY MOORE

Do not limp along feeling discriminated against because of high food prices. Take new strides in your cooking program. Draw on the experience of other countries whose people have been discriminated against all their lives and learned to cope. An excellent example is Meatball Minestrone which makes a main course for supper with Wednesday.

Today's feature is easy to make; serves 4 or 5.

MEATBALL MINESTRONE

Meatball Mixture:

1 lb. ground chuck beef
1 egg
¼ c. cracker crumbs or rolled oats
¼ c. finely chopped onion
1 tsp. salt
¼ tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 14-oz. can tomato sauce (divided — see below)

Sauce:

2½ c. water
1 14-oz. can red kidney beans, undrained
1 c. diced celery
½ c. uncooked elbow macaroni
½ tsp. oregano
¼ tsp. thyme

To make meatballs in large bowl break up ground chuck beef. Add egg, cracker crumbs or oats, onion, salt, pepper, Worcehstershire sauce and 1-3 cup of the tomato sauce and blend thoroughly. Shape into 1¼ inch diameter meatballs. In large frying pan, without adding any fat, brown meatballs then pour off any accumulated fat.

In large bowl combine remaining tomato sauce, water, kidney beans and their liquid, celery, uncooked macaroni, oregano and thyme and pour over meatballs in frying pan. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer covered 25 to 30 minutes or until macaroni is tender. (NOTE: If you want a thicker soup, add 1 tablespoon cornstarch to ¼ cup cold water and make a paste. Stir into minestrone and cook stirring 2 or 3 minutes until mixture thickens a little.)

Variety is the spice of life and mealtime too. Serving variety meals is one way to beat the humdrum of planning any menu. Seasoned liver 'n onions are certainly not humdrum. A unique flavor comes from the brown sugar and dry mustard added to the flour for dredging.

Nutritious as well as tasty, liver is one of the best food sources of iron, a nutrient often lacking in our diets. Women and girls are especially likely to be deficient since their need for iron is greatest. Two ounces of fried liver provide about 5 milligrams of almost ⅓ of the 18 milligram daily recommended allowance for females, age 10 to 55. This serving provides about half of the 10 milligram daily recommended allowance for men.

Variety in serving liver comes from adding whole green onion to the skillet dish. Another colorful vegetable combination to serve with the liver is stewed tomatoes and okra or green beans.

LIVER 'N ONIONS

Yield: 4 Servings

1 pound sliced liver
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 tablespoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons fat
Salt and pepper
12 green onions (leave 4 inches stem)
¼ cup water

Combine flour, sugar and mustard. Dredge liver in flour mixture. Brown in hot fat. Season. Add green onions and water. Cook over low heat 15 minutes.

Seafood Seeder Constructed

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Prince Edward Island fisheries department has started a program designed to more than double oyster production from Bedeque by 1977.

It is actually two scallop boats joined in catamaran fashion to form a platform 20 feet by 30 feet. The vessels will mine and spread thousands of boxes of oysters and shell before the project ends in October.

School Text Under Fire

Peter, Jane, their dog Spot and their mummy and daddy have helped millions of British children learn to read. But they came under attack Sunday, assailed as "weapons for ruling class ideologies" by schoolteacher Christopher Searle.

Searle, who recently was reinstated as a teacher after an earlier dismissal for publishing pupils' poems without permission, said in a leftwing teachers newspaper Rank and File that he found the brother and sister series "galling".

He disliked their roomy detached house and their garden, he said.

The books gave the impression "happy children" lived in a garden suburb, close to fields and a running stream, had a father who drove an expensive car and a mother who looked like minister of education Margaret Thatcher, Searle said.

"For an inner-city, working class child learning to read, reading one of the books may often take as much mental struggle and imaginative projection as an adult reading War and Peace," Searle said.

Searle also said he was annoyed with "Mr. White," a character in the series visited by the children. — "He lives in a haven of High Tory (Conservative Party) splendor in a country mansion with 'Private' boldly marked on the gateway to his property."

dear abby

Grandmother Old Enough To Hear Facts of Life

DEAR ABBY: My mother, who is in her middle seventies, has made her home with us for nearly 20 years, since Dad died. She has her own room, and we built a private bathroom just for her.

Grandma enjoys "helping" around the house. She can't hear very well so she gets the phone messages all wrong. She can't see very well so when she mops or makes a bed, I do it over when she's not looking.

Grandma hasn't been in a grocery store in years so she has no idea how high groceries are. In fact, she hasn't spent any of her own money in years, which is what I'm getting at.

She draws around $200 a month, which she puts in the bank. The only cheques she ever writes are for Christmas and birthday presents, and those are very modest, considering what Grandma is worth.

She keeps telling us she's leaving everything to us — but we need some help now. Is there a way to ask Grandma to kick in with some loot without sounding grabby? Needs Help

DEAR NEEDS: Try this: "Grandma, the cost of living has gone up skyhigh these last 10 years, and it's still climbing. We could use a little money every month to help cut the mustard. Do you think you could spare it?" If she asks how much you had in mind, tell her.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have reached a stalemate. We have been arguing about something unrelated to us, but which has become a sore point. For about three years we have observed a neighbor carrying on. (I'll call her "Mrs. X.")

We have seen Mrs. X and her children pack up the car during the summer months, pull out of the driveway, and minutes later a young woman pull into the driveway and stay with the husband for hours.

When Mrs. X attended night classes, we have seen this "friend" leave by the back door, creeping across the lawn just seconds before Mrs. X's car came down the road. My wife has also seen the husband and this woman dining out in local eating spots.

The problem: My wife wants to tell Mrs. X about these goings-on. Not to tip her off, but because she dislikes her. She says Mrs. X puts on airs and is always talking about how "happily married" she is, and how she has "trained her husband right," etc.

These neighbors will be moving in another month, and I have begged my wife to leave it alone.

I am turning to you because my wife reads your column daily, respects your opinion, and has agreed to abide by your opinion. Weary Husband

DEAR WEARY: I say: "Leave it alone."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Friday, June 1
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21—April 19): You may feel obligation to relative. Fulfill it — but do so in responsible, mature manner. Means avoid hysterics and theatrics. Leo could be involved. Be flexible. Stick to principles. Member of opposite sex expresses interest.

TAURUS (April 20—May 20): One who dangles financial coup may have something else in mind. Know it and protect assets. Get money's worth. Check interest rates, other vital points. Ask questions. Be sure answers are forthcoming — be insistent where facts are concerned.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Accept added responsibility. New dimensions in activities is featured. Broaden horizons. You need not be limited, except by self-imposed limitations. Money situation may weigh heavily. But unusual contact breaks logjam.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Quiet search could turn up legal loophole. Know it and be thorough. Take nothing for granted. One who was loyal in past may be the same, but misinformed. Heed your own counsel. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio play important roles.

LEO (July 23—Aug. 22): Change, travel and variety are featured. Gemini and Cancer persons figure prominently. Accent is on fulfilment of hopes and wishes, even though romantic involvement gets complicated. Be realistic with regard to opposite sex.

VIRGO (Aug. 23—Sept. 22): Creative endeavor brings results. Official who is older may not want to change ways. Know it and proceed with caution and diplomacy. You finally get green light through intercession of Taurus or Libra individual.

LIBRA (Sept. 23—Oct. 22): You may feel pulled in two directions simultaneously. Key is to build on base that is solid. Don't go too far afield. Stick with what is familiar. You are on brink of completing important task. Stick to it!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Money that should be forthcoming may have legal strings. Know it and prepare accordingly. Mate, partner is not free to carry through on plan. Expect delay. Don't push, rush, force or chide. If patient, you ultimately succeed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22—Dec. 21): Obtain valid hint from Scorpio message. This is a time to wait and see, to observe and learn. Don't insist on having things your own way. One who means much to you is on right track. Be co-operative.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22—Jan. 19): Strive to develop original ideas, concepts, format. Steady approach brings results. Obtain balance between work and play. Check diet. Avoid extremes. Moderation now is essential. Fulfill resolutions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20—Feb. 18): Some behind-the-scenes activity could affect plans for change — and could interfere with romance. Be receptive. Avoid basing actions on impulse. Give logic equal time — analyze reasons for what occurs.

PISCES (Feb. 19—March 20): You may feel weighed down, blocked. Key now is to find alternatives. You are not stuck with one method. Know it and respond accordingly. Sagittarian could be in picture. Take over-all view. Check property values.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, independent, creative and fond of travel. You draw many persons to you born under Leo. August should be your most important month in 1973. In June you make peace with family member and have chance to enjoy greater domestic tranquility.

France has always had a very special attraction for Canadians because she is the cradle of one of Canada's founding nations. Therefore many Canadians will want to include France in their vacation plans.

The 68-page illustrated booklet France describes 13 different regions of France. It tells how to get there, what places to see and lists excursions from different departure points. You will also be interested in the survey of gastronomic specialties, including regional wines and liquors.

Of course, a visit to France would not be complete without some time in her elegant and gay capital. The 20-page folder Paris is full of fascinating colour photographs. As an insert there are a few words about different places as well as a map of the city centre.

You may also want to have the Guide of Paris. It seems to list almost everything the city has to offer and there is something for every conceivable taste. This guide certainly tempts you to reserve as much time as possible for your stay in Paris.

If you plan to use a car, you will also want the highway map France — the roads which presents important information for motorists.

Electronics Open Sport to Blind

family

SEATTLE (AP) — Arthur La Casse, a former Pacific Northwest Bell plant supervisor, installs electronic noise-making devices in specially made softballs so blind youths can play the game.

La Casse has modified the concept to help teach blind, retarded and other handicapped persons how to ski, bowl and play soccer or hockey.

The electronic softball was originally developed by a man in the Denver chapter of the Telephone Pioneers, a social-service group of active or retired telephone company employees.

La Casse was asked to try his hand at making one. "I and Bill Dick put one together and the Pioneers thought ours was better, so they ordered material for two dozen more," said La Casse, 67.

"Each ball costs about $23 for the material. Our labor is free," he added. "The Seattle chapter has given away quite a number to date to various organizations."

One went to a Vancouver organization, which asked La Casse about the possibility of using the concept to teach blind and other handicapped children to ski and play hockey. La Casse said he carried it further and developed audio devices for bowling. Similar devices are used in swimming pools and to mark play areas, he said.

"Kids learn depth perception from the sound," he said. "They can get pretty canny with the sound. They start learning by rolling the ball to each other, then throwing it on a bounce, then catching it on the fly.

"When they started playing this sort of field hockey game, kids bumped into each other and fell down. But they enjoyed themselves the whole time. After a while, they learn to avoid each other and don't fall as often."

The bugged balls are an inch bigger than the standard four-inch diameter size, La Casse said, to allow for necessary padding. The electronic device is powered by six rechargeable batteries similar to those used in hearing aids.

"They're quite serviceable," La Casse said. "In fact, I still have the first one I made two and a half or three years ago. It works fine and it's been banged around quite a bit."

UNUSED BASEMENT was converted into a combination laundry room and family room by excavating additional space, putting the utilities at the side in a separate area and finishing off the walls and floor.

Peace Hospital Confusing To Westerners

SHIH SHIA CHUANG, China (CP) — The International Peace Hospital runs a fine herd of cattle and its staff and patients produced 50,000 kilos of vegetables last year.

Students break away to work in mines and miners take time out to attend university.

Factories grow wheat or rice in the forecourt and farmers run glass factories on the back forty.

It is all very confusing to a visiting Westerner, this refusal of the Chinese to organize society into clear-cut compartments and social strata.

At the Peace Hospital and elsewhere, a group of visiting Canadian doctors would be told that the staff consisted of such and such number of workers. The confusion set in with the questioning for details.

How would that total break down into doctors, nurses, orderlies and others? The hosts would try hard to oblige, but is a girl herbalist a nurse, doctor or neither? And what about the textile factory worker who performs three days a week as a radiologist not only taking X-rays but diagnosing?

In medicine, the blurring of the professional hierarchy is understandable against the background of a desperate shortage of health care.

When the Communists took over in 1949, they were faced by the problem of a disease-plagued populace with a ratio of perhaps one Western-style doctor for every 150,000 people. Canada's ratio is one doctor for 650 people.

What could make more sense than to enlist traditional herbalists, acupuncturists and barefoot peasant doctors with a few months' training in a combined preventive and curative campaign?

You don't achieve that by setting up a medical hierarchy in which traditionalists or barefoot doctors get a low social rating, remarked a Canadian doctor.

The motivation for breaking down work classifications in other fields is similar.

Live It Up Downstairs

By PAULINE GRAVES

A basement, an attic, even a bedroom, spare because the children have grown and gone, can yield dividends in new uses. Few can afford the luxury of wasted space, and if you put your mind to it, you might come up with the kind of a room you have wanted for a long time. For instance, I saw a powder room made from a furnace closet, the space available when the furnace was moved to a less desirable location.

For another example, look at the family room-laundry room occupying a basement, otherwise unused. Comfortable couches, a shag rug and low tables create a pleasant atmosphere for reading, playing games or watching television. And with the sink area, complete with electric outlet and cupboards, the room's like a small apartment, self sufficient, without a lot of running up and down stairs.

Also on the practical side, the washer and dryer sit in an alcove. The folding door that hides the laundry equipment is just tall enough to give clearance to the laundry operator, leaving space for tall cupboards above.

However, the folding doors in front of the sink are average six-foot height. The wood grains of all of the doors and cupboards match, so that the wall appears to be solidly panelled when all of the doors are closed. In this way the utilitarian side of the room disappears, and an attractive area for family living and casual entertaining remains.

For a Smooth Boat Ride Try Some Good Timing

In addition to a poor sense of rhythm, abysmal co-ordination, and the ability to participate in "Row, Row, Row Your Boat" without putting my fingers in my ears, I lack a sense of timing.

I rush to get to the PTA meeting a 7:30 p.m. only to find that there is no one there but the janitor. I spend 15 minutes helping him set up folding chairs.

The plumber promises to come eary Monday morning. For the first time in recorded history, he arrives on time. Just after I have shampooed my hair and applied a Moondust Blonde rinse that must be washed out in 10 minutes.

After 30 years of waiting in dentists' offices, thumbing through two-month-old news magazines and torn copies of "The Little Red Hen," I arrived fifteen minutes late. Due to a last-minute cancellation, the dentist is right on schedule and charges me 10 dollars for the time he has wasted.

We arrive at the dinner party at 7 p.m. sharp and are admitted by a six-year-old boy in blue ski pajamas who informs us that Mommy's hair is still in rollers and Daddy is in the shower. The three of us sit on the floor and play Go Fish, pretending not to hear Daddy yelling "Where are my %?!" cufflinks?"

At the next dinner party, we purposely arrive 45 minutes late and are icily greeted by a hostess who feels that we are directly responsible not only for the fact that her hollandaise has curdled, but that her husband, after finishing the first pitcher of martinis himself, insisted on tap dancing on the coffee table and cracked the top.

But perhaps worst of all is our son's birthday party. Six children invariably arrive an hour early and are treated to a view of me blowing up balloons in my slip. They squat at my feet and exchange remarks on how neat the little red veins in my cheeks look.

Involvement Encouraged

OTTAWA (CP) — Nepean Township is to open new channels for women to participate in municipal government. Mary Haydon, the wife of Nepean Reeve Andrew Haydon, said that monthly discussion nights will be held for women "to involve ourselves in the development of our community and to make it a better place in which to live."

Shrum Tries 'Geriatric Radio'

SHRUM
. . . CBC interviewer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twelve years past normal retirement age and out of a job following an unexpected change in the provincial government, a man should just sit back and trim his roses — right?

Wrong — when your name is Gordon Shrum, who at 77 is trying something new.

"Well, I've never done this before," said the former B.C. Hydro chairman after two hours as a radio interviewer on CBC.

"My trouble is I'll try anything once."

His career, through soldier, physicist, educator, administrator, power executive, after-dinner speaker, and drinker of herbicide cocktails, has proved this statement correct.

What was perhaps galling was that his subject for the two-hour show was retirement.

Producer Volkmar Richter said a woman listener had phoned in during the show to say that, at 36 years of age, she felt exhausted just listening to Shrum.

Shrum was doing a guest shot as a one-day host of the Chuck Davis show, but listener response indicated that there might be a place for geriatric radio in the midst of all the talk and rock shows.

He was a little concerned as to how he had performed in keeping the show going for two hours.

His guests included Air Vice-Marshal Leigh Stevenson, who at 78 was the only active retired person older than himslef that he could find.

For other retired persons, Shrum's advice is to keep busy.

Since he was retired as chairman of B.C. Hydro, Shrum says he has been "awfully busy doing nothing."

"Sometimes I don't have time to open my mail. I have to do my own research at the library now.

"I never before appreciated how useful my secretary at Hydro was. I had to spend so much time just phoning people and arranging for them to come on this show."

Prisoner Spurns the Outside World

WALLA WALLA, Wash. — An inmate at the Washington State Penitentiary said Wednesday he would refuse a chance to leave the Walla Walla prison on parole because he isn't prepared to live in the outside world. Gerald Hackett, who said he has "spent the greatest portion of the last 20 years behind bars," made his unusual announcement in an open letter to news media representatives. Hackett currently is serving time for a King County grand larceny conviction.

LONDON — Premier Barrett today was received in audience by Queen Elizabeth to highlight the second day of a three-day visit to London. Barrett and his wife were received by the Queen at Buckingham Palace and spent about 15 minutes with her.

Earlier, Barrett called on Canadian High Commissioner J. H. Warren and conferred with senior officials at the treasury and the department of trade. He also was lunch guest of Anthony Kershaw, parliamentary under-secretary at the foreign and Commonwealth office, and called on Labor opposition leader Harold Wilson at the House of Commons.

OAKVILLE, Ont. — An active sex life makes elderly persons feel better and also makes life more pleasant for those around them, two gynecologists from London, Ont., say. Dr. Beryl Chernick and Dr. Noam Chernick told a seminar on geriatrics Tuesday at Sheridan College that those more than 70 can and should enjoy sex as much as younger persons. The husband-and-wife-team are specialists in sex problems.

CARSON CITY, Nev. — The Nevada Supreme Court Wednesday affirmed a $100,000 judgment against the H and R Block Company and criticized the firm for fraud and misrepresentation. The suit was filed in Reno by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Waters and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Waters, all of Sparks, who complained about the method by which the tax preparing company handled returns related to their business activities.

The court said the firm's claim of "guaranteed accurate tax preparation" didn't square with the fact that "they made no effort to hire employees with even rudimentary skills in accounting or in the preparation of tax returns."

OTTAWA--The Senate paid tribute to the late Senator Nelson Rattenbury who died of a heart attack in his home province Sunday night. He was 65. Government leader Paul Martin described the New Brunswick Liberal as "one of the champions of understanding between the two founding races of Canada."

MONTCLAIR, N.J. — The Rev. Philip F. Berrigan and Sister Elizabeth McAlister—together in the Catholic church, the anti-war movement and court—have married, saying they resist the church's "priority of celibacy over mature conscience."

The Rev. Paul Mayer, a former Benedictine monk, said he married the two in a "very simple and very beautiful" ceremony Monday at Mrs. Berrigan's Montclair home.

EDMONTON — Bruce J. Legge of Toronto, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario, has been re-elected president of the Canada Safety Council for a second term.

WITHDRAWAL BRINGS SHRUG FROM FORCES

By JAMES ANDERSON
Times Correspondent

SAIGON — Canada's peace-keepers seemed Wednesday to have shrugged off their government's decision to withdraw from the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

The withdrawal makes little practical difference to most of them as their tours of duty would have been ending in a few months anyway.

At Tan Son Nhut air base on the outskirts of Saigon, the main base of the ICCS, routine went on as normal.

One sergeant was cheerfully calculating that he would now get home in time to take his leave during his children's school holidays.

A major deeply involved in the commission's administrative paperwork winced at the thought of wading through detailed contracts which he would not be able to see through to completion.

A frequent comment was "well, the Canadian government finally made a decision."

Most of the Canadians learned the news on their radios Wednesday morning, from the broadcasts of the American-operated radio station.

Telephone calls to the seven personal head quarters quickly spread the word around South Vietnam.

The news was the main topic of conversation at breakfast but according to one officer, it created little excitement.

"It dropped like a lead balloon, really," he said.

An order from the military commander of the Canadian contingent, Maj.-Gen. Duncan McAlpine, last week remained his officers and men that they were not to comment on such matters of government policy to the press.

The Canadians here are mature professionals who feel they have done their best. Few of them developed any powerful emotional commitment to their task in Vietnam.

In practical terms, the decision probably means a few extra weeks in Vietnam for those who were scheduled to rotate home in July, a few weeks less for those slated for later rotation drafts.

Small groups of officers gathered over their beer in the Tan Son Nhut officers club seemed content with the decision, and more concerned with their latest administrative problem over subsidized leave.

They learned in the past few days that the generous rest-and-recreation policy, under which they got a first-class air fare up to $320 to any point in Asia and partial payment of their hotel bills on leave, has been scrubbed.

SPRAWLED SOLDIERS, with realistic "wounds" were all part of the test given the first aid team of the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Wednesday. Winners of the provincial competition this year, Wednesday's test of the team was for the Mary Otter Trophy, given to the best team across Canada. The PPCLI team at Work Point won the national championship in 1972.

Snub Egg Board—Stupich

Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said Wednesday he does not plan to recommend to the provincial cabinet that B.C. participate in the national egg agency scheme which is scheduled to begin marketing the nation's eggs on Monday.

Stupich said the initial stages of the scheme would likely result in a situation where excess eggs from other provinces would be "dumped" in B.C. at prices lower than those asked by B.C. egg producers.

The minister said costs for production of eggs in B.C. are higher, partially because of high costs of obtaining and transporting feed grains for poultry. As a result, he said, although the retail price to the consumer for eggs is about the same in B.C. as in other provinces, the B.C. producer is not getting enough of a return on his production costs.

Stupich said it is not the intention to stay out of the national egg agency forever. If it is decided that B.C. producers would be protected at some future time, the province would enter the scheme.

The minister announced his intention following a meeting with representatives of the B.C. Egg Marketing Board, who participated in a national meeting of egg marketing boards last week in Ottawa. He said about seven other provinces have already indicated support for the national scheme.

Aldrin, Dieldrin Labelled Considerable Cancer Risk

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, seeking to ban the pesticides Aldrin and Dieldrin, have charged that they pose "a definite and considerable risk of cancer to man."

EPA raised this charge in a legal brief filed with Judge Hebert Perlman, to hear an appeal by Shell Chemical Co. and the U.S. department of agriculture against the proposed ban.

On June 26, 1972, the agency issued an order cancelling most federal registrations for uses of Aldrin and Dieldrin. A pesticide manufacturer is legally entitled to a hearing upon request, if it opposes a cancellation.

The cancelled pesticide can continue to be sold while such appeal proceedings are under way.

Aldrin and Dieldrin are used primarily against pests which attack corn. They also are applied to rice and other crop seeds, fruits, vegetables and field crops, citrus fruit, nursery products, lawns and tobacco, and to a minor extent in the home.

EPA said Aldrin breaks down, in nature, to become Dieldrin which then persists in a toxic form for many years.

The agency said the Aldrin-Dieldrin group cannot be confined to farm fields, but is transported in various ways into the rest of the environment where it enters animal food sources, becoming increasingly concentrated in higher animal species.

GRITS PREPARE FOR WEST TALKS

OTTAWA (CP) — Western Liberal leaders attempted to dig post holes for future party fence-mending in the West Wednesday at a series of talks with federal Liberals.

Purpose of the discussions with the federal party caucus in the morning and Prime Minister Trudeau and cabinet ministers in the afternooon was to establish terms of reference for a meeting of western Liberals in Vancouver July 13-15 and a Calgary conference on western Economic opportunities July 24-26.

The Liberal meeting was moved ahead from original dates of June 22-24.

The three leaders—David Anderson of British Columbia, Bob Russell of Alberta and Dave Steuart of Saskatchewan said they came to the sessions to help the federal party people understand conditions in the West. Liberals were soundly trounced in the region during the last federal election and form no provincial administration there.

Mr. Anderson said he sees the Vancouver Liberal conference as a "great deal more important" than the federal-provincial one in Calgary later in the month.

The Liberal party, he said, "performs the old brokerage function that keeps the country running." There would be a greater sense of working toward something concrete in Vancouver than there would be at a conference with a number of premiers interested in grandstanding.

Mr. Steuart tended to agree. After the morning meeting he said the Calgary conference would only help the West if the New Democraf premiers of B.C. and Saskatchewan "don't louse it up."

"They don't want it to succeed because they'd lose their whipping boy—the federal government," he said.

"If we ever got fair freight rates I don't know what Premier Blakeney (of Saskatchewan) would talk about. He'd be gagged for the rest of his political life."

Mr. Steuart, leader of 16 Liberals in the 60-seat provincial legislature, said he hoped the meeting "would be a good thing." Recent moves to decentralize federal operations to the West and other regions had helped strengthen the government's position.

Mr. Russell, who holds no seats in Alberta and now is involved in a byelection battle to get one for himself, said he left the campaign trail because it was important that easterners understand the problems of say, discriminatory freight rates in the West.

At the end of the day, Mr. Russell said he was confident the government would "take some definite action" to deal with the freight rate structure in the near future.

SALMON CHASE

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—The U.S. Coast Guard launched two cutters and a scouting plane Wednesday in an effort to locate three Japanese vessels accused of taking salmon illegally in the North Pacific.

Lt. Cmdr. T. E. Deming said the Coast Guard hoped to detain the fishing boats.

Three vessels under Japanese registry were reported sighted Tuesday in areas outlawed by a three-nation treaty about 150 miles south of Shumagin Island in the Aleutian chain.

Trade Group Visiting City

Twelve assistant trade commissioners will be in Victoria Tuesday as part of a cross-country information tour before being posted abroad.

The commissioners are gathering first-hand knowledge of export trade in each section of the country.

They will go abroad immediately following the western tour which ends June 8.

Among the 12 is Anne Charles, who was born in Victoria but took her schooling in the east. She graduated from the University of Toronto with a BA in English and an MA in political science. She joined the federal trade commissioner service on June 5, 1972, exactly one year before her visit to Victoria Tuesday.

She will be posted as assistant trade commissioner to Sydney, Australia.

The other commissioners and their postings:

David Brown of Montreal going to Buenos Aires, Tom Cullen of Vancouver to Caracas, Claude Fontaine of Quebec going to San Francisco, Rodney Johnson of Red Deer, Alta., to Wellington, capital of New Zealand, Richard Kohler of Ottawa to Paris, M. G. Kostyrsky of London, Ont., to New York, Kathryn McCallion of Toronto to Mexico City, Gordon McGregor of Winnipeg to Johannesburg, Gilbert Rock of Montreal to Seattle, Gary Scott of Montreal to Nairobi, and Nancy Stiles of Toronto to The Hague.

CBC Finds TV Commercials Too Lucrative to Give Up

OTTAWA (CP — Money — $100 million or more annually — is the basic reason against removing commercials from CBC television, corporation officials say.

They say that is why the prospect of commercial-free AM radio does not point toward any likelihood in the near future of no-advertisement CBC-TV.

The CBC announced Monday that starting June 4 it will give up its most lucrative commercials time on its Ottawa AM outlet, CBO. There will be no ads on the program CBC Morning, heard 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. weekdays and at slightly different times Saturdays and Sundays.

If the public likes the commercial-free format, it could lead to totally-commercial-free CBC radio. CBC FM radio now is adless.

If that is a possiblility for radio, why not for CBC television, as groups like the Canadian Radio-Television Commission have suggested?

First there is the problem of money, CBC vice-president Ron Fraser said in an interview Wednesday. Total CBC revenue from radio commercials is about $2.5 million, compared with television commercial revenue of $40 million.

The government subsidizes the CBC — by $233 million this year, plust $34 million in loans — and the government would have to agree to increase its payment to make up for lost commercial revenue.

"You might have a chance at getting $2.5 million," Fraser said, "but to ask for $40 million. . . ." He laughed.

The government had given no indication of willingness to provide such an increased subsidy.

Fraser added that the total costs of commercial-free television programming would be far more than just the loss of revenue.

"We started to look at this and, boy, the figures started to rise so fast we just stopped."

In a January speech, CBC President Laurent Picard said total costs would be up to $100 million because, among other things it would be much harder getting programming of the right length. Most North American programs were much shorter than the standard half-hour or hour period so as to allow for commercials.

Another important bar to commercial-free television was the privately-owned television stations affiliated to the CBC, he said then.

Fraser said a considerable proportion of the television affiliates' revenue comes from CBC network advertising, whereas "in radio the affilates get practically no money from us at all."

Without CBC commercials, the affiliates would have only local advertising and many could not survive without some sort of subsidy.

Asked whether the prospect of commercial-free radio might ease pressure on the CBC to drop television commercials, Fraser said:

"I honestly don't know. We hadn't thought about it. There's really been no great pressure on us to get out of TV commercials except on the part of CTV."

The private CTV network has argued that the planned Global television network, due to start in January as a third network, will take commercial revenue and impair the economic health of television stations unless expected fragmentation of revenue is balanced by CBC withdrawal from advertising.

Some commentators have suggested that the Canadian Radio-Telexision Commission approved the Global network with the expectation that its entry into the fight for advertising dollars would prompt the CBC to reduce its advertising.

But CBC officials see better things to do with $100 million than, as they put it, subsidize the CTV network by getting out of advertising. They list plans to provide service to isolated areas and to improve programming.

"If there were a list of priorities, it (commercial-free TV) would be way down at the bottom," said Fraser.

Bucher to Quit

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher, the skipper of the ill-fated spy ship Pueblo will retire from the navy Friday. Bucher, who turned his ship over to the North Koreans without firing a shot, will leave the service after 22 years, the last two as executive officer of a Guam-based mine-sweeping flotilla.

France Won't Exploit Watergate

By JONATHAN C. RANDAL
Washington Post
(Analysis)

PARIS — Considering the gravity of Franco-American differences, President Nixon may find it difficult to believe that French President Georges Pompidou will eschew exploiting the Watergate scandal when they meet today and Friday in Iceland.

Quite apart from the mutual respect the two leaders apparently have for each other, sources close to Pompidou say he is now convinced that Nixon is going to survive his present ordeal.

Their hunch is based as much as anything on a hard-headed — and perhaps self-serving — belief that Nixon alone can deliver the kind of trade, monetary and defence deal capable of re-ordering increasingly tangled Trans-Atlantic relations to European satisfaction.

Pompidou's desire to deal with Nixon in no way implies he is willing to give anything away. There has been of late a slightly perceptible hardening of France's positions, which were firm to begin with.

Pompidou has survived scandals of his own both in and out of presidential office. He doubtless wishes almost as much as Nixon himself that the Watergate scandal would blow itself out and allow the United States and Europe to get down to the long and hard bargaining that lies ahead.

Most importantly, Pompidou would like some indication from Nixon, however vague, that the United States is committed to making the dollar convertible with gold again.

To this end, France finally has dropped gold out of its monetary vocabulary, and even suggested that the special drawing rights the French once were highly critical of might well play a major role in a reform of the international monetary system.

The French have backpedaled from their recent suggestions that no trade talks could be carried on unless there was a monetary settlement. The new line is that no measures eventually worked out in the forthcoming "Nixon round" trade talks should be implemented until there is an over-all monetary agreement. Since the trade talks are expected to last as long as five years, the French are being reasonable on the surface.

Even such moderately encouraging explanations, however, have unleashed attacks in the press from socialist leader Francois Mitterand, suggesting a total absence of coherent or constructive policy to face up to the United States.

Such is not the view of Pompidou who, even during a bout of flu last week, managed to spend hours daily preparing for the Iceland meeting.

(Despite the Paris rumor mill — fed by illnesses which have forced cancellation of Pompidou's public appearances three times since the beginning of the year — the French president appears to be suffering from nothing more serious than a painful arthritic condition.

(His growing plumpness is variously ascribed to cortisone treatments and for his cutting down on cigarettes, which is said to have perked up his appetite.

(He is also said to have told intimates that Nixon's Watergate problems are nothing compared to the incredible Paris rumoors "which have all but buried me.")

France opposes any document smacking of Henry Kissinger's recent call for a "new Atlantic charter" or suggestions of a trans-Atlantic summit conference during Nixon's planned European tour this fall.

The French have never liked bloc-to-bloc negotiations. Since the late Charles De Gaulle's days as president, they have looked askance at formal trans-Atlantic partnership deals, as President Kennedy discovered when he put forward his ill-fated "dumbbell theory."

But Pompidou will certainly try to draw Nixon out on his precise ideas for a new trans-Atlantic relationship. Pompidou is especially nervous about American hints that, failing U.S. satisfaction on trade, monetary and defence problems, the United States may unilaterally withdraw troops from Europe.

The rapidity of U.S.-Soviet detente is disconcerting to Pompidou, who will doubtless try to draw Nixon out about his intentions during the Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's U.S. visit next month.

France's insistence on "reciprocal" concessions in trade and monetary negotiations basically centre on Pompidou's fears that the United States wants to torpedo the awkward and expensive common market agriculture system which benefits France most.

France

French officials claim that, despite American complaints, U.S. farm exports to the common market have increased 42 per cent in the past seven years, compared to an increase of only 26 per cent with the rest of the world, and that the U.S. trade edge with the common market amounted to $1.7 billion in 1971 and $1.3 billion last year.

French obduracy on matters of joint trans-Atlantic interest was demonstrated only last week when France scuttled efforts to work out an over-all common market position to allow co-ordinated programs with the United States and Japan for meeting the industrial world's energy shortage.

19th Century Paintings To Be Displayed

DUNCAN — The fifth annual show of the Maple Bay Painters and the Cowichan Valley Potters Club will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Maple Bay recreation hall.

One of the highlights will be a display of 19th century European painting loaned by the Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

The show will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and from noon to 9 p.m. Sunday.

WEST STIFLED, SAY REDS

TORONTO (CP) — The Communist Party of Canada says that the industrialization of Western Canada has been stifled by Canadian monopoly interests and government.

The party says that the prairie provinces and British Columbia have been relegated "to the status of raw material preserves for Canadian monopoly, the United States trusts and multi-national corporations."

It said that an increasing number of Canadians are "alarmed" at the situation and what the party calls the U.S. offensive to gain control over Canada's petroleum, natural gas, coal, mineral and water resources.

A new national policy for development of Western Canada will be discussed at a conference of the party's four western provincial organizations in Edmonton June 16-17, the party said.

Burning Plastic Puts Heat on Makers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Federal Trade Commission accused 26 chemical firms Wednesday of knowingly advertising and selling combustible plastics as non-burning or self-extinguishing.

The complaint also named a trade association and a testing firm as defendants.

The plastics involved are the cellular, or foamed, polyurethane and all forms of polystyrene and its copolymers. More than one billion pounds of these plastics were marketed in 1972 for use in construction and home furnishings.

The plastics are used for insulation, furniture cushioning and bedding, panels and siding, cabinets, chairs, tables, pipes and lighting and plumbing fixtures.

They also are used in commercial airliners and in the trouble-plagued Skylab space station.

The FTC alleged the plastics spread flame more rapidly and increase the likelihood of flashover — when a fire in one part of a room suddenly engulfs the entire room or structure.

It also alleged the plastics release toxic or flammable gases or chemicals more quickly than other building materials and release more of such gases at various stages of the combustion process.

The FTC complaint alleged the 28 respondents have known directly or indirectly since 1967 that these plastics constituted serious fire hazards "but have failed to disclose such material facts to users."

Named as defendants were the Society of the Plastics Industry, Inc., a trade association; the American Society for Testing and Materials, a standards-making organization, and 26 companies.

APPEAL ON PAROLES PROPOSED FOR As-G

OTTAWA (CP) — Under proposals submitted Wednesday the Canadian Bar Association, provincial attorneys-general would have the right to appeal the granting of paroles by a revamped parole board.

In a submission to a Senate committee, the association said there should be appeal procedures both for prisoners who have been denied parole and for the Crown when parole has been granted.

"This would ensure both protection to the applicant from prejudice or misinformation and protection to the public from leniency or action inconsistent with public safety," the brief said.

In explaining the brief to the Senate legal and constitutional affairs committee, which is studying paroles, Eric Teed of Saint John, N.B., said the proposal would help remove the considerable public criticism of the parole system.

He said at present there is nothing an attorney-general can do about a parole if there is a public outcry about the release of a convict from prison. He described the Crown appeal as a "safety valve."

He said at present an attorney-general cannot intervene in parole proceedings. The appeal — the association preferred to use the term review — would take place in a reconstituted parole system.

The national parole board would be divided into two tiers. There would be one — or two — personal regional boards which would make all first decisions on parole applications, with the possible exception of applications from murderers and those convicted of other crimes of violence.

The Crown or the parolee could appeal that decision up to the main board sitting in Ottawa. At that appeal both sides could be permitted to be represented by counsel.

At present the board sits in Ottawa making decisions in parole applications from provincial and federal institutions. There is no provision of appeal from a board decision.

Until recently the board heard parole applications at federal prisons, but the practice was stopped because it overworked board members. But at those hearings the applicant was not entitled to be represented by counsel.

The bar association suggestion of a form of regionalization of the board is one of many that the committee under chairman H. Carl Goldenberg (L—Quebec) has heard. Board Chairman George Street has said that regionalization appears inevitable.

Teed said the bar association idea may be difficult to put into effect but that the two-tier concept should be accepted.

John Castle of Ottawa, who with Teed was on the association group that drew up the brief, said the appeals suggestion would make sure that the same principles were applied in parole across the country.

Warranty Controls Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario plans to introduce legislation this fall to cover warranties on home appliances and automobiles, Premier William Davis said Tuesday.

He also told the Automobile Dealer Associations of Ontario that legislation is planned to tighten controls over the issuance of mechanical fitness certificates for motor vehicles.

The premier said that the warranty legislation will be introduced in the fall, then delayed so the government can hear submissions from manufacturers and retailers.

It will then be reintroduced in the spring of 1974.

The legislation will be based on an Ontario Law Reform Commission report on consumer warranties and guarantees that was tabled in the legislature last year.

The report recommended the government enact legislation that would ensure consumers are given greater protection by guarantees and warranties.

On automobile warranties, the commission said that the new result of the "warranty race" that began in 1960 was to "confuse the consumer and has not left him in essentially any better position at the end than he was in the beginning."

"It is difficult to believe such exercises promote confidence in the fairness and dependability of automobile warranties."

Davis said that industry and the public will get a preview of the government's plans for warranties legislation during the current session of the legislature when John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, tables a "green paper" containing the proposals.

The premier stressed that the paper would only outline a preliminary position on the legislation. Public hearings will follow.

Davis said the legislation governing mechanical fitness certificates would place greater emphasis on the control of inspections and would be aimed at overcoming fraudulent insurance of the certificates.

Art Show Offers Something for All

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

No matter what attracts you to a painting—color, style, medium, the real or surreal—there is something of interest and pleasure in a current display at Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

The show comprises a recent acquisition, a collection of the works of best known Quebec and Ontario artists of the past 50 years.

It is the gift of Montreal architect Peter Dobush.

It is extensive, consisting of 41 works, and was chosen by Dobush from his private collection with the purpose of filling in gaps in the Victoria gallery's survey collection of Canadian art.

This exhibition, as well as the Chinese masterpieces from the Royal Ontario Museum, ends this Sunday.

Time to browse is therefore short and well worth finding by anyone interested in art, ancient and modern.

Whether the compelling and painterly portrait by Alphonse Jongers, with the beautifully executed hands and brilliant eyes, the rare Canadian surrealism in a color lithography by Leon Bellefleur, or the superb wood engravings of Winnipeg's Eric Bergman first catch your eye, you will find many other facets to explore.

There is rich, seductive coloring in the abstract impressionism of Jean-Paul Mousseau, and a powerful sense of foreboding expressed with fine economy in the watercolor, Dockside, by Carl Schaefer.

Bell—a B.C. artist and major Canadian printmaker—has a retrospective show including landscapes, cityscapes, birds and animals, coming next to the gallery (June 7-July 1).

Another of my own favorites is Montreal, Windy Day, by Philip Surrey, a cityscape with charmingly understated figures and a vitally expressed sense of rhythm and movement.

Three British Columbia artists are included—Bell, Joe Plaskett and Maxwell Bates. Among others from the eastern provinces are Jacques de Tonnancour, Louis Muhlstock, Edwin Holgate (an artist close to the Group of Seven), Franklin Brownell and Mabel May.

The Dobush gift climaxes a flood of donations in the Canadian field enjoyed by the gallery in recent months, among which have been represented, Emily Carr, J. E. H. MacDonald, Horatio Walker and Robert Harris.

Satellite Launched

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched a satellite Tuesday designed to help forecast the weather. The satellite has devices to take pictures of cloud and snow cover and measure heat reflected by the earth, Tass news agency said.

Meat, Potatoes, Tomatoes Lead Rising Prices

Canadian Press

Monthly price fluctuations of up to 50 cents on individual food items in the shopping basket and a continuing upward trend in the price of meat are revealed in a shopping survey of nine major Canadian cities.

The prices of 17 food items common to most family shopping lists were checked in two cross-Canada surveys by The Canadian Press conducted four weeks apart.

The survey showed considerable increases in beef, pork, chicken, potatoes and tomatoes during the month but stable prices for such basic foods as milk and sugar. There were few decreases in prices.

The first survey was carried out April 30 and the second May 28, both Mondays, mith the aim of determining price fluctuations in each city. The surveys are not intended to compare prices from city to city.

Certain items were unavailable in some cities on the dates checked, and brands sometimes varied from region to region.

AMOUNTS VARY

Occasionally the quantities sought could not be found in all cities. In such cases the amounts usually offered for sale were checked.

In the first survey the lowest price for each item was noted. In the second survey the same brand was checked for comparison, whether or not it remained the cheapest on offer.

The surveys were conducted where possible in large supermarkets, and covered the following foods: One pound each of sirloin-tip beef, all-beef wieners, centre-cut loin of pork, first-grade chicken, ground chuck, frozen cod fillets, first-grade butter, tomatoes, frozen green peas, apples, and drip coffee.

Also checked were the prices of one dozen white, medium eggs, a quart of homogenized milk, one 24-ounce loaf of sliced, white bread, 10 pounds of first-grade potatoes, a 24-ounce can of first-grade halved pears, and five pounds of white granulated sugar.

Some of the findings:

MONTREAL — Seven items increased in price and none decreased. Biggest jump was 50 cents (to $1.59 from $1.09) for pork. Other increases shoved frozen cod fillets up to $1.14 from 80 cents, potatoes up 18 cents to 95 cents, and ground chuck up 11 cents to $1.07. Chicken, wieners and apples had two-to six-cent increases. Beef was constant at $1.73.

William Taylor, an official of the supermarket checked, said the meat price increases resulted primarily from the cost of the slaughter animals and increased feed costs.

Ground chuck, he said, was a good example of the trend to increased meat prices. The price had been held back "as long as possible."

He said that despite the higher prices his company was making the same profits as before on pork, chicken and ground chuck.

Cod fillets he said are "rare" in Montreal at this time of year, and he attributed the 18-cent increase for 10 pounds to bad weather resulting in a poor harvest.

He said this factor was also expected to push up costs of other vegetables within the next two months.

TORONTO—The city registered six price increases, the highest 10 cents on one pound of tomatoes, and the others ranging from two to six cents on pork, beef, wieners, apples and canned pears.

Potatoes went down six cents to 83 cents, cod fillets three cents to 95 cents, milk by two cents and eggs by one cent. Other items remained stable.

Prices were available for all the items in both surveys, although 28-ounce cans of pears were used for comparison, instead of 24-oz. cans.

QUEBEC — Biggest mark-up was on cod fillets, a 33-cents increase raising the price to $1.19. Ten other items also went up.

Twenty-one cents went on potatoes, to 98 cents; 10 cents on beef, to $1.73; nine cents on drip coffee, to $1.08; and eight cents on apples, six cents on chicken and tomatoes, five cents on frozen peas and butter, four on pork and three on milk.

Ground chuck went down seven cents to 89 cents and wieners showed a two-cent drop.

HALIFAX — There was a 30-cent rise on tomatoes, to 79 cents; 10 cents on potatoes, to $1.29, and pork, to $1.19; five cents on chicken and two cents on eggs.

Frozen peas dropped four cents to 22 cents but other prices remained constant. Beef and apples were not available in the first survey.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.—Neither beef nor pork was available at both checks in St. John's. A spokesman said they generally were not available Monday, the slowest shopping day of the week. Tomatoes, frozen peas and apples were unavailable during tre second survey.

But 27 cents went on drip coffee, to $1.39; 22 cents on sugar, to 81 cents, and five cents on butter, to 82 cents.

Potatoes came down 29 cents to 98 cents, cod fillets five cents to 74 cents, with one cent each off chicken, to 67 cents, and ground chuck, to $1.18. Wieners, milk, bread and canned pears remained constant.

OTTAWA — Short-rib beef, which provided the best comparison here, increased 11 cents to $1.09. Ten cents also went on ground chuck, raising it to 96 cents, and three cents on sugar, to 79 cents.

But 12 cents came off both tomatoes, to 87 cents, and frozen peas, to 34 cents.

WINNIPEG — Ten cents came off wieners and cod fillets, both to 89 cents, while 30 cents went on potatoes, to 99 cents, and 13 cents on bread, to 32 cents.

Apples, tomatoes and eggs had increases ranging from two to four cents but eight cents came off chicken, to 64 cents, and two cents off milk, to 32 cents.

EDMONTON — Potatoes here also went up over the month by 20 cents to $1.49. Ten cents went on tomatoes, to 39 cents, and beef, to $1.79.

There was also six cents added on ground chuck, five cents on butter and sugar and smaller increases on drip coffee, pears and eggs.

Chicken and wieners were each down four cents.

VANCOUVER—The food bill here rose 17 cents over the month, to $13.54 from $13.37.

There was a 19-cent rise in tomatoes, to $1.38; 10 cents in sugar, to 83 cents; and six cents each on cod, to 59 cents, apples, to 35 cents, and pears, to 55 cents.

The supermarket also offered two pounds of frozen peas in the first survey for 55 cents. At the next check they were 63 cents.

But three cents came off beef, down to $1.83, and 10 cents off wieners, to 95 cents. Butter was reduced by six cents and eggs by two cents.

Lack of Moisture Threatens Plants

On Tuesday of this week relative humidity dropped to what may well be a record low for the date though meteorologist Alan McQuarrie didn't say so at the time.

Apart from watering all the permanent plants growing in containers, I sprayed water over the conifers, rhododendrons, skimmias, laurels, heathers and other evergreens.

Some of these plants are native to locations of fairly high humidity, mists and fog or close proximity to bodies of water; not necessarily to areas of abundant rainfall. Others come from habitats of high rainfall which creats its own humid atmosphere when temperatures rise. Warm air draws the moisture upwards through the soil.

Rainfall has been so scarce this year that sandy soils are already depleted. Unless the gardener adds mulches of humus material around all plants, and along vegetable rows, it will be increasingly difficult to keep young plants growing.

Only with moisture in the soil at the roots can they obtain the plant foods present in the soil, but useless unless in solution.

Peonies make a lot of growth in a short time too, and although they are blessed with permanent tuberous rootstocks as "supply houses", they need fairly constant moisture nearby to replenish the food storage. As the flower buds are developing now on the June varieties, peonies need a thorough soaking at the roots.

★ ★ ★

Failing this, the buds may not open and the lovely foliage that we depend on for summer garden color will not materialize.

In perennial flower buds, even though you feel it unnecessary to soak everything, see that the moist-soil plants have enough water.

Monarda, the Bee-balm, and Geums are two of these; the fall asters and the phloxes; Astilbes, Aruncus (Goat's beard) and perennial lobelias (the scarlet and the blues) — all these will flower most profusely and for longer periods with damp soil around the roots.

Daily light sprinkling is reserved for seed rows, and newly sprouted seedlings. Even for these, the better plan is to supply either a temporary shade of black cloth fastened to stakes 18 inches long and thrust firmly into the soil for nine inches, bringing the cloth down to eight or nine inches above soil.

With rows running north and south, shade will be over the rows while the sun is high, but early morning and late afternoon sunlight reaches the seed area, and later the seedlings.

This scheme is workable for small sowings. The frame is moveable, and can be used continuously all summer for succession sowings. Remove it completely as soon as seedlings have developed into little plants.

We can save water in many ways. What we use let us use to full advantage; used water is not wasted water.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It is an accepted fact that more games and slams are won (or lost) in the early stages of play than in the later stages. Today's deal is submitted in evidence. The hand arose in the Spingold Knockout Team-of-Four Championship held this past summer in Denver. Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

♣ Q J

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
3♣	Pass	4♠	5◇
5♠	6◇	6♠	Pass
Pass	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♣.

Opening lead: Five of clubs.

Sitting South and North were one of Europe's top pairs, Robert Sheehan and Jonathan Cansino, both of London, England. When Sheehan jumped to four spades, it was because he thought he could fulfill this contract. The bidding then took off rapidly, with East-West "sacrificing" at six diamonds (this would have gone down three tricks, doubled, for a loss of 800 points). Sheehan, thinking he could make a slam, bid six spades.

When East, with his two aces, doubled, it was because he thought he could defeat the contract (he was right). But West interpreted the double as a conventional call, demanding the lead of the first suit bid by dummy. So he opened the five of clubs. It was a mistake.

Declarer captured the opening club lead with his jack, after which he cashed the ace and king of trumps. The result was most gratifying, for he felled West's queen. When play had ended, he had fulfilled his doubled contract with an overtrick, scoring 1860 points.

When the deal was replayed with Cansino's teammates holding the East-West cards, South also arrived at a six-spade contract, although via a different bidding sequence. Marshall Miles, sitting in the East seat, doubled. After a lengthy deliberation with himself, Ed Kantar, West, found the winning opening lead of a low heart, East taking the trick with his ace. East promptly returned a heart, and Kantar's king took the setting trick.

As his counterpart had done when the deal was played originally, declarer avoided the loss of a trump trick by felling the trump queen. And so Kantar and Miles gained 200 points, which added to their teammates' plus score of 1860, came to 2060 points, or 19 International Match points.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to all who so kindly assisted and for the words of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings extended at the death of our beloved husband and father Gordon. Special thanks to Mike White and pallbearers. — Dorothy, Rhonda and Danny Hunt.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our many friends and acquaintances and to everyone at the Jubilee Hospital for all their acts of sympathy, cards, letters, flowers and donations, after the passing of Karen.—Mr. and Mrs. Ken Thorne and Lisa

9 IN MEMORIAM

Not just today, but every day,
Not just when I want to share,
My special moments with her,
But every day,
That I realize the love and Friendship we shared will never die.
—Always remembered, Heather.

Tips on Safer Pregnancies

A woman recently wrote to ask me, "Can an expectant mother improve her chances of having a healthy child?" Yes; she can do much.

Most important is that she should have good medical care, especially during the first three months of her pregnancy. During these first weeks of her pregnancy, the proper development of the tiny embryo is most crucial.

The doctor will not want the mother to have X-ray examinations of her abdomen; he will want to see that she gets an adequate diet which will help the fetus to grow well, and he will warn the woman against using most drugs because there are a number of medicines that could cause serious injury to the baby in the womb.

The woman who smokes heavily had better quit when she is pregnant; otherwise her baby may be very small, and this can be a dangerous thing.

Also, if the woman sometimes takes LSD, she should be careful not to take it if there is any danger of her becoming pregnant.

The pregnancies of 148 women who had taken LSD were studied by a Washington, D.C. research team and reported by the AMA. There were only 83 live newborns and eight of these had serious birth defects. There were 65 abortions — 12 spontaneous, and 53 performed to save the mother from harm.

Four of the embryos obtained by therapeutic abortion showed gross birth defects. Many of the women were unable to conceive again during the 18-month period after this disaster.

The scientists making the study, Drs. Cecil B. Jacobson and Cheston M. Berlin, pointed out that the women involved in the study also used other illegal drugs, and many had infectious diseases and were poorly nourished, meaning that other factors besides the LSD could have been involved. But it is obviously dangerous to take ANY drug during pregnancy.

ESTATE SALE OF LAND
515 Mount View Avenue, Victoria, B.C.
SEALED TENDERS will be received by Isabel Moore, as Administratrix of the Estate of James Wilson, bachelor, late of Victoria, British Columbia, deceased, up to 2:00 o'clock p.m. on the 15th day of June, 1973, at the offices of Messrs. Harman & Company, 540 Yarrow Building, 645 Fort Street, Victoria, British Columbia, for the purchase of all the right, title and interest of the Estate of the said James Wilson, deceased, in that certain parcel or tract of land situate, lying and being in the Victoria Assessment District and Colwood Fire Protection District, in the Province of British Columbia, and being more particularly known and described as Lot "1", Section Seventy (70), Esquimalt District, Plan 1118, excepting thereout and therefrom those certain portions of said Lot as are more particularly outlined in red on certain plans charged and filed against the said lands in the Land Registry Office in the City of Victoria in the Province of British Columbia under Numbers DD 2785 O.S. and DD 2924 O.S. respectively, subject to the following charges:

Right-of-Way Easement registered in the said Victoria Land Registry Office under No. D 15491, Arthur H. Pratt, C.B. 19.177, DD 13416.

TERMS OF SALE:

(1) The tenderor shall be deemed to have notice of the contents of the charges and of the nature and extent of the easement and said plans charging the said lands herein offered for sale, and the tenderor shall also be deemed to have notice of the state of condition of the property as to repairs, encroachments, and other similar matters. The said Isabel Moore as such Administratrix shall not be bound to produce any abstracts of title, or any deeds, copies of deeds of any other evidences of title except such as are in her possession. The tenderor shall search the title to said lands at his own expense and by the delivery of his tender pursuant to this Notice of Sale the tenderor shall be deemed to have accepted the title to the said lands and the Deed of Conveyance shall contain only those usual covenants as are required to be given by a Trustee.

(2) Each tender must be accompanied by a bank draft, certified cheque, or cash, as a deposit in the sum equal to 10% of the tender price and the same shall be payable to "Isabel Moore as Administratrix of the Estate of James Wilson."

(3) The tender must be unconditional.

(4) Each tender will be opened at 2:00 o'clock p.m. on the 15th day of June, 1973, at the said offices of Messrs. Harman & Company, 540 Yarrow Building, 645 Fort Street, Victoria, British Columbia.

(5) THAT THE HIGHEST OR ANY TENDER WILL NOT NECESSARILY BE ACCEPTED.

(6) The said Isabel Moore shall, by her Solicitors, the said Messrs. Harman & Company, notify the successful tenderor of the acceptance of his tender on or before the 20th day of June, 1973.

(7) The tenderor whose tender has been accepted by the said Isabel Moore shall pay the balance of the tendered price in cash, bank draft or certified cheque, on or before 11:00 a.m. on the 27th day of June, 1973, at the said offices of Messrs. Harman & Company, 540 Yarrow Building, 645 Fort Street, Victoria, British Columbia, and such bank draft or certified cheque shall be made payable to "Isabel Moore, as Administratrix of the Estate of James Wilson."

(8) Adjustment for taxes and other adjustable items and possession date shall be the 27th day of June, 1973 (hereinafter called the "possession date").

(9) Failure by the successful tenderor to pay the balance of the tender price on or before the said possession date shall result in the said deposit tender being forfeited to the said Isabel Moore as and for liquidated damages.

(10) The costs of drawing Deed of Conveyance, searching title and Land Registration fees shall be at the sole expense of the tenderor.

CAPITAL REGIONAL DISTRICT BY-LAW NO. 137

A BY-LAW TO AUTHORIZE THE EXPROPRIATION OF AN EASEMENT AND RIGHT-OF-WAY FOR THE PURPOSE OF CONSTUCTING, OPERATING, AND MAINTAINING TRUNK SEWERS.

WHEREAS, by Supplementary Letters Patent of the Capital Regional District dated the 28th day of December, 1967, the Capital Regional District was authorized and empowered, inter alia, to acquire, design, construct, operate, maintain, renew, and administer trunk sewers within the Capital Regional District as set out in the said Supplementary Letters Patent;

AND WHEREAS subject to the relevant provisions of the Municipal Act in addition to any other powers of the Capital Regional District, the Capital Regional District has, for the purpose of exercising its powers, duties, and obligations, the full power to acquire, hold, and dispose of real and personal property;

AND WHEREAS, by Section 791 of the Municipal Act, Chapter 255, R.S.B.C. 1960, in addition to any other powers to acquire property which the Regional Board may exercise, the Regional Board, by its servants, may enter upon, break up, take, or enter into possession of and use any real or personal property within the regional district not publicly owned where necessary or convenient for any of the purposes of the regional district without the consent of the owners of the real or personal property, but subject to Division (4) of Part XII;

AND WHEREAS, by By-laws 45 and 96 of the Capital Regional District, the Board of the Capital Regional District was empowered and authorized to undertake and carry out, or cause to be carried out, the acquisition, design, and construction of trunk sewers and sewage-disposal facilities within the Capital Regional District as set out therein and to do all things necessary in connection therewith, including the acquisition of all such real property, easements and rights-of-way as may be requisite or desirable for or in connection with the construction of the said facilities;

AND WHEREAS it is necessary to expropriate for the construction of the said facilities the easement and right-of-way hereinafter described:

1. Pursuant to Section 791, but subject to the restrictions contained in Division 4, Part XII, of the Municipal Act, Chapter 255, R.S.B.C. 1960, and amendments, the Regional Board of the Capital Regional District hereby expropriates an easement and right-of-way in, upon, under, and across the land and premises described as All that part of Lot 29, Block A, Fairfield Farm Estate, Victoria City, Plan 340, lying to the South of a boundary parallel to and perpendicularly distant 10 feet from the Southerly boundary of the said Lot 29, for the purposes and to the extent set out in the draft Agreement attached as Schedule "A" hereto, and for such purposes is hereby authorized and empowered, by its servants, to enter upon and break up, take, enter into possession of, and use the said land and premises without the consent of the owners of the said land and premises.
2. Any real property injuriously affected by the carrying out of the construction, operation, or maintenance of the aforesaid sewer works or any of them, may be entered upon by the workmen or employees of the Capital Regional District or by any contractors or agents employed by the Capital Regional District to carry out the works, and they and each of them are hereby authorized so to enter in order to execute such works of construction, maintenance, or repair, in mitigation of injury done or apprehended, or in mitigation of compensation claimable by reason of or through the carrying out of the works authorized.
3. This By-law shall not come into force or effect until it has been published in The British Columbia Gazette and once in a newspaper circulating in the City of Victoria and a certified copy thereof has been filed in the Land Registry Office in the City of Victoria.
4. This By-law may be cited for all purposes as the "Sewer Easement Expropriation By-law No. 1, 1973".

READ A SECOND TIME THIS 23rd day of MAY, 1973.
READ A THIRD TIME THIS 23rd day of MAY, 1973.
RECONSIDERED AND FINALLY ADOPTED the 23rd day of MAY, 1973.

"J. M. CAMPBELL" CHAIRMAN — "DENNIS A. YOUNG" SECRETARY-TREASURER.
(L.S.)

SCHEDULE "A"

THIS AGREEMENT made the day of , A.D. 1973:
BETWEEN:
CAPITAL REGIONAL DISTRICT, Victoria, British Columbia.
OF THE FIRST PART
AND:
(hereinafter called "the Owner")
OF THE SECOND PART
WITNESSETH THAT:
The Owner for the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, hereby grants in perpetuity to the Regional District, the right and easement for the Regional District, its servants, agents and all others the licensees of the Regional District:
(a) To construct, entrench, operate, maintain, remove and replace a system of sewer pipes, and all necessary appurtenances thereto in, under and upon that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate lying and being in the City of Victoria, in the Province of British Columbia, and more particularly described as (hereinafter called "the right-of-way") for the conveyance of sewage under and across the right-of-way;
(b) To pass and repass over the right-of-way and to clear, dig, remove and backfill soil and make trenches on the right-of-way for any of the purposes aforesaid.

The Regional District covenants with the Owner that each time it disturbs the surface of any of the right-of-way in the exercise of any of the rights granted to it under this agreement it will restore the same as near as is reasonably possible to the condition thereof before such disturbance.

The Regional District further covenants with the Owner that it will compensate the Owner for damage done the buildings, crops, tile drains, fences, culverts, and other improvements and to any equipment or other chattels on the right-of-way by reason of the exercise or purported exercise of the rights hereinbefore granted save such as may have been made, placed, erected or maintained by the Owner in contravention of the next succeeding paragraph of this agreement.

The Owner hereby covenants with the Regional District not to make, place, erect or maintain, subsequent to the date hereof, without the written consent of the Regional District first had and obtained, any building, structure or excavation in, under or upon the right-of-way.

IT IS MUTUALLY AGREED between the Regional District and the Owner:
(a) That the right-of-way shall be construed as running with the land, that no part of the fee of the soil shall pass to or be vested in the Regional District under or by these presents and that the Owner may use and enjoy the said land, subject only to the rights and restrictions herein provided;
(b) That the expressions "Regional District" and "Owner" herein contained shall be deemed to include the executors, administrators, successors and assigns of such parties wherever the context so admits; and
(c) Wherever the singular and masculine are used in this agreement they shall be construed as meaning the plural or the feminine or the body corporate where the context or the parties hereto so require.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF the parties have caused these presents to be executed as of the day and year first above written.

COUTURE PATTERN

By LOIS HOLMES

Filet crochet has been cherished by every generation and nothing is more beautiful than garments made from this particular type of Quick, Quick Crochet. A graceful stole and a soft-collared jacket, edged with dainty puffs feature an exquisite rose pattern, outlined by a diamond formation of delicate popcorns. This pattern is a jewel for beginners because it requires only chains and double crochet to quickly complete these gorgeous wardrobe additions. Four-ply knitting worsted or synthetic can be used and sizes small, medium and large are given for the jacket.

To order CR-804 Filet Rose Jacket and Stole, send $1.50 U.S. plus 15 cents for mailing for the pattern (25 cents for air mail) in currency, cheque or money order to Lois Holmes of California, Victoria Times, Box 1005, Gardena, Calif., 90249. Please print your name, address, and pattern number plainly.

Air Canada Machinists Vote Strike

Times News Services

Air Canada machinists across the country have rejected the latest company contract offer and voted in favor of a strike, it was announced in Montreal today.

No strike date was set but the 6,900 machinists can legally walkout Friday.

The federal labor department earlier in the day appointed a mediator in the dispute but one department official said this does not interfere with the machinists' legal right to strike.

The mediator, Winnipeg lawyer Roy Gallagher, earlier served as a conciliator and his report was released to the two parties May 22.

Mediation is scheduled to begin June 1 in Montreal.

Air Canada said it "welcomes announcement of the appointment of a mediator to participate in renewed negotiations."

Aspokesman said Air Canada will "maintain service to the limit of its ability" if a rotating strikes begin.

In the Commons, Peter Bawden (PC—Calgary South) said Wednesday Air Canada is disregarding legitimate grievances of the machinists.

He asked the common to approve a motion saying the airline should do everything possible to settle the dispute immediately. The motion, which required unanimous consent, was rejected.

The machinists have taken strike action in four contract disputes over the last seven years.

Present pay rates for a two-year mechanic are $4.99 an hour, with the top rate set at $5.49 an hour.

The dispute also involves several non-money issues, among them, complaints that the union's members were laid off by Air Canada during the air controllers strike last year.

$100,000 QUESTION: IS GRANT WORTH IT?

Times News Services

VANCOUVER—The government is paying a consulting firm $100,000 to determine whether a $750,000 subsidy is needed.

The Canadian Transportation Commission is paying the sum to Acres Consulting Services of Vancouver to determine if the government should continue or eliminate the subsidy—in effect since 1909 — to Northland Navigation for its Vancouver to Stewart run.

Study director Wayne McNeal said the commission will review the subsidy before it becomes due again March 31, 1974. The study is to be completed by Nov. 30.

SKYLAB POWER FAILS

Times News Services

HOUSTON — Ground controllers told Skylab's three astronauts today to conserve electricity as a result of a new power failure.

Renewed studies of earth's resources were cancelled for the day.

Minutes after being awakened, space station commander Charles Conrad asked Houston if electrical specialists working through the night had found any way to overcome the new power shortage.

"Afraid not," replied Robert Crippen.

"We're still looking at it. There is some concern that we may have to eliminate some activity, but we still haven't fully evaluated that."

The problem raised the possibility one of the astronauts might take a space walk in an effort to free a jammed solar panel and gain additional power.

The battery went dead Wednesday.

Feed Crisis Seen

Meat and poultry prices will rise sharply in the next month because of what B.C. feed producers term a national crisis in stock feed costs.

"The situation is beyond our control," B.C. Feed Manufacturers Association chairman Bill Ritchie said Wednesday at a conference in Langley.

Not only are basic prices rising quickly, he said, but some major sources of world supply have dried up or are dwindling.

Feed suppliers in Victoria, however, said today they didn't foresee any "crisis" in the next month.

"Canadians are going to have to get used to paying more for food, so I'd call it 'national adjustment' not crisis," he said.

He said he could see no relief in feed price increases until the fall soybean crop is harvested, but added that future prices probbly won't equal increases experienced in the last year.

Charlie Borden of Borden Mercantile Ltd. said his feed costs have gone up 50 per cent in the last year but he doesn't think that price rise will be matched in the next year.

"I don't really think it's as bad as some people think," Borden said. "The price may go up in the next month but not drastically.

"I've sold feed as far ahead as August with firm costs. Perhaps if I was buying on a day-to-day basis my prices would be more affected," he said.

Both Borden and Biggs said Canadians have always had extremely low food costs but now a combination of factors is pushing those prices up to levels experienced by other countries.

Two main factors are pushing feed costs up, Biggs said: The growing affluence of other countries in the world and adverse weather conditions.

Countries such as Japan, he said, are demanding more and more protein food and thus buying up stock feed.

Feed suppliers have faced adverse conditions in the last year as well.

Something To Cluck About

"It takes 21 days to grow for a chick in the egg," writes Russell, Grade 1 student at Tolmie Elementary School.

"Most chicks live for one or two years. When the chicks hatch they are tired."

Russell and his Grade 1 and 2 classmates have been watching chicken eggs hatch in an incubator in their classroom, and writing about what they have learned.

"First do not yell or the chick will die," writes Chris, in Grade 2. "And don't touch it.

Lucia, in Grade 1, writes: "The mother hen keeps the egg warm so the chick won't get dead."

"A incubator is for chicks to grow in," writes Petra, in Grade 2. "Some people were born in a incubator."

The incubator and the eggs were loaned to the class by Mrs. Daisy Steggles of 57 Cadillac. After a few days in the classroom, the chicks will return to the Steggles' and be tucked under a broody hen.

Next project, said Mrs. Steggles, is to find some frog eggs and show the children how they become tadpoles.

Ad Lib Summit Starts

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Evidence of the underlying discord in French-U.S. relations was seen as President Nixon and President Georges Pompidou began two days of summit talks today. (See also Page 28.)

French officials reported there was not even advance agreement on what topic the two officials would discuss first.

Pompidou wanted to emphasize international monetary problems while Nixon's heart was set on laying down broad new principles and goals for the Atlantic community.

The two were reported today to have discussed problems confronting the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler, while predicting successful meetings, said there are no plans to issue the communique that usually ends such conferences.

The French fear that the United States might use it as contribution to the defence of Western Europe as a club to get economic concessions.

Four hours were set aside for formal talks today, with the American and French delegations getting together again in the evening at a dinner given by the Icelandic government.

Some Icelanders were raising discordant notes for the visitors. Several leftist groups planned demonstrations against the continuance of American military operations in Indochina, French nuclear tests in the South Pacific and British fishing in the offshore waters claimed by Iceland.

Ransom Up Every Hour

ORANJESTAD, Aruba (UPI) — Two long-haired masked hijackers, reportedly upping their ransom demands by $50,000 an hour, today held a crippled Colombian airliner with 53 passengers and crew members aboard on this Dutch island while awaiting repairs.

They originally demanded the release of 47 "political prisoners" and payment to them of $200,000 by threatening to blow up the plane and passengers.

The demand was rejected by the Colombian government.

After the hijack the four-engine Electra belonging to the Colombian "Sam" airline landed at Oranjestad for refuelling. The hijackers released 34 passengers and ordered the pilot to fly to Lima.

Airport authorities said the pilot, Capt. Jorge Lucena, and his co-pilot were suffering from exhaustion.

The political affiliation, if any, of the hijackers is not known.

The prisoners whose release they demanded were mainly members of the Castroite Army of National Liberation.

Colombian president Misael Pastrana Borrero and his national security council met for four hours Wednesday night in Bogota after which it was announced the hijackers' demands were rejected because to accept them would mean a "breakdown of juridical order" in the country.

Major Upset At Irish Polls

DUBLIN (AP) — Ireland's voters produced a major upset today and elected Erskine Childers, 68, a Protestant with an English background, to succeed the old revolutionary Eamon de Valera as the republic's next president.

Gold Again Breaks Record

LONDON (UPI) — Gold reached another all-time peak price of $114.75 an ounce in London today.

The metal closed at the record level, up 75 cents per ounce from its close Wednesday.

ICCS Suspends All Meetings

Times News Services

SAIGON — The International Commission of Control and Supervision has come to a complete standstill today following its inability to resolve a deadlock over reports of alleged North Vietnamese infiltration of South Vietnam.

The ICCS suspended all regular meetings of the chiefs of delegations, which means no reports of investigations of truce violations can be formally completed.

Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin said he would assume the commission rotating chairmanship in June but will call no further meetings unless the deadlock over reports can be resolved.

ICCS field teams can still carry out investigations of truce violations which are requested by either the Viet Cong or the South Vietnamese at regional levels. But the results of these will not be forwarded to the two-party Joint Military Commission until the ICCS ambassadors begin meeting again.

Meanwhile, a cutback of 40 per cent has been ordered in B-52 bombing raids over Cambodia, informed U.S. military sources said Wednesday. The order took effect a few days ago.

The huge jets had been averaging about 50 to 60 flights a day over the past three months.

Defence department sources say the reduction in B-52 operations is linked primarily to an attempt to cut down on the mounting costs of the U.S. air operations in Indochina. But they concede privately that there is also an increasing morale problem among B-52 bomber crews at bases on Guam and in Thailand who talk of being "mercenaries" caught up in a war "not in my country's national interest."

Military sources declined to speculate on whether the cutback may be a signal of interest in a negotiated cease-fire in Cambodia at a time when the White House is involved in a new round of discussions with the Communists both in Southeast Asia and in Paris.

NEWS BRIEFS

Jet Downed, 118 Aboard

NEW DELHI (UPI) — An Indian Airlines Boeing 737 carrying 118 passengers including an Indian government minister crashed today while on approach to New Delhi airport, authorities said. It was not immediately known if there were any survivors.

The plane went down in Vasant Vihar, an exclusive residential district in the southern part of the capital.

Pilots Walk Out

MONTREAL (CP) — A 36-hour work stoppage by St. Lawrence Seaway pilots began at noon today. The 38 pilots are to rally here for their annual general meeting Friday.

Nurses Picket

CALGARY (CP) — City hall operations were partly shut down today as public health nurses went on strike for higher wages and set up picket lines.

London Scoured

LONDON (Reuter) — Armed police scoured London today for two dangerous prisoners still at large after a mass breakout from a high-security prison and a bloody street fight.

Wardens Stabbed

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Two convicted police killers stabbed to death the warden and deputy warden and injured three guards today during a meeting in the warden's office at Holmsburg prison, authorities reported.

Flights in Chaos

Kingsview Now as Good as Dead

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

NORTH COWICHAN — The mammoth Kingsview housing project proposed for 505 acres on secluded Maple Bay Road is as good as dead — at least until the municipal elections at the end of this year.

Responding to overwhelming opposition from citizens, North Cowichan council voted unanimously Wednesday to table a decision on a land-use contract sought by Kingsview Properties Ltd.

Victoria lawyer Ian Stewart, who represented the scheme's opponents at a marathon four-part public hearing earlier this year, predicted that Wednesday's decision by council meant that the subdivision was dead until December.

He told reporters if North Cowichan council planned to approve an altered land-use contract the proceedings could easily be stalled until the municipal elections.

"They (council) approved this land-use contract last year," Stewart said. "To be fair, all they are trying to do now is drop it gracefully."

Mayor Gerry Smith told a crowded council chamber he did not think the matter could be brought back before council for "at least two months."

Aldermen stated that they would like to see development more firmly controlled by the municipality.

North Cowichan administrator Van Decastayen said today he thought the mayor and council would now consider what amendments could be made to the land use contract under discussion.

But a municipal affairs department spokesman said there is a limit to the changes that can be made to a land-use contract that has already been submitted to public hearing.

The Municipal Act states that changes shall not be made which "alter the substance" of the document, the spokesman said.

"In other words, if what the council passes is a different deal altogether from what went to public hearing they'll have to have a new public hearing."

The spokesman said that if the changes made to the contract were more restrictive on the developer it would "count in council's favor."

Decastayen said he thought council could still decide against the land-use contract, even after agreed changes, "because it still needs a two-thirds majority."

He said that since planned changes would be more re-

By Truck, Barge, Ancient House Heads Slowly Up-Island

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

With real estate prices soaring, you might say John Gentry got a deal. He bought a house in North Saanich for $110.10.

What sort of house do you get for $110.11?

Gentry's house has 13 rooms, including seven bedrooms. Besides kitchen, living room, dining room, bathroom and utility room, it has a conservatory. All told, there is 4,800 square feet of floor space.

There are others. The house, built in 1919, has no insulation. And there's no distribution system to carry the heat from an old furnace, converted from coal to oil.

Gentry, 29, is a mill worker at Harmac near Nanaimo who lives at Lantzville. That's where the house is headed, most of the way by barge.

He and his wife like antiques, he said Wednesday. So the biggest one in their collection got under way today, with the help of a small army from B.C. Hydro and B.C. Tel.

A lot of wires had to be lifted or dropped along the way. A couple of telephone poles were sawed down and some residents had their power shut off for a short spell.

A New Westminster house moving firm anticipates it will take all day to move the house from the East Saanich Road along Amity Drive, across the Pat Bay Highway and north on Lochside to the barge near the Anacortes ferry dock.

The movers' bill will be $6,000, said Gentry. The bills from B.C. Tel and B.C. Hydro are expected to be about

The house — green roof, brown shake siding, pillared porch and big plate glass windows—served until recent years as residence for the superintendent of the federal experimental farm near Sidney.

It cost $4,500 to build better than half a century ago and was big enough to house visiting dignitaries from Ottawa in the days when travel wasn't so rapid.

But none of the staff wanted to rent it the past few years so the research station, Agriculture Canada, as it's now called decided to get rid of it through Crown Assets Disposal.

Station director Harry Anderson said today that had there been no bids to buy or demolish it, the house would possibly have gone up in flames. The local fire brigade wanted to burn it as a training exercise.

Anderson said there was quite a bit of interst in the house when word got around it was up for auction. About half a dozen people were shown through and one man said he would have it sawed in half to move it.

Gentry said he doesn't know how many people submitted written bids in February.

The house will be relocated on a lot he owns about a quarter-mile from Pebble Beach, where the barge will land it.

Diversion Costs Doubled

Greater Victoria Water Board decided today to go ahead with the Council Creek diversion into Sooke Lake Reservoir despite latest cost estimates showing the price has more than doubled since the preliminary estimate.

Water district commissioner Ron Upward said construction of a dam, pipelines and ditches to divert 1.5 billion gallons of water a year was estimated at about $100,000 based on a preliminary estimate of $73,000 by an engineering firm in 1971.

While preliminary estimates are not made on final designs, they usually serve "as a rough guide" but in this case the whole job now is expected to cost $220,000.

Upward said it was found when detailed design was done that there was some rock and the job was more difficult than anticipated.

He said, and the board agreed, that the project should still go ahead, but it will be in stages through to 1974 or 1975.

The Sooke Lake Reservoir has a capacity to serve 250,000 people so by 1978 or 1980 the diversion would be needed anyway, he said, and it would be cheaper now.

He also said that with the water board committed to release 1.5 billion gallons of water each year for Goldstream salmon, an alternative replenishment source is necessary.

Upward told the board that the district has expropriated 11.54 acres, cleared the land and called tenders for the first section of the Council Creek diversion — about 1,200 feet of pipe and 800 feet of ditch.

The remaining phases are mostly ditch work which the district can do with its own earth-moving equipment.

He also pointed out that, with the work being done in phases, it will be after 1975 before the diversion can be used. Shortly after then, 15,000 people in Central and North Saanich could be added to the water district system.

Firm Fined For Fouling Inner Harbor

"There's no doubt there was a considerable mess in the harbor. We plead guilty to that."

And with that admission Smith Cedar Products, for the second time in three years, was fined in provincial court under the Fisheries Act.

The company paid $750 on the April 17 charge that sawdust was loaded improperly on a barge and sawdust chips were found in four harbor locations causing a hazard to marine life.

Defence counsel Bob Hutchison said the company then was installing a new chute which involved overloading the barge and awaiting the right tide.

"There's no doubt of the mess," he said.

But, he explained, since the first $500 fine, the company has tried three different chutes in an attempt to comply with the act. The third one has reduced the problem.

Signal Fire Saves Men After Fishboat Sinks

Two unidentified Ruxton Island men were rescued 10½ hours after they started a signal fire on a log boom when their 22-foot converted fishboat hit a deadhead near Valdez Island and began sinking.

Their rescuer, Frederick Strafdine, who lives on Gabriola Island, about half a mile away from the incident, told the story today.

The two men were returning from Silva Bay, where they had been shopping.

Their boat hit the deadhead and began sinking at about 10 p.m. Tuesday.

The signal fire was seen at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday by Strafdine, who picked the men and dogs up in his log salvage boat, the Lori C II.

The coast guard cutter Racer was despatched to the scene and put out the flames.

Another log boom, being towed in the area, by a tug headed for Nanaimo, was in difficulty Wednesday.

It broke up in high winds and it is expected to be two days before the logs are collected. Boat operators are warned to keep a lookout.

Another 5,000 logs under tow in Burrard Inlet on the mainland were also scattered.

About 100,000 cubic feet of logs are believed to have been lost in the Nanaimo mishap.

The B.C. Forest Service has banned salvage by licensed beachcombers until the logs are retrieved by their owners.

GELLING

Chief Quits In C. Saanich

The chief of Central Saanich's six-man municipal police force resigned today, one month after he was stabbed in the course of duty and one day after a constable the police commission had fired was reinstated with full back pay.

Gelling, police chief for 15 months, tendered his resignation in a letter to council received last Monday. He was not available for comment.

Central Saanich Mayor Archie Galbraith told reporters he thought Gelling might have retired in connection with his serious injuries received in the stabbing incident April 30 and the reinstatement of the officer, James Earl.

Special meetings of the police commission and municipal council were set for this afternoon.

Constable Earl was dismissed Jan. 10. The case went before the B.C. Labor Relations Board last week for a two-day hearing and Wednesday morning it was revealed Earl had been reinstated with an unconfirmed backpay cheque of $3,600.

Gelling's letter was received by council two days before Earl's reinstatement was announced.

George Burton, 57, of 1450 Mount Newton Cross Road this morning was remanded to June 18 on the charge of attempted capital murder of Gelling by knife-stabbing.

The charge was laid following a traffic incident in which Burton received two bullet wounds and two other policemen were stabbed.

Noise Onslaught Must End: Brief

Governments are doing nothing to reduce noise pollution, says a brief submitted Wednesday to the legislative committee on social welfare and education by the Citizens Association to Save the Environment (CASE).

"We feel human environments must be protected from the increasing onslaughts of noise," it says. "Such protection is also a function of health care but it has to be developed and enforced by the three government levels, municipal, provincial and federal."

The brief says municipalities and regional districts have devoted little attention to the adequate planning and development of living areas in relation to existing noise problems or to situations which are likely to become problems.

As an example, it points out new suburban areas are being built with high population densities along roads which are, or being planned, to become major traffic routes.

"To leave sound attenuating buffer zones of trees and other vegetation between noise sources and living areas is foreign to the mentality of most municipalities which, of course, cannot derive taxes from such zones," it states.

The brief asked the government to introduce noise pollution legislatiin to cover vehicle noise, public performance permissible sound levels, industrial noise and community noise.

Spray Saves Trees From Budworms

The city has sprayed about 4,000 trees to prevent defoliation by budworms, codding moths and aphis, Al Smith, superintendent of parks, said today.

"The infestation is bad this year but we took action in time to prevent serious damage," he said.

"You either have to spray or put up with trees which have been stripped of their leaves."

Frank Andrews, Saanich assistant park administrator, and Art Eardley, Oak Bay assistant works superintendent, said they have sprayed when they have received complaints or where damage from pets was noticeable.

Smith said a chemical known as Diazanon is used to control the pests.

"If used with care, it is relatively harmless," he said. "It breaks down quickly."

However, Smith warned residents to carefully follow instructions when using Diazanon.

"It is a very potent poison if not handled properly," he said.

HALL

It's Time Buses Given Priority

Public transportation is at last coming into its own, says H. R. Halls who retires today as B.C. Hydro transportation manager for the Victoria area.

Halls, who is completing 43 years with Hydro and the B.C. Electric, said that during most of that time public transportion had to take second place to the motor car.

The exception was during the Second World War when gasoline was rationed.

"Then the whole community relied upon public transportation. It met the challenge.

"Now it is faced with a new challenge because of fuel shortages, pollution problems and concern about the environment. I am confident it will meet that challenge, too."

Halls said he is gratified by recent provincial government statements rapid transit services would be given priority over cars in urban areas.

After so many leans years, the dramatic changes proposed are exciting for anyone who has spent a lifetime in the public transportation business.

★ ★ ★

"I seem to be retiring just when things are getting interesting.

"But I have thoroughly enjoyed my years with the company."

He returned to Victoria on May 1, 1931, to become a light and power representative with the company.

In 1939 he became a salesman for merchandising and moved up to transportation assistant in 1943.

On November 1, 1945, he became Victoria traffic superintendent and exactly one year later became transportation manager. Halls said he plans to ease into retirement.

"I'm a yachtsman and now I will be able to devote more of my time to that. And I will be able to spend more time with my family."

Island Man Off to Zambia

Lawrence Bomford, 28, of Cobble Hill, will do an economic evaluation of agricultural redistribution and settlements schemes in Zambia under the Canadian International Development Agency.

He was one of 11 Canadians awarded CIDA scholarships. Maximum annual value of the awards is $8,000, with the exact amount of each scholarship based on such factors as the scope and nature of the study program.

Bomford has a B.A. in economics.

New Minister, Curtis Talk Road Extension

A change of ministers has not affected negotiations concerning the Blanshard Street extension, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today.

New Highways Minister Graham Lea was "very cooperative and I see no difficulties arising out of the change," said Curtis after a Wednesday meeting.

Disucssions of the controversial highway connection were launched between Saanich and former highways minister Robert Strachan early in the year.

Saanich seeks a solution to the traffic bottleneck posed with Douglas Street congestion and the lack of Blanshard access to Pat Bay or Trans-Canada highways.

GREEN DYE coloring the water in the Centennial Square fountain greeted passers-by this morning, and put municipal employee Donald Stewart to work washing it away. The prank has been played before and is rather a nuisance, said city deputy engineer William Jorgensen. All kinds of broken bottles were found thrown in the fountain. (Irving Strickland photo.)

Burning Plastic Puts Heat on Makers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Federal Trade Commission accused 26 chemical firms Wednesday of knowingly advertising and selling combustible plastics as non-burning or self-extinguishing.

The complaint also named a trade association and a testing firm as defendants.

The plastics involved are the cellular, or foamed, polyurethane and all forms of polystyrene and its copolymers. More than one billion pounds of these plastics were marketed in 1972 for use in construction and home furnishings.

The plastics are used for insulation, furniture cushioning and bedding, panels and siding, cabinets, chairs, tables, pipes and lighting and plumbing fixtures.

They also are used in commercial airliners and in the trouble-plagued Skylab space station.

The FTC alleged the plastics spread flame more rapidly and increase the likelihood of flashover — when a fire in one part of a room suddenly engulfs the entire room or structure.

It also alleged the plastics release toxic or flammable gases or chemicals more quickly than other building materials and release more of such gases at various stages of the combustion process.

The FTC complaint alleged the 28 respondents have known directly or indirectly since 1967 that these plastics constituted serious fire hazards "but have failed to disclose such material facts to users."

Named as defendants were the Society of the Plastics Industry, Inc., a trade association; the American Society for Testing and Materials, a standards-making organization, and 26 companies.

APPEAL ON PAROLES PROPOSED FOR As-G

OTTAWA (CP) — Under proposals submitted Wednesday the Canadian Bar Association, provincial attorneys-general would have the right to appeal the granting of paroles by a revamped parole board.

In a submission to a Senate committee, the association said there should be appeal procedures both for prisoners who have been denied parole and for the Crown when parole has been granted.

"This would ensure both protection to the applicant from prejudice or misinformation and protection to the public from leniency or action inconsistent with public safety," the brief said.

In explaining the brief to the Senate legal and constitutional affairs committee, which is studying paroles, Eric Teed of Saint John, N.B., said the proposal would help remove the considerable public criticism of the parole system.

He said at present there is nothing an attorney-general can do about a parole if there is a public outcry about the release of a convict from prison. He described the Crown appeal as a "safety valve."

He said at present an attorney-general cannot intervene in parole proceedings. The appeal — the association preferred to use the term review — would take place in a reconstituted parole system.

The national parole board would be divided into two tiers. There would be one — or two — personal regional boards which would make all first decisions on parole applications, with the possible exception of applications from murderers and those convicted of other crimes of violence.

The Crown or the parolee could appeal that decision up to the main board sitting in Ottawa. At that appeal both sides could be permitted to be represented by counsel.

At present the board sits in Ottawa making decisions in parole applications from provincial and federal institutions. There is no provision of appeal from a board decision.

Until recently the board heard parole applications at federal prisons, but the practice was stopped because it overworked board members. But at those hearings the applicant was not entitled to be represented by counsel.

The bar association suggestion of a form of regionalization of the board is one of many that the committee under chairman H. Carl Goldenberg (L—Quebec) has heard. Board Chairman George Street has said that regionalization appears inevitable.

Teed said the bar association idea may be difficult to put into effect but that the two-tier concept should be accepted.

John Castle of Ottawa, who with Teed was on the association group that drew up the brief, said the appeals suggestion would make sure that the same principles were applied in parole across the country.

Warranty Controls Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario plans to introduce legislation this fall to cover warranties on home appliances and automobiles, Premier William Davis said Tuesday.

He also told the Automobile Dealer Associations of Ontario that legislation is planned to tighten controls over the issuance of mechanical fitness certificates for motor vehicles.

The premier said that the warranty legislation will be introduced in the fall, then delayed so the government can hear submissions from manufacturers and retailers.

It will then be reintroduced in the spring of 1974.

The legislation will be based on an Ontario Law Reform Commission report on consumer warranties and guarantees that was tabled in the legislature last year.

The report recommended the government enact legislation that would ensure consumers are given greater protection by guarantees and warranties.

On automobile warranties, the commission said that the new result of the "warranty rage" that began in 1960 was to "confuse the consumer and has not left him in essentially any better position at the end than he was in the beginning."

"It is difficult to believe such exercises promote confidence in the fairness and dependability of automobile warranties."

Davis said that industry and the public will get a preview of the government's plans for warranties legislation during the current session of the legislature when John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, tables a "green paper" containing the proposals.

The premier stressed that the paper would only outline a preliminary position on the legislation. Public hearings will follow.

Air Canada Machinists Vote Strike

Times News Services

Air Canada machinists across the country have rejected the latest company contract offer and voted in favor of a strike, it was announced in Montreal today.

No strike date was set but the 6,900 machinists can legally walk out Friday.

The federal labor department earlier in the day appointed a mediator in the dispute but one department official said this does not interfere with the machinists' legal right to strike.

The mediator, Winnipeg lawyer Roy Gallagher, earlier served as a conciliator and his report was released to the two parties May 22.

Mediation is scheduled to begin June 1 in Montreal.

Air Canada said it "welcomes announcement of the appointment of a mediator to participate in renewed negotiations."

A spokesman said Air Canada will "maintain service to the limit of its ability" if rotating strikes begin.

In the Commons, Peter Bawden (PC—Calgary South) said Wednesday Air Canada is disregarding legitimate grievances of the machinists.

He asked the Commons to approve a motion saying the airline should do everything possible to settle the dispute immediately. The motion, which required unanimous consent, was rejected.

The machinists have taken strike action in four contract disputes over the last seven years.

Present pay rates for a two-year mechanic are $4.29 an hour, with the top rate set at $5.49 an hour.

The dispute also involves several non-money issues, among them, complaints that the union's members were laid off by Air Canada during the air controllers strike last year.

$100,000 QUESTION: IS GRANT WORTH IT?

Times News Services

VANCOUVER—The government is paying a consulting firm $100,000 to determine whether a $750,000 subsidy is needed.

The Canadian Transportation Commission is paying the sum to Acres Consulting Services of Vancouver to determine if the government should continue or eliminate the subsidy—in effect since 1969 — to Northland Navigation for its Vancouver to Stewart run.

Study director Wayne McNeal said the commission will review the subsidy before it becomes due again March 31, 1974. The study is to be completed by Nov. 30.

SKYLAB POWER FAILS

Times News Services

HOUSTON — Ground controllers told Skylab's three astronauts today to conserve electricity as a result of a new power failure.

Renewed studies of earth's resources were cancelled for the day.

Minutes after being awakened, space station commander Charles Conrad asked Houston if electrical specialists working through the night had found any way to overcome the new power shortage.

"Afraid not," replied Robert Crippen.

"We're still looking at it. There is some concern that we may have to eliminate some activity, but we still haven't fully evaluated that."

The problem raised the possibility one of the astronauts might take a space walk in an effort to free a jammed solar panel and gain additional power.

The batteries went dead Wednesday.

Feed Cost May Hit Poultry

Meat and poultry prices will rise sharply in the next month because of what B.C. feed producers term a national crisis in stock feed costs.

"The situation is beyond our control," B.C. Feed Manufacturers Association chairman Bill Ritchie said Wednesday at a conference in Langley.

Not only are basic prices rising quickly, he said, but some major sources of world supply have dried up or are dwindling.

Feed suppliers in Victoria, however, said today they didn't foresee any "crisis" in the next month.

"Canadians are going to have to get used to paying more for food, so I'd call it 'national adjustment' not crisis," he said.

He said he could see no relief in feed price increases until the fall soybean crop is harvested, but added that future prices probably won't equal increases experienced in the last year.

Charlie Borden of Borden Mercantile Ltd. said his feed costs have gone up 50 per cent in the last year but he doesn't think that price rise will be matched in the next year.

"I don't really think it's as bad as some people think," Borden said. "The price may go up in the next month but not drastically.

"I've sold feed as far ahead as August with firm costs. Perhaps if I was buying on a day-to-day basis my prices would be more affected," he said.

Both Borden and Biggs said Canadians have always had extremely low food costs but now a combination of factors is pushing those prices up to levels experienced by other countries.

Two main factors are pushing feed costs up, Biggs said: The growing affluence of other countries in the world and adverse weather conditions.

Countries such as Japan, he said, are demanding more and more protein food and thus buying up stock feed.

Feed suppliers have faced adverse conditions in the last year as well.

Something To Cluck About

"It takes 21 days to grow for a chick in the egg," writes Russell, Grade 1 student at Tolmie Elementary School.

"Most chicks live for one or two years. When the chicks hatch they are tired."

Russell and his Grade 1 and 2 classmates have been watching chicken eggs hatch in an incubator in their classroom, and writing about what they have learned.

First chicks emerged from their shells Wednesday.

"First do not yell or the chick will die," writes Chris, in Grade 2. "And don't touch it.

Lucia, in Grade 1, writes: "The mother hen keeps the egg warm so the chick won't get dead."

"A incubator is for chicks to grow in," writes Petra, in Grade 2. "Some people were born in a incubator."

The incubator and the eggs were loaned to the class by Mrs. Daisy Steggles of 57 Cadillac. After a few days in the classroom, the chicks will return to the Steggles' and be tucked under a broody hen.

Next project, said Mrs. Steggles, is to find some frog eggs and show the children how they become tadpoles.

Ad Lib Summit Starts

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Evidence of the underlying discord in French-U.S. relations was seen as President Nixon and President Georges Pompidou began two days of summit talks today. (See also Page 28.)

French officials reported there was not even advance agreement on what topic the two officials would discuss first.

Pompidou wanted to emphasize international monetary problems while Nixon's heart was set on laying down broad new principles and goals for the Atlantic community.

The two were reported today to have discussed problems confronting the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler, while predicting successful meetings, said there are no plans to issue the communique that usually ends such conferences.

The French fear that the United States might use their contribution to the defence of Western Europe as a club to get economic concessions.

Four hours were set aside for formal talks today, with the American and French delegations getting together again in the evening at a dinner given by the Icelandic government.

Some Icelanders were raising discordant notes for the visitors. Several leftist groups planned demonstrations against the continuance of American military operations in Indochina, French nuclear tests in the South Pacific and British fishing in the offshore waters claimed by Iceland.

Ransom Up Every Hour

ORANJESTAD, Aruba (UPI) — Two long-haired masked hijackers, reportedly upping their ransom demands by $50,000 an hour, today held a crippled Colombian airliner with 53 passengers and crew members aboard on this Dutch island while awaiting repairs.

They originally demanded the release of 47 "political prisoners" and payment to them of $200,000 by threatening to blow up the plane and passengers.

The demand was rejected by the Colombian government.

After the hijack the four-engine Electra belonging to the Colombian "Sam" airline landed at Oranjestad for refuelling. The hijackers released 34 passengers and ordered the pilot to fly to Lima.

Airport authorities said the pilot, Capt. Jorge Lucena, and his co-pilot were suffering from exhaustion.

The political affiliation, if any, of the hijackers is not known.

The prisoners whose release they demanded were mainly members of the Castroite Army of National Liberation.

Colombian president Misael Pastrana Borrero and his national security council met for four hours Wednesday night in Bogota after which it was announced the hijackers' demands were rejected because to accept them would mean a "breakdown of juridical order" in the country.

Major Upset At Irish Polls

DUBLIN (AP) — Ireland's voters produced a major upset today and elected Erskine Childers, 68, a Protestant with an English background, to succeed the old revolutionary Eamon de Valera as the republic's next president.

Gold Again Breaks Record

LONDON (UPI) — Gold reached another all-time peak price of $114.75 an ounce in London today.

The metal closed at the record level, up 75 cents per ounce from its close Wednesday.

ICCS Suspends All Meetings

Times News Services

SAIGON — The International Commission of Control and Supervision has come to a complete standstill today following its inability to resolve a deadlock over reports of alleged North Vietnamese infiltration of South Vietnam.

The ICCS suspended all regular meetings of the chiefs of delegations, which means no reports of investigations of truce violations can be formally completed.

Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin said he would assume the commission rotating chairmanship in June but will call no further meetings unless the deadlock over reports can be resolved.

ICCS field teams can still carry out investigations of truce violations which are requested by either the Viet Cong or the South Vietnamese at regional levels. But the results of these will not be forwarded to the two-party Joint Military Commission until the ICCS ambassadors begin meeting again.

Meanwhile, a cutback of 40 per cent has been ordered in B-52 bombing raids over Cambodia, informed U.S. military sources said Wednesday. The order took effect a few days ago.

The huge jets had been averaging about 50 to 60 flights a day over the past three months.

Defence department sources say the reduction in B-52 operations is linked primarily to an attempt to cut down on the mounting costs of the U.S. air operations in Indochina. But they concede privately that there is also an increasing morale problem among B-52 bomber crews at bases on Guam and in Thailand who talk of being "mercenaries" caught up in a war "not in my country's national interest."

Military sources declined to speculate on whether the cutback may be a signal of interest in a negotiated cease-fire in Cambodia at a time when the White House is involved in a new round of discussions with the Communists both in Southeast Asia and in Paris.

NEWS BRIEFS

Flights in Chaos

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Domestic air travel turned into chaos today as air controllers started a wage protest.

Kingsview as Good as Dead

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

NORTH COWICHAN — The mammoth Kingsview housing project proposed for 505 acres on secluded Maple Bay Road is as good as dead — at least until the municipal elections at the end of this year.

Responding to overwhelming opposition from citizens, North Cowichan council voted unanimously Wednesday to table a decision on a land-use contract sought by Kingsview Properties Ltd.

"There's no way we can approve this land-use contract," stated Mayor Gerry Smith.

Victoria lawyer Ian Stewart, who represented the scheme's opponents at a marathon four-part public hearing earlier this year, predicted that Wednesday's decision by council meant that the subdivision was dead until December.

He told reporters if North Cowichan council planned to approve an altered land-use contract the proceedings could easily be stalled until the municipal elections.

"They (council) approved this land-use contract last year," Stewart said. "To be fair, all they are trying to do now is drop it gracefully."

Mayor Gerry Smith told a crowded council chamber he did not think the matter could be brought back before council for "at least two months."

Aldermen stated that they would like to see development more firmly controlled by the municipality.

North Cowichan administrator Van Decastayen said today he thought the mayor and council would now consider what amendments could be made to the land use contract under discussion.

But a municipal affairs department spokesman said there is a limit to the changes that can be made to a land-use contract that has already been submitted to public hearing.

The Municipal Act states that changes shall not be made which "alter the substance" of the document, the spokesman said.

"In other words, if what the council passes is a different deal altogether from what went to public hearing they'll have to have a new public hearing."

The spokesman said that if the changes made to the contract were more restrictive on the developer it would "count in council's favor."

Decastayen said he thought council could still decide against the land use contract, even after agreed changes, "because it still needs a two-thirds majority."

He said that since planned changes would be more re-

VANCOUVER—The government is paying a consulting firm $100,000 to determine whether a $750,000 subsidy is needed.

The Canadian Transportation Commission is paying the sum to Acres Consulting Services of Vancouver to determine if the government should continue or eliminate the subsidy—in effect since 1909 — to Northland Navigation for its Vancouver to Stewart run.

Study director Wayne McNeal said the commission will review the subsidy before it becomes due again March 31, 1974. The study is to be completed by Nov. 30.

SKYLAB POWER FAILS

Times News Services

HOUSTON — Ground controllers told Skylab's three astronauts today to conserve electricity as a result of a new power failure.

Renewed studies of earth's resources were cancelled for the day.

Minutes after being awakened, space station commander Charles Conrad asked Houston if electrical specialists working through the night had found any way to overcome the new power shortage.

"Afraid not," replied Robert Crippen.

"We're still looking at it. There is some concern that we may have to eliminate some activity, but we still haven't fully evaluated that."

The problem raised the possibility one of the astronauts might take a space walk in an effort to free a jammed solar panel and gain additional power.

The batteries went dead Wednesday.

Feed Cost May Hit Poultry

Meat and poultry prices will rise sharply in the next month because of what B.C. feed producers term a national crisis in stock feed costs.

"The situation is beyond our control," B.C. Feed Manufacturers Association chairman Bill Ritchie said Wednesday at a conference in Langley.

Not only are basic prices rising quickly, he said, but some major sources of world supply have dried up or are dwindling.

Feed suppliers in Victoria, however, said today they didn't foresee any "crisis" in the next month.

"Canadians are going to have to get used to paying more for food, so I'd call it 'national adjustment' not crisis," he said.

He said he could see no relief in feed price increases until the fall soybean crop is harvested, but added that future prices probably won't equal increases experienced in the last year.

Charlie Borden of Borden Mercantile Ltd. said his feed costs have gone up 50 per cent in the last year but he doesn't think that price rise will be matched in the next year.

"I don't really think it's as bad as some people think," Borden said. "The price may go up in the next month but not drastically.

"I've sold feed as far ahead as August with firm costs. Perhaps if I was buying on a day-to-day basis my prices would be more affected," he said.

Both Borden and Biggs said Canadians have always had extremely low food costs but now a combination of factors is pushing those prices up to levels experienced by other countries.

Two main factors are pushing feed costs up, Biggs said: The growing affluence of other countries in the world and adverse weather conditions.

Countries such as Japan, he said, are demanding more and more protein food and thus buying up stock feed.

Feed suppliers have faced adverse conditions in the last year as well.

Something To Cluck About

"It takes 21 days to grow for a chick in the egg," writes Russell, Grade 1 student at Tolmie Elementary School.

"Most chicks live for one or two years. When the chicks hatch they are tired."

Russell and his Grade 1 and 2 classmates have been watching chicken eggs hatch in an incubator in their classroom, and writing about what they have learned.

First chicks emerged from their shells Wednesday.

"First do not yell or the chick will die," writes Chris, in Grade 2. "And don't touch it.

Lucia, in Grade 1, writes: "The mother hen keeps the egg warm so the chick won't get dead."

"A incubator is for chicks to grow in," writes Petra, in Grade 2. "Some people were born in a incubator."

The incubator and the eggs were loaned to the class by Mrs. Daisy Steggles of 57 Cadillac. After a few days in the classroom, the chicks will return to the Steggles' and be tucked under a broody hen.

Next project, said Mrs. Steggles, is to find some frog eggs and show the children how they become tadpoles.

Ad Lib Summit Starts

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Evidence of the underlying discord in French-U.S. relations was seen as President Nixon and President Georges Pompidou began two days of summit talks today. (See also Page 28.)

French officials reported there was not even advance agreement on what topic the two officials would discuss first.

Pompidou wanted to emphasize international monetary problems while Nixon's heart was set on laying down broad new principles and goals for the Atlantic community.

The two were reported today to have discussed problems confronting the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler, while predicting successful meetings, said there are no plans to issue the communique that usually ends such conferences.

The French fear that the United States might use their contribution to the defence of Western Europe as a club to get economic concessions.

Four hours were set aside for formal talks today, with the American and French delegations getting together again in the evening at a dinner given by the Icelandic government.

Some Icelanders were raising discordant notes for the visitors. Several leftist groups planned demonstrations against the continuance of American military operations in Indochina, French nuclear tests in the South Pacific and British fishing in the offshore waters claimed by Iceland.

Ransom Up Every Hour

ORANJESTAD, Aruba (UPI) — Two long-haired masked hijackers, reportedly upping their ransom demands by $50,000 an hour, today held a crippled Colombian airliner with 53 passengers and crew members aboard on this Dutch island while awaiting repairs.

They originally demanded the release of 47 "political prisoners" and payment to them of $200,000 by threatening to blow up the plane and passengers.

The demand was rejected by the Colombian government.

After the hijack the four-engine Electra belonging to the Colombian "Sam" airline landed at Oranjestad for refuelling. The hijackers released 34 passengers and ordered the pilot to fly to Lima.

Airport authorities said the pilot, Capt. Jorge Lucena, and his co-pilot were suffering from exhaustion.

The political affiliation, if any, of the hijackers is not known.

The prisoners whose release they demanded were mainly members of the Castroite Army of National Liberation.

Colombian president Misael Pastrana Borrero and his national security council met for four hours Wednesday night in Bogota after which it was announced the hijackers' demands were rejected because to accept them would mean a "breakdown of juridical order" in the country.

Major Upset At Irish Polls

DUBLIN (AP) — Ireland's voters produced a major upset today and elected Erskine Childers, 68, a Protestant with an English background, to succeed the old revolutionary Eamón de Valera as the republic's next president.

Gold Again Breaks Record

LONDON (UPI) — Gold reached another all-time peak price of $114.75 an ounce in London today.

The metal closed at the record level, up 75 cents per ounce from its close Wednesday.

ICCS Suspends All Meetings

Times News Services

SAIGON — The International Commission of Control and Supervision has come to a complete standstill today following its inability to resolve a deadlock over reports of alleged North Vietnamese infiltration of South Vietnam.

The ICCS suspended all regular meetings of the chiefs of delegations, which means no reports of investigations of truce violations can be formally completed.

Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin said he would assume the commission rotating chairmanship in June but will call no further meetings unless the deadlock over reports can be resolved.

ICCS field teams can still carry out investigations of truce violations which are requested by either the Viet Cong or the South Vietnamese at regional levels. But the results of these will not be forwarded to the two-party Joint Military Commission until the ICCS ambassadors begin meeting again.

Meanwhile, a cutback of 40 per cent has been ordered in B-52 bombing raids over Cambodia, informed U.S. military sources said Wednesday. The order took effect a few days ago.

The huge jets had been averaging about 50 to 60 flights a day over the past three months.

Defence department sources say the reduction in B-52 operations is linked primarily to an attempt to cut down on the mounting costs of the U.S. air operations in Indochina. But they concede privately that there is also an increasing morale problem among B-52 bomber crews at bases on Guam and in Thailand who talk of being "mercenaries" caught up in a war "not in my country's national interest."

Military sources declined to speculate on whether the cutback may be a signal of interest in a negotiated cease-fire in Cambodia at a time when the White House is involved in a new round of discussions with the Communists both in Southeast Asia and in Paris.

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Domestic air travel turned into chaos today as air controllers started a wage protest.

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

NORTH COWICHAN — The mammoth Kingsview housing project proposed for 505 acres on secluded Maple Bay Road is as good as dead — at least until the municipal elections at the end of this year.

Responding to overwhelming opposition from citizens, North Cowichan council voted unanimously Wednesday to table a decision on a land-use contract sought by Kingsview Properties Ltd.

"There's no way we can approve this land-use contract," stated Mayor Gerry Smith.

Victoria lawyer Ian Stewart, who represented the scheme's opponents at a marathon four-part public hearing earlier this year, predicted that Wednesday's decision by council meant that the subdivision was dead until December.

He told reporters if North Cowichan council planned to approve an altered land-use contract the proceedings could easily be stalled until the municipal elections.

"They (council) approved this land-use contract last year," Stewart said. "To be fair, all they are trying to do now is drop it gracefully."

Mayor Gerry Smith told a crowded council chamber he did not think the matter could be brought back before council for "at least two months."

Aldermen stated that they would like to see development more firmly controlled by the municipality.

North Cowichan administrator Van Decastayen said today he thought the mayor and council would now consider what amendments could be made to the land use contract under discussion.

But a municipal affairs department spokesman said there is a limit to the changes that can be made to a land-use contract that has already been submitted to public hearing.

The Municipal Act states that changes shall not be made which "alter the substance" of the document, the spokesman said.

"In other words, if what the council passes is a different ideal altogether from what went to public hearing they'll have to have a new public hearing."

The spokesman said that if the changes made to the contract were more restrictive on the developer it would "count in council's favor."

Decastayen said he thought council could still decide against the land use contract, even after agreed changes, "because it still needs a two-thirds majority."

He said that since planned changes would be more re-
